DEA Special Agent Darius Jeremiah Cruz
Security Studies Group

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION: Tall and dark with a short haircut. A thick moustache droops to his lips from his nose. Well built.

PHYSICAL DETAILS: Left-handed. 34yo, DOB 28 JAN 1967

SECURITY CLEARANCE: Secret

PAYGRADE: GS-11 (Journeyman DEA Special Agent)

PERSONAL DETAILS: Darius could be the polished side of the coin called the decline of Black America. Coming from a relatively successful family of a teacher and a midwife, he served the urge to help others and pull a fellow man up back on his feet from his knees, until tragedy struck. Perfect grades and a warm personality in the time when civil rights movement was giving its fruits made for a smooth ride, soon he became a generalist surgeon at an ER. Marrying Sarah sometime during the process, the circle of life was coming to a complete loop.

In 1998, his brother Malcolm was found dead to a fentanyl overdose in his room in a group-living program. Facing the cold reality that all his effort could not prevent such an outcome, Darius decided to opt in for a more hands-on approach in the Drug Enforcement Administration.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS: Hides the overwhelming grief of loss quite well. Often friendly with everyone, perhaps even treading into the goofy territory. Dresses incredibly loud when not at work, his favorite article of clothing being a thrice-thrifted tie dye shirt with the word “bodacious” airbrushed onto it. Jokingly claims to hold the world record for the “mightiest bench press” whenever he gets the chance.

PHYSICAL DETAILS: None. 31yo, DOB 12 APR 1970

SECURITY CLEARANCE: Secret

PAYGRADE: GS-11

PERSONAL DETAILS: George Jones was born and raised in Virginia, adopted at a young age into a stable household. He grew up with a strong sense of responsibility and structure, shaped by both family expectations and community environment. He completed a degree in criminal justice and transitioned into local law enforcement, working first in probation and parole before moving into patrol.

Jones' early career reflects a consistent focus on direct, practical work. He does not display interest in specialization for its own sake, instead gravitating toward roles where outcomes are immediate and measurable. His transition into the U.S. Marshals Service was motivated by a desire for more active involvement in apprehension and enforcement. He adapts quickly to operational environments and demonstrates reliability under pressure.

His personal life is stable. He maintains close relationships with family and is socially functional, with no noted issues in maintaining bonds or external commitments.

ATF Special Agent Keith Alan Pike

Security Studies Group

ATF Special Agent Keith Alan Pike
Security Studies Group

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION: Lean-faced. Several years committed to a naturally weak mustache. Flat top hair has escaped Army regulation but remains permissibly professional. Documented tattoos behind the wrist line.

PHYSICAL DETAILS: None. 29yo, DOB 09 JUN 1972

SECURITY CLEARANCE: TS/SCI

PAYGRADE: GS-11

PERSONAL DETAILS: A byproduct of American interventionism and the collapse of Michigan's manufacturing industries. After spending close to two years in college, Keith enlisted in the Army to fulfill two childhood dreams, to work with animals for a living, and to be a policeman. Neither was what he expected: His beloved "Samson" died in the outskirts of Mogadishu when a security patrol became the victim of an IED-initiated ambush. Over the remaining months of his deployment, the local people paid a grievous price in "security operations" against collaborators through search-and-seizure missions inside their homes. He doesn't believe it will ever be enough. Magnetized to the intensity of 'counterinsurgency', he deployed to Port-au-Prince in the American bid to re-instate the elected government, embedded with Haitian police patrols in an urban environment he found agitatingly similar to the one he'd left in Africa. Gunfights were room-to-room, unrecorded and underreported, a "show of presence" to assist local law enforcement. Finishing his degree while sitting in a recruiter's pocket, the ATF found him a keen fit, furnishing him with a badge and a dog after a model transition from service featuring the GI bill.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS: He is increasingly estranged from his wife, formerly his high school girlfriend, who's occasional attendance at church metamorphized into an evangelical obsession while he was away. She instigates conversations about living a "Christ-centered lifestyle", for Keith, nothing felt so sacred after Somalia, but he still dutifully attends cookouts and study sessions to keep his family intact. Roy and Anne occupy an increasingly large portion of his heart as CONUS law enforcement gradually hardens it.

Duke, four years and change, is a Malinois. Black-faced, tawny-bodied, and mimics Keith's body language with intent.

CAREER HISTORY:

- June 1990: High School Diploma, Marquette Senior High School, Michigan
- September 1990: U.S. Army Enlistment as Military Police (31B predecessor) with K-9 specialization
- 1993: Somalia Tour of Duty (UNITAF/UNOSOM II)
- 1994: Haiti Tour of Duty (Operation Uphold Democracy)
- December 1994: Honorable discharge
- May 1997: Bachelor of Arts of Criminal Justice at Northern Michigan University
- 1997–1999: ATF Recruitment & Training
- 1999–2000: ATF Detroit Field Division, General Casework
- 2000–2001: ATF Detroit Field Division, Explosives Detection K-9 Program
- June 2022: Optional retirement under 5 U.S.C. Chapter 83/84

FBI Special Agent Mariam Helena Khoury

D-Cell – Agent Diana

FBI Special Agent Mariam Helena Khoury

D-Cell – Agent Diana

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION: Tall, athletic woman with sharp Mediterranean features and a composed, watchful demeanor. Dark brown hair worn short and practical. Expression tends toward controlled neutrality rather than warmth.

PHYSICAL DETAILS: None. 32yo, DOB 14 NOV 1968

SECURITY CLEARANCE: TS/SCI

PAYGRADE: GS-12

PERSONAL DETAILS: Mariam is a recently tenured Special Agent in the FBI's New York Field Office, assigned to counterterrorism through the Joint Terrorism Task Force. Her professional outlook is structured and principled, shaped by a mix of academic psychology and exposure to vulnerable populations during her years as a social worker. She approaches cases with a belief that intervention can still produce stable outcomes, focusing on prevention, disruption, and rehabilitation where possible rather than inevitability.

Her background as a Syrian-American informs her understanding of geopolitical instability, but it manifests more as attentiveness than fixation. She is aware of the narratives surrounding the Middle East and terrorism, and is careful not to reduce individuals to those narratives, even when colleagues or external pressures do so. She maintains a quiet but firm alignment with U.S. institutional goals, believing in the system's capacity to manage complex threats without abandoning its stated principles.

Her personal life is strained by increasing professional demands. She remains in contact with family and participates intermittently in religious and cultural practices, which provide continuity rather than obligation. At this stage, she still maintains a boundary between work and home, though that boundary is beginning to erode under sustained workload.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS: Mariam is regarded as reliable, analytical, and measured in her approach to investigations. She shows a preference for preparation and pattern recognition, often identifying behavioral indicators before they become operational threats. Exposure to high-stress environments produces a visible but contained response, which she manages through discipline rather than suppression. She retains an elevated sense of empathy, especially toward individuals on the margins, though this occasionally slows her decision-making in situations requiring rapid escalation.

CAREER HISTORY:

- June 1986: High School Diploma, Staten Island Technical High School, New York City, NY
- May 1991: Bachelor of Science in Psychology, Rutgers University 1991–1996: Licensed Social Worker (Adolescent Services, NY/NJ)

- 2000–2001: FBI Special Agent, NYFO Counterterrorism Division, Joint Terrorism Task Force (JTTF), investigative support and case development
- November 2018: Optional retirement under 5 U.S.C. Chapter 83/84
