God's Teeth - The Beautiful Session 1

September 18, 2026

Hunger: DELTA GREEN

Hunger: GOD'S TEETH

Hunger: THE BEAUTIFUL

Hunger: A game about destiny.

Hunger: Unknown time and place.

Hunger: Daylight fluorescents place a nail directly on top of the eye and conjunctivitis hammers it deep inside the brain stem. Nothing, no one has the privelege to kill those who have value, not even the sadists, nor the infection. It can't kill, thus the salt stays in the wound. It is no matter. No worse than the other things they have to endure.

Hunger: To endure doesn't make sense when there is no exit. To have feelings, emotions, they too make no sense when words can not arrange them into a neat order, enough to express it to one other. Sense is impossible without comparison. That is a necessary cycle in order to understand the scale of suffering that one goes through, and precisely how high their qualia sits on it.

Hunger: There is no expresion, there is no self and there is no other. Here, pain is when one is awake and its absence is sleep. They're too tired to dream, and when they do dream they are too indifferent to care. With or without, there is no exit from this cage. That they know.

Hunger: The daily alarm sounds. To them, the noises around change. An alarm indicates an emergency, an urgence. It's the same noise every time the torture begins. Penderecki's Threnody for the Victims of Hiroshima. They will never know or understand its significance. They are in no urgence. However, the sadists are in a hurry. They have such a short time to enjoy the fruits of their labor, after all.

Hunger: One by one animals and worse things begin pouring in. They have sharp things, heavy things, and sometimes just the dirt between their fingernails. Each one identified by the kind of pain it causes. Both the tool and the animal that holds it.

Hunger: The ferret isn't among them. The ultimate predator has long had its share. Only scavengers roam now, picking every bone clean until some more hideous flesh grows over it the next day. Day by day, for which the victims never knew what to call.

Hunger: FRI 08 APR 22 0200R.

Hunger: Cruz' place. Baltimore, MD.

Hunger: Welcome to your new life. This is it. You finally have everything you could have ever wanted.

Hunger: You got your flatscreen, your pills, your couch and with no rent to boot. You had to cash out on something after that medical severance hit. And at this age, a trailer was rather unbearable. This house will do. Small, stinking, but yours.

Hunger: Day in, day out, pills, coffee, TV. Back when you were young and Black America was actually headed somewhere, TV was considered mind poison. The retard box. White mans circus. Its victims were the same as crackheads, just more polite and less aggressive. However, significantly more docile. It was yet another white mans trick to kneecap your advance, et caetera… That's old hat by now.

Hunger: People don't even watch TV anymore. They watch straight Internet. You got Netflix, and whatever they stock on it. If TV was crack, this has got to be lobotomy. And you happily bought into it, because, why the hell not? Your eye isn't coming back thanks to those incompetent idiots, and the rest of your head might as well be gone along with it. Now you're a pirate, at least on the outside.

Hunger: You remember back when your mama used to spend days in front of the screen. Between hustling and doing god knows what to feed the family in those long years. You thought your dad would eventually come back and take the reins, but it was just dozens of boyfriends. In the meanwhile, the TV stayed the same. Open. Crackling with useless noise and image, and information so banal it does not deserve being called information. Distracting, forever.

Hunger: …You get it now. You understand why she, bless her soul, zoned out to this thing for days at a time. It takes away the reason to think, and replaces it with smiles and flowers and other sweet things. That's partly why it helped. The other part being the fact that you honestly can not do much but sulk while on opioids. They trap you in your mind, but it's okay when your mind is all cotton candy and hugs from the universe. The TV up front keeps the mind stimulated while you enjoy the sinking feeling and the butterflies. Why this, over several crying Black kids with no apparent future, and the life of an abandoned woman? The answer is obvious.

Hunger: Maybe your mother was high on this thing at some point, now that you notice. Diabetes and stroke go a much longer way towards culling your race than drugs ever could, anyway. She has nothing to worry about now. You on the other hand, as a living person, still do.

Hunger: A whole lot of doing nothing, but didn't humanity as a whole do this exact thing for aeons, and even more so right now? Humans are expert at the act of unlimited homeostasis. In Europe, they have entire societies constructed around the idea that if you can do nothing, you should still be able to live until you die on your own. At least when the last telomere grows into a midget and the reaper begins sharpening his scythe. With enough thinking, you can even convince yourself that you're good at being a human being by mastering the art of doing nothing, the art all of your ancestors and your descendants will practice. For now, it's easier while you are still in the man-made Elysium.

Hunger: At least until this damn loading screen goes away and the Percocet starts taking its hold. In the meantime, what's on your mind? If anything at all. Possibly something related to the fact that your existence is dedicated to a much different purpose than everyone else?

Hunger: Maybe trying to fix this stupid thing?

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: What else is there to do, other than try and get this damn thing working? It's not like I was planning on doing much else, was there? Then I get to do nothing, like I have so many times before.

Hunger: You press a button on the remote.

Hunger: You picked up Hannibal on Netflix. You're only on Episode 2. Stuck, more like.

Hunger: Hannibal: “It wasn't the act of killing Hobbs that got you down, was it? Did you really feel so bad because killing him felt so good?”

Hunger: Will: “I liked killing Hobbs.”

Hunger: Hannibal: “Killing must feel good to God, too. He does it all the time, and are we not created in His image?”

Hunger: Will: “Depends who you ask.”

Hunger: He’s saying that if humans were created in God’s image, and God causes death all the time, then maybe the urge to kill is part of human nature too. It fits Hannibal since he tends to look at morality as something to analyze rather than simply accept. He talks about murder in such a calm, almost intellectual way, making it sound like a philosophical question instead of something obviously horrific.

Hunger: And that's where it loses you, out of all the people who watched it. Obviously these screenwriters and philosophers have not the closest idea.

Hunger: It won't load further no matter what you do. What now?

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: Can I try and turn it off? I'm not trying to watch anything if it's going to keep looping like this.

Hunger: Sure. After trying again, it refuses to load.

Hunger: As the Percocet begins working, all of it loses the little meaning it had in the first place, anyways…

Hunger: TUE 14 MAR 23 1100A.

Hunger: CERN Experiment Hall "BAST-2", Prévessin-Moëns, Switzerland.

Hunger: It took some convincing to the commitee to let them keep the collider open for another few years in order to finish the second stage of the experiment with upgraded equipment. You're surrounded by hundreds of millions of dollars, paid gratefully by they who can see the glory of the field you're leading, and your brilliance.

Hunger: Four big years inbetween the closure and the jump to HiLumi LHC. It will take a while before it is complete and operational. You'll be long gone by then. In the meantime, you can only imagine how many books, articles, conferences and collaborations you'll get under your belt. A great career awaits, if only you could…

Hunger: One of the assistants mutter something.

Hunger: "Blooming détecté dans l'octant 4… ah va te faire foutre, gros batard." - "Vraiment ? Encore ?"

Hunger: They turn towards you, expecting to find a solution. You were equally clueless when you were only twenty eight.

Hunger: Of course, this time everyone isn't being rushed outside in a hurry beneath blaring sirens. Every system of the circle underwent a radiation proofing upgrade after the last time as a part of the second stage of the experiment. Despite the emotional weight of several Chernobyl's happening in there at the moment you're all completely fine, and the counter barely registers a single roentgen per minute.

Hunger: It presents a "great filter" problem where further manipulation of the Bast particle is impossible without resulting in highly destructive amounts of radiation. Sidestepping this issue will open up an unknown multitude of avenues in further research of the Bast particle, be it theoretical or applied. The problem is, it's not that simple. You feel like Wright brothers trying to figure out the right geometry a wing must have in order to generate drag. Perhaps in the future, people will look back at you and think you were actually kind of stupid for not cracking it on the first day. It's not what it seems.

Hunger: Every day you get closer to controlling the "bloom", finding a way to manipulate it. But it's always no cigar. No matter what you do, the thing just won't cooperate with you. Whatever lever you play around with seems to be a suggestion to this invisible, cold sun. It disappears only when you power off and go away. It's a very stubborn thing, even though it only comes into existence around you. Like a jilted lover.

Hunger: In the meantime, what do you think could be the cause to this phenomenon?

SDUDM George E. Jones: I'm quantum entangled with this electron microscopic piece of shit and I am it and it is me. It's stuck on me like a bad smell.

Hunger: It doesn't work. No matter what you do, it simply does not obey your commands. You feel as if its staring back at you through its veil of un-light, laughing and jeering at your inability to understand it. However, you're marching closer towards your goal. One step at a time. One day, you will be able to control the bloom. You're sure of it.

Dr. Gene Lewiston: "Quit messin' around Jones. I thought you were grown up and man enough to do this on your own, now that I'm gone. Someone needs to finish the job. Catch that little mouse, end the game."

Hunger: He puts his hands on the table and leans on it, looking at you past the research assistants. He has a hopeless frown on his face.

Hunger: You didn't realize he was here at all. Come to think of it, when did he grow whiskers and cat ears?

Hunger: TUE 14 MAR 23 0110R.

Hunger: Jones' place, Baltimore, MD.

Hunger: Another delusion. You keep losing yourself in these often. It feels exactly like you're back there in Switzerland, figuring out the mysteries of the universe. Or just hints of it. It all feels so damn real, and tactile. Who dreams of a phone screen and actually gets to use the phone?

Hunger: Besides that, you know damn well you haven't figured out a thing yet. You didn't even scratch the surface of the thing called the universe, or the Bast particle. If only the experiments were possible to replicate in some way, then the world would see. But for now, it's just you.

Hunger: Hell, you don't even have your pants on right now. Just a boxer and your stained t-shirt.

Bast: "Mgaaooww."

Hunger: She's gotten so big over the past few years. Partly due to exterminating everything that moves in your filthy, disorganized apartment. You don't really know what she wants from you at the moment, but it's probably food or attention, or both.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Shit, dozed off while trying to get myself to actually make the decision to get rid of some of this shit, huh Bast?"

Hunger: You have a feeling that arguing with a cat won't get you too far…

Hunger: Preloading next scene, switch in 5 seconds.

Hunger: SAT 15 FEB 24 2010R.

Hunger: Club Charles Bar, Baltimore, MD.

Matthew Sartore: "Just like old times huh?"

Hunger: It is. You met in similar circumstances, in a shady punk joint just like this one. Things were much more raw back then, definitely a few steps behind of here and now. Namely, it doesn't smell like urine here.

Matthew Sartore: Your occupation being in tangent with the raw reality of violence changes you no matter what you'd like to think. You yourself as an example, but him too, making a living off of people who are mostly completely guilty but slip through the cracks.

Matthew Sartore: How you came to love him, once, is a question up in the air. He's actually far off from the kind of person you used to be, even back then. For him, this job has a connotation of being a personal thing against society, on top of being extremely lucrative. He believes that criminals do really need representation, because the system is first and foremost responsible for the crimes they undertake. A return-to-sender move if you will.

Hunger: Where would he return you to if he found out what you moonlight as, is another question up in the air.

Hunger: It's been a long time since you had a chance to go out together. You couldn't actually agree on where to go, but returning to the roots was a good middle ground in absence of a decision.

Matthew Sartore: "You remember that time you slipped on the dance floor and almost hit your head? When I caught you? Gosh, what was the name of that place again?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Bloody Mary. Couldn't figure out a better name for the life of them."

Matthew Sartore: He goes quiet for a moment and gives you a strange look. You read the microexpression through his relaxed face. It's the kind of gaze you'd give to a suspicious stranger who just approached you for money. Then he wipes his forehead with his jacket arm.

Matthew Sartore: He goes back to his drink, quiet. You can tell that he feels like something is up with you. Has been up for a long time.

Hunger: After all, he's right. He just doesn't know that he is yet. That being said, when do you plan to break out to him that you're cheating on him with a senior citizen?

Hunger: SUN 7 JAN 24 1930R.

Hunger: Sajdak's place, Baltimore, MD.

Hunger: The old man's still got it. What a miracle of science, that he still has it.

Hunger: Even though his stamina is less for obvious reasons, it still feels better. First of all, it's wrong. That automatically makes it more fun, no matter how pure of a person you are. Second of all, he gets it, things that Matt could never.

Hunger: In fact, he makes Matt seem like a house pet rather than a man. Sajdak is the real thing. So are you. You are those people, and no matter how hard you deny the fact it still won't stop feeling good in a naughty way. A step up from the rest. You will never stop being those people, inadvertently at the top of the world, paying in blood for the comfort of the rest.

Michael Sajdak: Despite having done well, he stares absently at the ceiling with a blank face.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I turn on my side. "What?"

Michael Sajdak: "I don't think romance is really on the cards for us. It makes me feel bad about all this, sometimes."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "It's been three years since we met. You're saying this now, because…?"

Michael Sajdak: "I just occasionally wonder if I'm exploiting you with all this. That's all."

Hunger: It's never not-awkward with the old man, but he is familiar. He's the last familiar thing in a world that rapidly swirled down the sink and flushed away. Your world. His world.

Hunger: Any kind of genuine emotional stimulation is welcome in a life this fucked up, no matter the circumstance. And that's why things between you and Matt will never be the same again.

Matthew Sartore: He clears his throat and signals the bartender to bring out the payment terminal.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I sigh, then sip my Pornstar Martini.

Matthew Sartore: He taps his phone against the mobile POS terminal. The bartender nods and rips off the receipt, which he promptly refuses.

Matthew Sartore: He turns towards you. "Come on, let's get outta here. I think I'm done bar crawling for the night."

SA Chris K. Prower: WED 10 DEC 25 2130R.

SA Chris K. Prower: Prower's place, Baltimore, MD.

SA Chris K. Prower: The few hours a day you get to spend in your natural habitat are always welcome, despite never using it for good nowadays.

SA Chris K. Prower: Making things on the computer is who you truly are. No matter how many layers of "serious fed" you attempt to put on, at the end of the day, this is it. Back then it was a matter of life and death, the difference between making it or not making it out there. Right now, it's a matter of remembering the sweet moments back when you were alive, now that you're already dead.

SA Chris K. Prower: The experts claim that you're not actually supposed to become deadened to the matter of fact, but to start tolerating it. In the majority of cases that require psychiatric intervention, because the traumatic event was so powerful and overwhelming, the actual un-stated goal of the program is a little secret between the patient and the doctor. Not so dissimilar from hospitals offering to inject a lot of morphine into the comatose and writing them off, entirely off the books but a welcome plea deal.

SA Chris K. Prower: To tolerate what's actually happening to you, and what happened to those people, the part you took in it, is an idea made in such offensively poor taste that it feels like repeating a rape joke to your female boss face-to-face. True terror like what you experienced is so pure in its malice that coexisting with it inside of your head is an objectively worse idea than killing yourself. There will be no tolerance or healing for you, only forgetting, and wherever you possibly can, ignoring it.

SA Chris K. Prower: Everyone else that says otherwise is a clueless, mouth-breathing retard. That you're sure of. They can go to their "healing retreats" and lose their money if they want, but you're not one of them.

SA Chris K. Prower: The battlestation is one place you can forget just about anything. That's why you always keep coming back to it, no matter how big of a boy you have become. Many people do drugs and drink to make "it" go away, but you're into the idea of shaping morbid effigies of your past for others to enjoy. But it's kind of hard to make a game from scratch, so god bless modders and the idea of modding.

SA Chris K. Prower: It's the same kind of art that Harris & Klebold taught to the world, and now it's your turn to master it. One day the truth of what happened in Lake Braddock will come to light in its most brutal form, but for now you're concerned with getting some more practice with level creation and finishing easier projects.

SA Chris K. Prower: You don't know what exactly broke the world so hard that there are people out there who like what you do, but they are a good source of motivation. It's morbid, yet extraordinarily satisfying that someone actually wants to know the truth, real truth of what happened in there. They just don't understand what they are trying to vocalize yet, instead falling back to the animal grunts of glorifying violence and poorly-written manifestos. They want to know how Lake Braddock happened, just like how Utoya and El Paso went.

SA Chris K. Prower: You're not trying to make another sensation piece or to troll people like them. You're different. You're the artist, and the development kit is your canvas. With enough strokes, the masterwork will come to being. You know what they actually want, now that you know you serve the very purpose of bringing it about. They want to hear the last of the church bells chiming wildly before the sad, depressing lives they must take part in come crashing down in a glorious display of natural violence. It happened momentarily in New Zealand six years ago so hard that they had to re-shape the internet safety doctrine of the whole world.

SA Chris K. Prower: You finish uploading the audio track on the level and save one last time. Your last Bonelab project did some thousand numbers before being wiped off the site, but who is a sweaty moderator compared to an ex-NSA OPSEC god? How innocent of them to think that would stop you.

SA Chris K. Prower: You adjust your headset and power it on. Are you ready to play?

SA Chris K. Prower: Always.

Hunger: The game loads. Your level compiles properly. You take your controllers and feel the appropriate mindset coming back to you as you prepare to do what must be done.

SA Chris K. Prower: And that's it, for now! Wasn't that awesome?

SA Chris K. Prower: It feels right. I don't know if it feels "good". I don't know if I can feel "good" anymore. But it feels right.

Hunger: Of course, it's not enough. You're not good enough for now, but that's okay. One step at a time, one foot ahead of the other, steadily moving forward. One day they will know.

Hunger: TUE 24 FEB 26 1800N.

Hunger: Iberostar Anthelia, Room 212, Santa Cruz de Tenerife, Spain.

Hunger: White waves fold and softly crash on top of one other as if unperturbed, and such animation was part of their being instead of the afterthought of an awesome push by an external force, too difficult to determine exactly what, the seabed beneath them or the Moon hanging above.

Hunger: To lovers on their honeymoon it would be the perfect opportunity to conceive. To the poet a vast body of inspiration from which words erupt. To the soldier a beachhead to overcome, like those red ones you were so concerned with when you were too young. To the colonial it was the beginning of a new life with many new slaves. To you, it's simply nothing.

Hunger: There are a lot of sick days to burn through before you're out of comission for good, but not enough interesting places in the world to visit. Your interest isn't even out there anyway, but back home in your bed, sunken deep into the dreamless sleep behind your eyes. Life is a bad movie too close to its end, and you're looking forward to leaving the theatre at last.

Hunger: Seagulls uninterested in their frail and much more colorful distant relatives dive and rise for scraps of food. The others don't have to be in such a hurry. They come in many amazing shapes and colors, and their stomachs only take small bugs and seeds. In their carefully placed niche they are beautifully blessed, unbothered and flourishing. Everything you are not.

Hunger: You wonder if those monks you read about came here, would they still want to be reborn as a flower? In their harsh environment nothing was more beautiful and untouchable than the Holy Lotus. Here, there are plenty of those kinds of things, and they seem in perfect harmony with eachother. Maybe it's the reason why their ideas are fundamentally incompatible with your school of thought, even after years of studying them. Life put you ahead of the monks in orange, yet not ahead of these small birds. Amusing.

Hunger: But they too are wonderfully blessed in their ignorance. They think there is anywhere to go after the last stop. They don't know it's the terminus, and everyone gets off. Even if they don't want to. Everyone you have ever killed, yourself, these little birds and those pretty little flowers. It's all going away soon.

Hunger: However, if that's the case, then why is she still around?

Mariam Helena Khoury: She's sitting on the bed, waiting for you to address her.

Michael Sajdak: "You're going to hate me no matter what I say to try and apologize for myself. So I guess I'll just say nothing at all."

Mariam Helena Khoury: "I'm past that. Trust me."

Michael Sajdak: I just shrug. "I'd have thought it'd be the one I killed haunting me, not you."

Mariam Helena Khoury: "That's funny. My purpose is to comfort you, not dig deeper into your guilt."

Mariam Helena Khoury: "You've already hit the rock bottom in that."

Mariam Helena Khoury: "Enough. Do you remember how you actually ended up here?"

Hunger: In the blink of an eye, she appears behind you and puts her hand on your shoulder. As soon as she does…

Hunger: …You begin to recall the events of last week.

Hunger: FRI 20 FEB 26 2100B.

Hunger: 1153 Ndima Street, Nyanga, Cape Town, South Africa.

Hunger: The insects around scream into the night. A cloud of mosquitoes hang overhead around the LED light strung from the branch of a tree. Below, two men sit at a table, surrounded by many others.

Hunger: Night used to be horrifying in Africa. Now, the black man sees it as the continuation of his open-air home around the clock. His birthright, regained, and (mostly) liberated from the terrifying side of nature.

Hunger: Lions will not pounce on you and alligators wont drag you into the shallows here, but you're surrounded by much worse things. Creatures with actual, elective bloodlust rather than those who are motivated by hunger. Screaming, horrible creatures.

Hunger: They want to see you die for the sake of seeing you die.

Hunger: "FOCK YOU MOTHERFUCKER! TWENTY ON THE WHITE BOY! FUCK YOU! BASTARD!"

Hunger: The man across you is dead calm. He's sweaty, like you. It's a question of whose eyes are emptier.

Hunger: Him or yours?

'Twisted Nerve': He doesn't say a word. He's just looking you straight in the eyes, not moving a muscle.

'Twisted Nerve': "You should have stayed back home with your family."

Hunger: The ringleader yells something you can't understand. The crowd goes quiet. He takes out a .38 Special revolver from his coat and inserts one cartridge into the cylinder. He spins the cylinder once, as fast as possible, and flicks it back into position. Then, he places it on the table and spins it around…

Hunger: "THE AMERICAN OOORRR TWISTED NE-NE-NE-NEEEERRVEEE!!?"

Hunger: The crowd goes "wooh" and claps sporadically. Finally, the spinning gun comes to a halt. The barrel is pointing at…

Hunger: 1: Sajdak - 2: Twisted Nerve

Mariam Helena Khoury: 1

Hunger: The gun is picked up from the table and pressed against the temple.

'Twisted Nerve': A d6 will determine their fate. On a 1, the contestant dies. Time to throw.

Michael Sajdak: "Ahaha. Y'know, I watched a movie about this once."

Michael Sajdak: 5

Hunger: Click. His turn.

'Twisted Nerve': He holds his breath.

'Twisted Nerve': 2

'Twisted Nerve': He puts the gun back on the table and slides it to you.

'Twisted Nerve': Valid results are: 1, 3, 4

Michael Sajdak: I put it to my head and fire.

Michael Sajdak: 3

'Twisted Nerve': His turn.

'Twisted Nerve': He takes the gun.

'Twisted Nerve': He just smiles at you.

'Twisted Nerve': Click.

'Twisted Nerve': The gun doesn't fire.

'Twisted Nerve': Your turn.

'Twisted Nerve': "This won't happen in your Hollywood movies white boy."

Michael Sajdak: "It's looking bad for me, now, isn't it?"

Michael Sajdak: 6

Hunger: Click. The gun doesn't fire. The indexing skipped the loaded chamber over.

Hunger: You put the gun back on the table and slide it towards him. He picks it up and looks at it for a second.

'Twisted Nerve': He puts the gun against his head. You see a smirk forming on his face. He clicks his tongue three times in disapproval.

'Twisted Nerve': "YOU CHEATING MOTHERFOCKER! FOCK YOU!"

'Twisted Nerve': He takes the cylinder to the previous chamber and pulls the trigger in an instant. The gun goes off directly in front of your face. You feel the heat of the muzzle blast.

'Twisted Nerve': Condition Changes Departed

'Twisted Nerve': In a moment, instead of saying bye to this world, you see and hear the man falling behind on his stool dead to a small entry wound in the eye. Someone behind you also falls, clutching on his chest. The gun is on the table laid next to his severed index finger, blown up from the middle but still in a single piece.

'Twisted Nerve': As soon as he pulled the trigger, the firing pin of the gun flew backwards into his eyeball directly into his brain, killing him instantly. The bullet, flying out and away from the barrel after rupturing it halfway, hit the man behind you in the heart. Both were dead before they fell on the ground. You, on the other hand, just some tinnitus.

Hunger: UMTHAKATHI!!! IGQWIRHA!!!

Hunger: The crowd around you erupts in a panic. They begin screaming like ferals and running towards any direction without even hanging onto their belongings. Within a few seconds, they are gone as if they weren't ever here. Around you, two dead bodies and some dollar bills on the floor.

Hunger: The said bills barely add up to 200$. What were you attempting to prove by doing this, again?

Michael Sajdak: That this confrontation with Baast and Conradin and whatever comes after that is really my ultimate purpose, my Svadharma. That I can't just take the easy way out of this.

Mariam Helena Khoury: "If that wasn't enough proof, I don't know what will be. You should have taken that kid's advice seriously. Hold your loved ones while you still can."

Michael Sajdak: "How's the afterlife?"

Hunger: When you turn your head, she's not there anymore. You go back out on the terrace to watch the sunset in solitude.

Hunger: SAT 19 SEP 26 1000R.

Hunger: STL Intl., T1 Parking, St. Louis, MO.

Hunger: The most diligent of the group land in St. Louis by 10 AM. They had the advantage of being able to confirm the request with eachother and book the earliest flight from Southwest airlines.

Hunger: The other two will be here by 1400R on the next scheduled flight. It leaves you with enough time to conduct a preliminary investigation and to check into a motel, unless you want to sleep the night in the airport terminal.

Hunger: St. Louis comes into view pretty gradually as the plane gets closer to the city. It’s mostly flat and spread out, with highways, neighborhoods, rail lines, and older industrial areas stretching in every direction. The skyline isn’t huge compared with places like New York or Chicago, but downtown stands out once you get close. The Gateway Arch is the obvious landmark, rising above everything around it and making it pretty easy to tell where you are. The “Gateway to the West" marks the city’s role as a major starting point for westward expansion and movement across the United States.

Hunger: From the plane, the city has a very different feel from Baltimore. It looks more open and less dense, with older brick neighborhoods mixed with newer buildings and wide roads. If the weather is clear, you can see the Mississippi and parts of Illinois beyond it. As the plane descends into STL, downtown and the Arch become more prominent, giving you that first real sense that you've arrived in St. Louis.

Hunger: None of you have a particular association with St. Louis and don't know much about it besides checking the addresses for the relevant federal buildings. Most of the business is held downtown at the Robert A. Young Federal Building.

Hunger: You also make a mental note to try out toasted ravioli before you depart.

Hunger: The three of you make it to the rental Hyundai in the parking lot. You can inform the other two to join you elsewhere, wherever you wish them to.

SA Chris K. Prower: Prower is looking at his phone. Flicking around in some chat app. "We gotta share this rental? I'll ride in the back."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm just smoking a cigarette, waiting for the driver to… pop the locks so that we can get a move on. I never got around to quit.

Hunger: In case you need a refresher, you can find it in the Journals section in your Handouts. IC3 Tip.

Michael Sajdak: "You two look a lot more mean nowadays. I'm glad. Makes me feel less bad about this."

SA Chris K. Prower: Prower looks up at them. "Neither of you want to drive? I'm not driving." He reaches into the wheel well and grabs the key.

Hunger: Prower. Roll Alertness.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Thanks." I'll put the cigarette out on my sole.

Michael Sajdak: "Then I'll drive."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Think it's worth it to get another rental yet?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Forget about it. This small talk's killing me."

SA Chris K. Prower: SA Chris K. Prower rolls Success -> 27

Hunger: In a momentary glimpse, you catch a feminine figure looking at you through binoculars from about 300 meters away.

A Woman (1): Condition Changes Focusing

Hunger: She immediately gets back into her car and floors the pedal on reverse. Looks like it was on idle. You hear a distant tire screech as she races away.

A Woman (1): Condition Changes Focusing

SA Chris K. Prower: Prower holds the keys in his hand. "You see that?"

Hunger: Matter of fact, they did not.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "What?"

SA Chris K. Prower: "I dunno, I think we're being watched. I saw someone." He shakes his head. "It must just be a precaution they're taking. Here, someone take the keys and drive."

Hunger: In any case, it's time to pick up the pace with the investigation.

Hunger: Preloading next scene. Switch in 5 seconds.

Hunger: SAT 19 SEP 26 1030R.

Hunger: Downtown St. Louis, MO.

Hunger: Following a 16-mile drive, you're finally close enough to see the true scale of the Arch. You may begin acting.

Hunger: George and Cruz will be able to participate at 1600R.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I think the first appropriate move is to book the rooms. Not that we can do more than one thing at a time unless we're taking a cab.

Hunger: Sure, if you're planning to stay here for more than a day. It will take you an hour to sort it out.

Hunger: 1130R.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We should drive by Jarnigan's place.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Scope it out before the rest get here.

Hunger: This will take 60+d30 minutes.

Hunger: 1

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Alright hold on now.

SA Chris K. Prower: Does he have a Facebook?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I think we're actually going to want to split so as not to take all day doing stuff, if anyone's got other ideas.

Hunger: You can dig into Lee Jarnigan's social media with no roll.

Hunger: Prower will do it at the motel as the other two are going.

Hunger: Social Media: Lee Jarnigan’s social media presence shows a shabby, bearded white man in his late thirties who seems to do nothing but take party photos and post angrily about political causes at all hours of the day. It would be stunning for him to have time for a job.

Hunger: Social Media (Deep dive): Jarnigan's digital footprint, like anyone elses, can easily be scrutinized by someone at your access level. Although the idea is tempting, you can more or less expect what to find there. On the other hand, his self-admitted attempt to scrub his trail could lead to more interesting results, revealed by a Computer Science roll.

Hunger: With your skill it should be sorted out by the other two show up.

SA Chris K. Prower: SA Chris K. Prower rolls Failure -> 84

SA Chris K. Prower: Hm. His politics are very brave, actually…

Hunger: You will have to lag the rest by an hour. Doesn't matter, it will still be afternoon.

Hunger: Online Trace (Computer Science): You gain remote access to the computer that received the IC3 tip. In this tip line database alone, you have access to information regarding a widespread and international plagiarism enterprise organized by Jarnigan under the alias ScribeLife420. He offers bespoke assignments catered to whatever subject a student may need, including special packages where the plagiarist consults with the student to imitate their writing style. Services include specific grade targeting in situations where an “A” would be too conspicuous. Jarnigan is the only person employed by the enterprise. Since 2006, he has been responsible for thousands of cases of academic fraud.

Hunger: If those cases were actually pursued (unlikely), universities' academic dishonesty policies would cause a loss of accreditation large enough to provoke international news coverage.

Hunger: How ironic is it that you are learning all of this from unsatisfied customers, and no one bothered putting the pieces of the puzzle together before. It was always right in front of their eyes!

Hunger: Sartore, what do you do after scoping out Jarnigan?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I don't know. Boba?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Does Sajdak have any ideas?

Hunger: You will have around 2 hours before the rest come and 3 until you can act as a team.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I don't think we're really in a hurry for daylight. The dark'll be useful in case something happens."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Home security cameras and all that."

SA Chris K. Prower: "I've come to the conclusion that this guy is a loser. I don't think he'll give us any trouble. He'll probably fold as soon as he sees us on his doorstep."

Hunger: In any case. This doesn't warrant any kind of roll, the Jarnigan household is your run of the mill McMansion. The neighbourhood is nice. You'll have to come back here and bear the hour long back and forth again, but this is as much as you get from a quick driveby.

Hunger: There were exterior wi-fi cameras but are you really here to hurt him?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Yet to be decided.

Hunger: Other skills could aid you in your research.

Hunger: Sajdak lacks any kind of access but you can get him into places, and he can help you sort things out. Likewise he can ask for you to drag him to places as well.

SA Chris K. Prower: It's a bad idea to fuck with any of the cameras. This guy is only a threat if we give him an in to fuck with us, legally.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: How about a SEARCH from the passenger seat as we slowly roll by? Can we see through the windows?

Hunger: Hit it. Public.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 97

Hunger: All the windows are draped over with blackout curtains. However, they are not barred or anything. Whatever is going on in there is not… serious per se.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm just crossing my Ts and dotting my Is.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: This place is suburban, right?

Michael Sajdak: This really seems like a situation where we could just knock on the door and intimidate the guy until he tells us whatever we want.

Hunger: Yes.

Hunger: If that's what your heart tells you.

Michael Sajdak: Unless someone stops me that's what I'm gonna do, yep.

Hunger: Alone here and now?

SA Chris K. Prower: We should do it together, but yes.

Michael Sajdak: With Prower and Sartore of course.

SA Chris K. Prower: Agents never go alone. Aren't we professionals?

Hunger: Reminder that you're just "some guy" now. You can not legally question people, especially regarding something that needs an active TS-SCI access in order to be read.

Hunger: Same with Cruz.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I was about to raise my hand, but… sure.

SA Chris K. Prower: But does he know that?

Hunger: If you're out of ideas we are skipping ahead to when they show up.

Hunger: There is still stuff to be dug out, you are just being too blunt.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'd check his criminal records when we get back into town.

Michael Sajdak: Then I guess we'll bide our time for now.

Hunger: Of course. This will take a HUMINT and a Bureucracy roll. Who rolls which?

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Failure -> 68

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Was it one each?

Hunger: Sajdak hogged both. You too have an opportunity since you are working together.

Hunger: Hit Accounting and Law.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 79

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Success -> 16

Hunger: Let's start with the successes.

Hunger: Background Check (Cursory / HUMINT): Jarnigan is a graduate of Parkway West High School in St. Louis, Missouri. He attended UMSL until 2003, finishing with a bachelor's degree in creative writing. He was accepted to the MFA writing program at Washington University in St. Louis under a fellowship, but he dropped out of the program in late 2004 after his parents died in a car accident. Jarnigan lives in the childhood home he inherited in Ballwin, Missouri

Hunger: His address is a 30 minute drive from downtown.

Hunger: Background Check (Deep dive): There's a lot to scrutinize about any college student, all it takes is a couple hours of digging. You can reasonably find more about his short-lived school life with Bureucracy. This will take at least four hours.

Hunger: With your failure, it will take six.

Hunger: Proceed?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Between the two?

Hunger: You will have to work uninterrupted until 7PM.

Michael Sajdak: We clearly need some leverage to get anything out of this guy so let's do it.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Yup.

Hunger: As you're both occupied, the rest of the team checks into the motel at St. Louis. Do they wait for Prower?

Hunger: Your silence is a yes.

Hunger: 1700R.

Hunger: Jones, Cruz and Prower may act. The other two are occupied.

Hunger: Sartore.

Hunger: Your Accounting failure will also have you work as long as Sajdak does.

Hunger: Tax Records (Accounting): Since 2006, his income has been listed as coming from winnings at local riverboat gambling and reservation casinos across the border in Arkansas. Conveniently it always puts him in a few thousand dollars in the green after paying the property taxes of the house he occupies.

Hunger: Bullshit. Anyone with two brain cells can see past this story. It's either a miracle that the IRS hasn't noticed the finagling (unlikely) or that Jarnigan maintains an exceedingly humble lifestyle despite his sharp edge in effort to revenue ratio from his day-job.

Hunger: Tax Records (Deep dive): Within this practice it's unlikely that a single complaint hasn't been lodged against him for the past twenty years. Digital and physical records at Thomas F. Eagleton Courthouse may prove useful, but committing towards this using Law will consume the rest of the day.

Hunger: That's right. If you go ahead with this, you'll have to work until midnight.

Hunger: Proceed?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Yeah, I'll do it.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Not a big deal.

Hunger: You made a good decision in checking in a motel.

Hunger: Jones, Cruz, public INT roll each.

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls Failure -> 52

Darius J. Cruz: Darius J. Cruz rolls Failure -> 80

Hunger: You feel like you're missing a huge elephant in the room.

Hunger: In the meantime, do you have anything to do?

SDUDM George E. Jones: Accomodation in place…. briefing, sitrep……

SDUDM George E. Jones: What date was it today again?

SA Chris K. Prower: The 19th

Hunger: 19 SEP 26 1700R.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Why are the victim phone numbers and perp phone numbers the same?

Hunger: He self reported.

SA Chris K. Prower: Can I check the car for trackers?

SDUDM George E. Jones: And the link?

Hunger: The link leads to the screenshots.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Is the link censored on our end?

SDUDM George E. Jones: Right.

Hunger: Prower, blind Mechanics roll.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: The car's definitely bugged and tracked, I can help search it when I'm off.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Fuck all that - has Prower tried to check into Conrad's records at Duke?

Hunger: Does the car have a tracker? OF COURSE IT FUCKING DOES! IT'S A RENTAL!

SDUDM George E. Jones: Look at that, 121, how quaint.

Hunger: The rental company knows where you are at this exact second.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: How about mics.

Hunger: Checking into the records at Duke will need a subpoena and to be physically connected to their intranet. That is no joke.

Hunger: You don't see evidence of foul play in the car. Only whatever the rental company installed.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Where'd Jarnigan actually go to school? Not sure if we've been over that.

SDUDM George E. Jones: That's some bullshit. I thought he was good at computers and could phish them or something… Can we do a trace on the IP?

Hunger: Scroll up.

Hunger: Actually, let's go through the Bureucracy and Law successes.

Hunger: FYI, you have access to correspondence between the school and other federal legal entities. Usually there is plenty.

Hunger: Apart from that only the IRS DRT network can casually frolick in university records for tax purposes. But none of you really have access to that, not at the moment at least.

SDUDM George E. Jones: We got an Alan Rapp and Terry Smedley too.

Hunger: Let's go through those two as I fix this technical error.

Hunger: Which one first?

SDUDM George E. Jones: The super-creepy fuck, Alan.

Hunger: Since he is a federal employee, you can access a limited range of information about Rapp.

Hunger: Alan Rapp's application excerpt makes him sound dangerously insane. That appears to be why he is being hired. Alan Rapp is a white Texas native born in 2000. He graduated from high school in Austin in 2018. He has neither work history nor higher education, but his contact information is up to date and accurate.

Hunger: Alan Rapp is either an irony-poisoned Internet troll, looking to clog the wheels of bureaucracy, or a budding serial killer. Either way, this application should have probably led to his arrest or at the very least have been thrown away. Instead, Conradin is paying his own money to make sure he can hire Rapp as a custodian.

Hunger: Further information regarding Rapp's employment is classified.

Hunger: Let me rephrase on the "federal employee" aspect, he contracts under a security clearance which he himself does not have.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Any contact info?

Hunger: He's a subcontractor for a maintenance firm. Address is El Paso.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Maybe I could ask Julian to look into whatever the IRS has got Jarnigan, split the workload between him and Prower. And he's also got his whole rig to work with rather than a remote connection.

SDUDM George E. Jones: And the other guy?

Hunger: Just so you know, your whole day is consumed working on all this. You can act as a team next morning.

Hunger: Or push yourself and give Jarnigan a knock in the middle of the night.

SA Chris K. Prower: It probably wouldn't be hard to convince him with what we've got already.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Could I have rung Julian before getting to work on Jarnigan's criminal record? If that thing above is possible, that is.

SDUDM George E. Jones: ICE subcontractor working a clearence-required job with none himself. This might be reason enough for a subpoena or warrant.

Hunger: Sartore, you don't need to consume a bond, he has no record he is neither a felon or have served time.

Hunger: Jones, roll Law.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I meant getting our hands on the IRS DRT stuff.

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls Failure -> 39

Hunger: It's actually not clear whether he is working in a facility that requires a security clearance. It's just that his employment details fall underneath one.

Hunger: …It's messed up legal bullshit.

Hunger: You're beginning to see some trace of weirdness here.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Beginning" is an understatement.

Hunger: With that being said, Sajdak finds some important documents concerning ScribeLife420.

SDUDM George E. Jones: George is already mentally preparing a hitlist.

Hunger: Legal Cases (Law): Astonishing. For every practical purpose, Lee Jarnigan is a spotless and well-abiding taxpayer. No penalties, charges, felonies, anything. He could technically pass a security investigation.

Michael Sajdak: We really ought to hammer this guy for information as soon as we can and harassing him in his domicile in the middle of the night would probably do it. At the end of the day we know we can make his life difficult legally if he doesn't give us what we want.

Hunger: However, A single case, Perkins/Padulano v. Loyola University Chicago, has hits containing the phrase ScribeLife420. The case was a civil matter owing to the stripping of two Loyola alumni of degrees after the revelation of a cheating scandal. The jealous roommate of the girl named Perkins revealed to the school plagiarism task force hacked emails that proved Perkins negotiated to have her organic chemistry lab paper written by a professional service called ScribeLife Online Tutoring Services. When confronted, Perkins admitted getting the contact information of the service from Padulano, a sorority sister who graduated the previous year.

Hunger: Court records in this case are accessible owing to being linked to discovery in a RICO case titled State of Illinois v. Padulano, which is classified. ScribeLife420, whose identity was not discovered in the case, is a remarkable writer pursuing a meaningless career. The paper entered into evidence is a convincing, high-quality lab report that passes most plagiarism algorithms to the tune of 70% originality. The multiple works written for Padulano's academic fraud were in the field of art appreciation, and all earned high marks. Allegedly, some papers earned ScribeLife420 up to $5K a pop.

SA Chris K. Prower: I'm assuming this guy has absolutely no online footprint.

Hunger: Prower, you've seen it yourself, he's good at doing what he does.

Hunger: For all intents and purposes ScribeLife420 and Lee Jarnigan are seperate people- until MAGENTA GAMBLER saw through it.

Hunger: Sartore, do you have a bond that might have anything to do with WashU?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Maybe Julian again.

Hunger: This is a far shot. 1d2 for Luck. On a 2, it's your lucky day.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: 1

Hunger: He will ask around first thing tomorrow morning. It will also consume 1 Bond because it will have to do with some awkward conversations with people he hasn't connected with in years.

Hunger: Consume and proceed, or decline.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Proceed. Thanks, Jules.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Did Jones look into Smedley as well?

SDUDM George E. Jones: I've a hunch that Mister Scribelife is either already dead or soon to be so. It might be worthwhile to begin our nightly gangstalking activities as soon as possible.

SDUDM George E. Jones: I can assist with that if required.

SA Chris K. Prower: What have we got to lose, by seeing him?

Hunger: Let's backstep here. Smedley was looked into. We will have to make plans for what's next since the day is near over.

Hunger: The team reconvenes and shares the gathered information with eachother. What next?

SA Chris K. Prower: Has he posted at all on his social media recently?

SA Chris K. Prower: Now I'm worried that this guy is dead.

Hunger: Last post was this morning when you arrived.

Hunger: Inconsequential. Mad at the Iran affair.

Hunger: Terry Smedley. Right.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: This guy is thorough, he knows his shit. Without a warrant to show him, I'm not sure if we'll spook him with the mere fact that we know that he's the ScribeLife and that we might shit on several universities and possibly get him in trouble for accessory academic fraud, if that's a thing?

Hunger: You'll just have to find out. Any prosecution related to academic fraud is a hard sell. Everyone does it because school is bullshit.

Hunger: You can't access a lot of information about Smedley, but the little you get is enough to be interesting for the whole family.

Hunger: Terry Smedley has a job history as an experienced juvenile corrections officer. Smedley earned an associate's degree in criminal justice while doing a variety of youth detention-related jobs.

Michael Sajdak: Either way George raised a good point and I'm gonna volunteer to keep an eye out on Jarnigan's house through the night so we know he isn't about to get 121'ed.

Hunger: Most recently, he worked for the El Paso County Juvenile Detention Center. Not anymore. Googling Smedley is all it takes to learn what happened. In October 2019, he was recorded by a cellphone smuggled into the detention center. In the video, he throws a bucket of cold water on caged minors while screaming anti-Mexican bigotry, demanding they "clean the river smell off."

Hunger: Public outcry led to El Paso County "firing" Smedley the night of the video's release, an attempt to prevent riots. In reality, El Paso County merely "chose not to renew" Smedley's contract, neither filing nor enforcing any charges despite the clear evidence of wrongdoing. Smedley is free to get a job anywhere that will hire him, including doing the same thing as before: jailing and abusing children.

Hunger: Further information regarding Smedley's employment is classified.

Michael Sajdak: Let's say me and George do shifts in the car till the morning.

SDUDM George E. Jones: I'm down.

SDUDM George E. Jones: None of this helps solve the ultimate mystery of us being parasitized by a subatomic particle, but sure, let's entertain this wild goose chase.

Hunger: You'll be fatigued by next morning with 2d6 WP less.

Hunger: Go ahead.

SDUDM George E. Jones: 7

SDUDM George E. Jones: George, you fall asleep by the second shift.

Michael Sajdak: 9

SDUDM George E. Jones: I'm old as hell.

Hunger: Sajdak carries.

Hunger: You stay on stakeout the whole night. Jack shit happens. Lights come on, come out, as sun rises someone inside bothers moving the living room drape a bit and that's it.

Hunger: He didn't come out.

Hunger: Nor did anyone come in.

Hunger: 20 SEP 26 0900R.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Hmmmmm. Does the threat of his clients (some of which may be law graduates) getting discredited/their titles revoked if his work comes to public light mean anything?

SDUDM George E. Jones: This would probably have to be ALL his clients.

Hunger: Sartore, again, very hard sell. You need to build an actual case, and with what little you have, you would need real names and identities.

SA Chris K. Prower: We would probably need his black book for that.

SDUDM George E. Jones: For it to snowball into anything meaningful.

Hunger: Prower has the idea.

Hunger: That being said, Sartore. You're given the name of "Dr. Miranda Hogue". You can call her.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Sure.

SA Chris K. Prower: If you want to hold that over his head, you'd need his black book. We don't have it.

Darius J. Cruz: And how are we gonna get said "black book"?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: From him.

SA Chris K. Prower: It's probably inside his mcmansion.

SA Chris K. Prower: Either on his computer or old-school, on paper.

SDUDM George E. Jones: We're not. This is a bit of a waste of time that we have to entertain and if we're getting that black book - at that point we might as well interrogate him on the spot.

Hunger: We don't need to draw this conversation out. She's a professor of indigenous literature at WashU. She remembers Lee Jarnigan from when he was in the MFA program. She doesn't recall him fondly, a typical workshop rich kid who read too much David Foster Wallace. But then his parents died in that car accident. His attendance faded until he stopped showing up altogether. Fellow grad students heard a rumor about Lee starting up an essay mill, a plagiarism-for-profit operation in which academic cheaters trade crypto currency for forged homework. Hogue has no qualms about relaying this information to federal authorities.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Jones— that's what we're doing unless he cooperates. It's why I was thinking about nighttime and home security cameras.

Hunger: Are we moving on with Jarnigan?

Michael Sajdak: I'm guessing we have all the dirt we can on the guy and I don't wanna waste any more time.

SDUDM George E. Jones: He got spooked enough by Conradin that he practically revealed his powerword to us and is probably willing to cooperate if we outright tell him we're going to get that guy.

SA Chris K. Prower: A guy like this probably has tons of cameras. A doorbell cam, for sure.

Hunger: We're moving ahead.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Oh…. he's a libtard….

Hunger: Lee Jarnigan lives in a gentrified neighborhood in the Ballwin suburb of St. Louis. His lawn is finely maintained by a landscaping service whose sign is posted in his yard, alongside a graveyard of past election signs the owner never bothered to take down. Heavy drapes cover the many windows dotting the mildewing siding of a four-bedroom suburban mini-mansion.

Michael Sajdak: Do we have anything actionable from all this or are we just gonna be throwing fugazi at him?

Hunger: It's around…

SDUDM George E. Jones: We don't have to throw any fugazi at all, we just say "Hey, we got the tip. Help us," and he'll probably do so given that the shit was given out due to personal moral qualms.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We could try asking him nicely to help us in bringing Tillman's hellspawn to justice.

Hunger: 1030R.

Hunger: Everyone present?

SA Chris K. Prower: He sent out a tip. He can't be that tight-lipped, especially if we tell him WE received the tip.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm definitely going.

Hunger: Who knocks?

SDUDM George E. Jones: I do.

Hunger: Jones. You knock on the door.

Hunger: You hear coughing and "WAIT! WAIT! I'M COMING!" from the inside.

Lee Jarnigan: He opens the door and looks at the five of you.

Lee Jarnigan: "Oh shiet."

Lee Jarnigan: "Well."

Lee Jarnigan: "It was bound to happen."

Lee Jarnigan: "Am I being arrested?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Morning."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "No."

Lee Jarnigan: "What was I thinking… man. I'm not a fucking hacker, I swear."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Can we come inside?"

Lee Jarnigan: He thinks for a moment.

Lee Jarnigan: Lee Jarnigan rolls Success -> 9

Lee Jarnigan: "Alright."

Lee Jarnigan: He throws the door open for you. It reeks of weed inside.

SA Chris K. Prower: Everything a man could want.

Lee Jarnigan: "So."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "We got the tip."

Lee Jarnigan: "I imagine you did."

Lee Jarnigan: He tugs at his sweat-stained Metallica t-shirt.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "We're thinking of bagging the fucker."

Lee Jarnigan: "Uhm."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "I'm guessing you left most of the meat and potatoes OFF the tip?"

Lee Jarnigan: "You have what you have man."

Lee Jarnigan: "What else do you want?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Hey, man, you're the one who sent the tip about a FEDERAL EMPLOYEE hiring UNQUALIFIED PSYCHOPATHS to the FEDERAL AGENCY so I get that you're dumbfounded that this isn't a hitsquad to disappear you, but…"

Lee Jarnigan: "Woah, woah, relax, relax."

SDUDM George E. Jones: George looks at the weed and weed accessories.

Lee Jarnigan: "I let you in here, alright. I'm not resisting if you're gonna arrest me."

SA Chris K. Prower: "…We're not here to arrest you."

Michael Sajdak: "It's the Russian kid we're interested in. You said you know the guy's a wacko. Must be some reason for that."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Listen. We need anything you can tell us about him, your relationship with him, where you think he is right now. Things like that."

Lee Jarnigan: "What Russian kid?"

Michael Sajdak: "Conradin."

Lee Jarnigan: Sajdak, roll blind HUMINT.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "The fucking…. ICE guy."

Lee Jarnigan: He gets confused."What are you talking about? He's not fucking Russian."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Did you send in the tip or not?"

Lee Jarnigan: "His name is Esau."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm rubbing my face.

Lee Jarnigan: The air freezes.

Lee Jarnigan: He fell for the trap.

Michael Sajdak: The fuck?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Surname?"

Lee Jarnigan: "T-T…"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Nah."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "It can't be that."

Lee Jarnigan: "His name is Esau Tillman."

Lee Jarnigan: "Conradin is his username."

SDUDM George E. Jones: We might've inadvertently cracked open a can of worms by catching this guy high and dumb.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Tillman…." wasn't that the surname of the…. what was it?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Truck driver. We'll talk about it."

Lee Jarnigan: "Jacob was his real name. The kid of that fucking homeschool freak."

Lee Jarnigan: "He changed his name."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Why?"

Lee Jarnigan: "Well." He gives you a "how the fuck do you not know?" look.

Lee Jarnigan: "His dad was this crazy right-wing guy."

Lee Jarnigan: "He didn't talk much about the past but he hated him."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I read through his books."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Is this a personal bias or is this a fact?"

Lee Jarnigan: "Yeah well they fucking suck. I didn't read them."

Lee Jarnigan: "I'm telling you what I know."

Michael Sajdak: "Pretty on the nose, 'Esau Tillman', huh? Like calling yourseelf Nimrod Workman."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "The first one's decent. When'd you first get to know him?"

Lee Jarnigan: "Chasten Laugherty introduced me to him."

Lee Jarnigan: "He's Kyle Laugherty's son. For-profit prison magnate."

Lee Jarnigan: "He almost failed high school in 2009. Total fucking retard, but even a bigger whale."

Lee Jarnigan: "Without me he would be a middle school graduate, let alone go to Duke."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm pulling my notebook out and writing as he starts naming names…

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Did you know Nika Chilikova?"

Lee Jarnigan: "Chasten told me about Esau."

Lee Jarnigan: "I'm sorry, who?"

Lee Jarnigan: "I worked with many people. I don't remember all their usernames."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Paper on psychology, kid's psychology. Signs, non-verbal communication."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Bachelor's work about…. children? And symbolic language? What did she write again?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Yeah, that."

Lee Jarnigan: "Anyway, don't knock me off the course. You're fucking up my mojo."

Michael Sajdak: "Let him talk his talk."

Lee Jarnigan: "You don't know a lot about him, do you?"

Lee Jarnigan: "And I thought feds would know feds…"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I nod, pencil in hand. "Eh."

SA Chris K. Prower: "This guy is a special case."

Lee Jarnigan: "Tillman he, he has got this kind of learning disability. I worked with him for four years."

Lee Jarnigan: He begins smiling as he talks about him.

Lee Jarnigan: "He's got some kind of brain damage but I taught him everything. He's like my biggest contribution to the world you know."

Lee Jarnigan: "He earned that degree more than anyone did. It felt like I'd done something good for once."

Lee Jarnigan: "I asked him what it was once, he just said 'the past'. I looked up the symptoms and it doesn't really match anything."

Lee Jarnigan: "It's something with impairment in written language. He could express comples ideas but with a limited vocabulary. His syntax and spelling were elementary grade well into adulthood."

Lee Jarnigan: "God…"

Lee Jarnigan: He rubs his forehead.

SDUDM George E. Jones: George paces around and mutters "Yeah, that tracks."

Lee Jarnigan: Jones, roll HUMINT blind.

Lee Jarnigan: You clocked a microexpression towards his computer setup there.

Lee Jarnigan: It takes up the entire dining space.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "You really did like him, no? Why'd you send the tip?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "What did he study again?"

Lee Jarnigan: "BA in criminal justice. The tip… God…"

Lee Jarnigan: "He reached out to me this January."

SDUDM George E. Jones: Checks out for prospective career in Federal Law Enforcement.

Lee Jarnigan: "After like, a decade of no-show. He had two people to show me. Applicants."

Lee Jarnigan: "He wanted their applications upright. He paid a good price for it."

Lee Jarnigan: "I thought he was smuggling journalists for an exposé or some other subversive shit. I thought he was a leftist this whole time."

Lee Jarnigan: "He said they were 'important to the cause'."

Lee Jarnigan: "He wanted me to work through their 'grammer'."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "How'd he reach out? E-mail, chatroom?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: George rubs his face then looks at the weed paraphenilia: "This is a non-sequitur… but I presume you champion federal legalization of marijuana?"

Lee Jarnigan: "E-mail. When he paid me I procrastinated on it. Shit I was getting high and watching The Amazing Digital Circus."

Lee Jarnigan: "It was too late. I rushed it and sent it to him."

Lee Jarnigan: "Then I checked the file versioning options."

Lee Jarnigan: He looks like he's about to start crying.

Lee Jarnigan: "They were ICE applicants. Holy shit, one of them is like an actual fucking psychopath."

SDUDM George E. Jones: Yeah that's the average dem voter alright.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "We saw."

Lee Jarnigan: "Alright look, you can't blame me. This AI shit ruined me already, I had to make a buck. I wish I just didn't check it."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Do you think you could show us the e-mail after we're done chatting?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Maybe your history with him?"

Lee Jarnigan: "Sure. There was another e-mail."

Lee Jarnigan: "That. That was the one that made me lose sleep."

Lee Jarnigan: "It gives me goosebumps."

SDUDM George E. Jones: George clicks his finger at Prower then the computer: "Get on that please."

Lee Jarnigan: "Look, you gotta cut me a deal here."

Lee Jarnigan: "I'll tell you everything."

Lee Jarnigan: "I can't go to prison man."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "You're not in cuffs."

Lee Jarnigan: He waves at himself.

Lee Jarnigan: "They would fucking kill me in prison."

SA Chris K. Prower: Prower nods and heads to the computer. "It's all unlocked, right? I'm not gonna trip anything by looking around?"

Lee Jarnigan: "Shit, just make yourself home."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "You're good, just keep on going on. We're listening."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "You?" George chortles. "You'd go to minsec if you went to prison at all."

SA Chris K. Prower: "And don't worry, man… It's not you we're after. It's these psychos."

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: "Seems pretty reasonable, so long as we get to hear what we need to."

Lee Jarnigan: "We started talking with Esau. Jacob. Not in like a client relationship."

Lee Jarnigan: "We shot a lot of shit in 2016. Back when that orange asshole did what he did."

Lee Jarnigan: "I knew Conradin was up to something when he asked me to help with his app for the USMS back then."

Lee Jarnigan: "I thought he was some communist subversive looking to, you know, get in there."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I raise my brow at George.

SA Chris K. Prower: Prower checks the e-mail client on Lee's computer.

SDUDM George E. Jones: A lightbulb shoots off in Jones head.

Lee Jarnigan: "I asked him why."

Lee Jarnigan: "The response burned itself into my memory."

Lee Jarnigan: "I want to be inside it for reasons that do not come from it. I want to be inside and serve something outside. Change from within."

Lee Jarnigan: "That was powerful."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Yeeaaah he had you read front to back like a pastor's bible."

Lee Jarnigan: Prower, you get an objective look at the exchanges.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Why the shift to ICE?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Or maybe it was a coincidence."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Is he Marshals or ICE?"

Lee Jarnigan: Early emails are barely comprehensible. Sometimes, Jarnigan spent pages of email exchanges just trying to understand the assignment. Though progress was slow, Conradin displayed little frustration and remained eager to learn. The ethics of the cheating were never mentioned.

Lee Jarnigan: Between 2012 and 2016, the email chains found on Jarnigan's computer show a complex correspondence. ScribeLife420, in his attempts to unpack, understand, and reformulate what his client needed, ended up becoming his teacher. Conradin's language appears notably improved by the time he receives his criminology degree from Duke in 2016.

Lee Jarnigan: In the end, he learned the information by rote, displaying an impressive capacity for memorization and mimicry. Before recent events, Jarnigan felt pride in his part of the teacher/student relationship.

Lee Jarnigan: Long before Trump won, Lee Jarnigan did not handle the 2016 election season well. He was so isolated by his online fraud kingdom that he had no friends or families upon which to vent his anxieties. The plagiarist admits that instances of ScribeLife420 "just checking in" increased, and chatlogs reveal topics strayed from typical client relations.

Lee Jarnigan: Through online friendship, Jarnigan learned Conradin's real name was Esau Tillman and that he used to be called "Jacob." Jarnigan looked up the name and discovered Jacob Tillman was the subject of multiple Christian homeschooling texts written by his father, Eli.

Lee Jarnigan: Even after revealing his background, Conradin insisted on using the pseudonym, even in casual online chat. Shortly after Conradin graduated in 2016.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "By the by - did you happen to google Jacob Tillman?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: The Tillman case should've popped up in news articles right?

Lee Jarnigan: "Not really. I was busy."

Lee Jarnigan: "It kinda went downhill after the election, so."

Lee Jarnigan: In January 2026, Conradin reached out again to ScribeLife420 after almost a decade of silence. He had two employee applicants suffering language problems. He claimed to empathize with their struggle to communicate. He hired ScribeLife420 to punch up their applications. Jarnigan agreed and negotiated payment.

Lee Jarnigan: Conradin shared via cloud drive applications the employees had prepared, but everything was left blank except the applicants' identifying information. Conradin claimed it would be easier to start from a blank slate than work through their "grammer." He asked ScribeLife420 to make up whatever he liked.

Lee Jarnigan: With the payment finalized, Jarnigan realized that the applications for ICE after having procrastinated on the task. With all the reasons and some more to be suspicious of the ICE, he couldn't resist digging into the applicants files. Conradin had left file versioning options intact, allowing Jarnigan to see the documents as they were before Conradin's deletions. The original answers caused Lee Jarnigan to lose sleep after he reversed the deletions. It was too late, and he needed the money. A professional essay farmer gets a few and inbetween jobs in the age of AI. Jarnigan no longer has access to the cloud account, but metadata in the PDFs that Conradin sent give the Adobe account holder name as "Frank Harvey Water Reclamation Plant." As if what Jarnigan discovered about Rapp and Smedley weren't disturbing enough, Conradin later sent another email.

SA Chris K. Prower: You look like you're about finished here unless you have something specific in mind.

Lee Jarnigan: "Look man, you gotta do something about him."

SA Chris K. Prower: I was going to look for this guy's black book, but he's already spilled his guts to us. There's no real need for that.

Lee Jarnigan: "I didn't know he was part of ICE."

SDUDM George E. Jones: Does Jarnigan have the cloud account username saved somewhere?

Lee Jarnigan: "I thought he was still with the Marshals."

Hunger: That's not his account. He doesn't.

SDUDM George E. Jones: He could always try 121 121 in both fields and see what opens up.

SA Chris K. Prower: Do I have access to the previous versions of the applications? Maybe I can do a little forensics myself, on my own computer.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Or maybe Conrad's duke email and then 121 for the cloud site.

Lee Jarnigan: You are looking at it. It's the same screenshot included in the IC3 tip. He really did put all the meat and potatoes in the tip itself.

Lee Jarnigan: "I'm shaking all over man. I gotta hit this."

Lee Jarnigan: He's gesturing at the table.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Yeah, okay."

SA Chris K. Prower: We've already got their names. I don't think anything else can be revealed with the files that Conradin sent over.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "What was the email address used by Conradin?"

Lee Jarnigan: He grabs a cart and puffs on it. Recreational marijuana is legal in MO.

Lee Jarnigan: "It's Conradin. It always is. He's like obsessed with that."

SDUDM George E. Jones: George looks over at Lee "What was the filesharing site again?"

Lee Jarnigan: "Just some temporary link."

Lee Jarnigan: "You'll never get him through a fucking file sharing site."

Lee Jarnigan: "You gotta go out there and do something man."

SA Chris K. Prower: "Yeah, we won't…"

SA Chris K. Prower: "I think we have all we need."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Do you keep payment records for your work with Conradin?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "If he procrastinated on it…. the link might be temporary access but the site itself might have permanent archiving."

Lee Jarnigan: "All crypto, lady. Never see never be."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Does file versions might give us some hints."

Hunger: Jones, roll INT.

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls Failure -> 51

SA Chris K. Prower: "If he was smart enough to send over crypto, he was smart enough to use a filesharing site that doesn't keep them for long."

Hunger: You're getting over your head with this. Frank Harvey Water Reclamation Plant is a real place.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "He's half-retarded, maybe the voices told him to keep em'?"

Hunger: You should probably be on your way back to Baltimore by now.

SDUDM George E. Jones: George mutters… "For us.."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Anything else of note come to mind, Lee?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Anything at all?"

Michael Sajdak: I'm thinking we go there seeing as Jacob probably left the location as some sort of fucked up hint for us.

Lee Jarnigan: "I feel like a fucking asshole for all this. I never should have been friends with a guy who was borderline pre-verbal in the first place."

Lee Jarnigan: He sinks in his couch.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "You couldn't have known."

SDUDM George E. Jones: I just know that motherfucker has em' saved somewhere. George leans over to Prower and whispers: "Do you have a ready-made Trojan or keylogger or somethin' to put on here?"

SA Chris K. Prower: "You've been a great help, Lee. We'll leave you a way to contact us if he reaches out again, or if anything else comes to mind."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "It's good, what you thought you were doing. That's what counts."

Lee Jarnigan: "Right."

SA Chris K. Prower: Hm. Do I?

Hunger: Prower, he hasn't had contact with Conradin in a while. You don't know what keylogging him would achieve for your actual objective.

Hunger: They are no longer friends, that much you can tell.

SDUDM George E. Jones: You never know.

Hunger: He spilled the beans.

Hunger: No coming back from that.

SA Chris K. Prower: It's too much trouble to whip something up that wouldn't trip Windows Defender. This is a waste of time.

Hunger: The team is moving on in thirty seconds.

SDUDM George E. Jones: George asks "You got any contact info?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "For yourself, I mean."

Lee Jarnigan: "Right on." He writes his phone number on a piece of paper and passes it to you.

Michael Sajdak: I'm ready to go.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Also, stay with some relatives for a week. Just a hunch."

SA Chris K. Prower: We'll pass on a phone number to Lee so he can contact us if Conradin happens to reach out.

Lee Jarnigan: "Look at me man. What relatives."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Find a polycule or something man."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll pocket the pen & notepad. "Thanks again. Make an effort to stay in public places for the next couple of weeks if you can help it."

SA Chris K. Prower: "Maybe get some more cameras."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: With no further elaboration, I'm up and off.

SDUDM George E. Jones: George follows soon after.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: Darius gets out of there, too.

Hunger: 1700R.

Hunger: Baltimore, MD.

Hunger: The team boards at St. Louis Lambert International sometime during the day. Around them, the airport is almost offensively ordinary. Families argue quietly over luggage, children press their faces against the windows, business travelers complain about delays they will forget by dinner. Nobody gives the flight a second thought. For most passengers, Baltimore is just the next stop on an itinerary. For you, it's home. It's where everything started. It's the horrible prison you've been condemned to stay in for the rest of your lives. They settle into their seats knowing that, unlike everyone else on board, they are returning to a place that carries with it things that should never see the light of the day.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Fuckin' weepy-hearted liberal let the lion into the sheeps pen. Classic."

Hunger: The landscape below gradually changes as the flight crosses the country, but inside the cabin there is nothing remarkable about it. Someone sleeps through the whole journey. Someone watches a movie. Someone orders a drink and stares blankly at the seatback screen. The mundanity almost makes the situation worse. Hundreds of people are traveling east without giving any thought to what waits at the other end, while the team sits among them with the knowledge of why they had to leave Baltimore in the first place, and the awful truths they are bringing back. Their lives have become subject to a thing that can never be explained to the strangers sitting beside them, people who will land, collect their bags, complain about traffic, and continue with their day.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I really don't want to get into politics with you."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Yeaaaah I bet you don't. But you know I'm right."

Hunger: Baltimore finally appears beneath the aircraft, familiar to them even from thousands of feet up. The sprawling suburbs, highways, rail yards, harbor, and dense blocks of the city come into view, followed by the approach to BWI. The awful drive north to that little place called Zion. There is no dramatic welcome, even after learning what they did. The aircraft touches down, the passengers applaud nothing, phones come back on, and everyone begins thinking about their next destination. For the team, things are headed somewhere much more different.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "At least in this case."

Hunger: The usual question is unanswered. What next?

Hunger: Sartore, you get a call.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Contact?

Hunger: It's Pitzerelli.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Great. I'll show whoever's close by and pick it up.

Hunger: Sajdak is sitting next to you as you're about to dock to the apron.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "Cease all field operations immediately. Get your asses to the warehouse."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "We were about to do that."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "Right. I assume you talked to him."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Yes."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: Silence for a moment.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "And?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "We have to put some things together."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "I imagine you do. I'll see you in two days."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Bye."

Hunger: He hangs up.

Michael Sajdak: "Hey."

Hunger: Southern Galvanizing Works, Wicomico St., Baltimore, MD.

Hunger: You're finally here. It's a shitty, dusty warehouse. You really don't know what you were expecting, but the tire tracks outside indicate that someone has been here very recently.

Michael Sajdak: "Don't talk to that guy on the phone too much."

Hunger: The interior is a huge, grimy industrial space with high ceilings, exposed brick and concrete walls, rusting steel beams, and a cracked concrete floor stained with decades of oil and water. Old fluorescent lights hang from the ceiling, none of them working. Tall dirty windows let in weak gray daylight. Along the walls sit abandoned pallets, broken crates, drums, scrap metal, cables, and miscellaneous junk. Massive loading doors open toward the port, letting in the smell of diesel, saltwater, and the distant noise of cranes and trucks. LED bulbs strung around a length of extension cord is connected to an indoor generator.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I know…"

Hunger: You are free to move.

Hunger: Pitzerelli left you with some military cots, a couple crates of MREs, a yellowed-out copy machine, some tables and a portapotty. Those between you with military experience will find this scenery quite nostalgic. The rest, welcome to the suck.

Hunger: Bodies started this. Bodies must end it. The brain is part of that meat. To get this done, the team still needs to piss, eat, and sleep. MREs will cause a neat havoc in your stomach in a few meals. Is anyone going to bring snacks? Takeout? Caffeine? Something stronger?

Hunger: The Program insists on operational security. Research is to be gathered, processed, and then destroyed wherever possible. Who is in charge of these precautions? With only a few days notice and no additional personnel, what measures do you take at the location?

Hunger: The life of Conradin is painted across entire books, gigs of documents, and mental notes left to yellow and decay within your heads. You must sift and organize the information quickly. What office supplies and systems are around to coordinate the investigation? Is anyone planning to bring in a whiteboard? Chairs maybe? This is just one stop in a kinetic field op, you're not even meant to be here. What's the improvised solution?

Hunger: Who's gonna do something about those angle grinders close by? The occasional rat? The generator being too loud? After all, such flaws are the details most ready to mind when you remember this place in the future.

Hunger: These questions must be addressed before continuing further.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Do we have a computer or typing equipment?

Hunger: You have a yellowed out office printer.

Hunger: Laptops you can bring your own.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: This isn't nice at all. First: my noise-blocking headphones from home. And I'm not touching anything without gloves on.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Any corkboard around?

Hunger: Not touching anything without gloves on is gonna be irritating.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: It's so dirty, though.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Isn't there a bathroom?

Hunger: There is one portapotty and a bucket over there.

Michael Sajdak: I don't particularly care about this place being pretty but I'm gonna buy some trash bags and cleaning supplies from a nearby hardware store so that we don't get botulism or some shit from working here.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Might be wise to set up some sort of tripwire soundtrap for the front entrance given that Prower mentioned us being watched.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Some bullshit with cans and wire.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Nobody said anything about not being allowed to go to the closest wafflehouse or something and using the bathroom there.

Hunger: For up front, Jones, roll Milsci.

SA Chris K. Prower: I'll go to the store and pick up some gallon jugs of water, and some cameras.

SA Chris K. Prower: Security cameras.

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls Failure -> 67

Hunger: It's just waterfront ahead of you.

Hunger: You doubt anyone's watching.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Can I try for that?

Hunger: Okay.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 84

Hunger: Well. If you're done answering the questions regarding the provisions, we need to move on with the real investigation.

SDUDM George E. Jones: A bulk crate of electrolyte packets or whatever that liquid IV bullshit everyone is raving about would be good. And a cheap drip coffee machine.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Can we designate a tupperware or something to put all of our phones in while we're working?

SDUDM George E. Jones: With the coffee itself, of course.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: And search the place all together for hidden cameras or bugs?

Hunger: Of course, you can take care of all these things. For Search, hit it.

SA Chris K. Prower: I don't think this place is bugged.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Any assistance buff from the others?

Darius J. Cruz: There's no way this place isn't bugged, I'm helping search too.

Hunger: Depends.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: On What

Hunger: Just hit the roll. Public.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 92

Hunger: You can try it again in a day. Proactively roll again with a +20%.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Guess it's silent treatment for non-casual conversation, then.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We can Proceed I think?

Hunger: Roll again

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls CRITICAL SUCCESS! -> 33

Hunger: After looking around for a while, you find this poster on the wall behind a closet. It looks mint, as if someone forgot it there a long time ago. There is nothing suspicious about the warehouse otherwise.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: That guy looks like George's cousin.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Red thoughts, babyyyy!

Michael Sajdak: I look at that shit and ugly-laugh.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Who the fuck got in here before us to draw that?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "We got the bad brain," George claps once loudly, "Let's get to work."

Hunger: What does any of this mean? The beginning of the actual end? No one knows. All is in disarray. Except it is not. It may feel like that for the rest of the Program. Not for you.

Hunger: You glide along protected by fate. You are guided through the fray as children birthed, caught inside something sleek and made of hunger. Protected from everything except the Mother of All That Moved in the Once-Cold Stars.

Hunger: Sign of the lost figure hinted at in investigations of 2016 has surfaced: the Quiet Children's red-handed "Speaker." The ferret child. Herald of Sredni Vashtar. As the Teeth chase after one of their own, cannibalistic hounds of God that they have become, they find the prey has gone to ground in the one place they may not dig: a mound of festering evil called the U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement Agency.

Hunger: Conradin has become one of you. Perhaps he always was.

Hunger: Conrad Hopko, the false name he was checked under into the Cornucopia House. Conradin, what he was called as Babushka disciplined him. Jacob Tillman, Esau Tillman, these are all the same person. The lost survivor. The one other Quiet Children pointed you towards. The one the posers worshipped. He's all grown up now, working for the U.S. government, just like his heroes.

Hunger: Linking the names brings into focus a mountain of evidence once hidden in plain sight. It's up to you to sift through it. Digging into the entirity of his background will take the previous success scores of the investigation, and will last about 36 hours of uninterrupted effort. Time you conveniently have.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Speaking of his law enforcement career - might be a good time to see if I have any legacy USMS access left and can check on the nascent phase of his career in USGOV.

SDUDM George E. Jones: This might connect to Nika. In quite a nasty way.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: This is still nagging at me. Why Esau Tillman? That dude died in 2001, Khoury's handiwork. Is there any connection between Eli Tillman and the 2001 Esau?

Hunger: You shall. In the meantime, we need to adjust tiredness levels for Sartore, Prower and Cruz. Everyone is worn out by the end of this.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: And why not change his surname? That's stupid.

Hunger: There are thousands of Esau Tillmans in the US.

Hunger: A surname change is a little more complicated.

Hunger: I'll skip you the details. Those three, roll 2d6 WP.

SA Chris K. Prower: Condition Changes Fatigued

SA Francesca R. Sartore: 8

SA Chris K. Prower: 6

Darius J. Cruz: 7

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Condition Changes Fatigued

Darius J. Cruz: Condition Changes Fatigued

Hunger: Very well.

Hunger: Time for results.

Hunger: Conradin's paper trail of his childhood paints a picture of effortless evasion, dodging detection by the Program through coincidences and luck that cannot possibly be natural. Jacob Tillman's father, Eli Tillman, wrote popular memoirs about Jacob's abduction, rescue, and difficult recovery. After recovering enough from his ordeal to achieve some sort of independence, Jacob Tillman legally changed his name to Esau Tillman right before he turned 18 and enlisted. He effectively buried his notorious childhood under a different legal identity.

Hunger: Conradin's struggle with language likely stems from brain damage caused by Yelena Kalamatiano's mix of neglect and unnatural abuse. This seems to have allowed him to maintain a connection to the unnatural force, the cosmic hunger, the same one that chose the Teeth. Despite his condition, Esau Tillman formed ties to the wealthy Laugherty family, recently awarded lucrative for-profit prison contracts by changes in U.S. immigration policy.

Hunger: Conradin works for Immigration and Customs Enforcement. He has been using every abuse of power perpetrated by the Trump 2 administration to build a new Cornucopia House. He wants to call down cosmic forces by hiding the ritual inside everyday horrors. With the current administration and Tillman's connections, almost nothing can legally be done to stop him. Even the Program is unlikely to expose itself in such a light, both against the overt policies of the Trump 2 administration itself and the revelation of it's previously unknown existence. The results could be catastrophic.

Hunger: The Original Teeth (Sajdak, Cruz, Jones) may roll Blind Unnatural.

Hunger: Besides this, you have (at least) 5 minutes to review the next batch of handouts. It's quite substantial in size. The results of the rolls above will be revealed afterward.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "…Wasn't he blonde?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "He is."

Hunger: It may have gotten darker as he got old. Happens.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Looks like he turned ginger right as he lost his soul."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Was that in 2001, or later on?"

Hunger: One thing you noticed: Jarnigan told you nothing about his enlistment.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Well, he was a little twerp in 2001… could just be age."

Hunger: He also told you nothing about Cornucopia House.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Djibouti?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "The fuck…?" I'm reading more slowly.

SA Chris K. Prower: "Who is this guy's handler…? Everything I've heard about the guy makes me think he's almost an animal. He can't be organizing all of this on his own."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Same handler we got, and I'm not talking about Pitz."

Michael Sajdak: "That's what I'm thinking."

Hunger: For your thinking, it's time to reveal the result of that last roll.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I was in Djibouti in 2013 too. What the fuck?"

Hunger: Babushka's torments at Cornucopia House meant to light a beacon for the gods. The wrong god answered, blessing sacrifice over sorceress. Conradin, the sacrifice, summoned you there in 2001. You are his creature. You are leashed to his fate. Now he's doing it again. Igniting the beacon. Singing Sredni Vashtar awake to hunt forever. Making more things like you. Those who rolled, SANLOSS.

Michael Sajdak: Fucking hell I could have murdered this little cunt ages ago.

Hunger: Use the macro.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "This would be the first of the 2001 survivors to have learned a second language."

Hunger: Parsed.

Hunger: Before coming to a decisive point as a result of the investigation, the Teeth make sure that they recognize the threat called Conradin better than anyone else. The next handout will lay out the conditions of this open-ended section.

SA Chris K. Prower: "Seven hundred?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: Still reading the first dossier

Hunger: 21 SEP 26 2200R.

Hunger: He'll be here tomorrow afternoon.

Hunger: It's time to get to the point.

George E. Jones: Dossier finished

Hunger: It's actually quite cold in here.

George E. Jones: "Someone needs to go to Home DP and get a space heater."

Hunger: You won't see tomorrow evening here. Coats are cheaper.

Hunger: With that being said, you talked first, you go first.

Chris K. Prower: "This wastewater facility you were talking about. Was it in El Paso?"

Francesca R. Sartore: "Yeah, he's recreating what he went through in Cecil County at El Paso. He must have hundreds of kids in the water reclamation plant by now."

George E. Jones: "I'm guessing that's that anonymous ICE contractor who got picked in the blind bid?"

Hunger: Sartore, public Law.

Francesca R. Sartore: "Hundreds. Fucking hundreds. Cornucopia House couldn't have had more than a couple of dozens…"

Francesca R. Sartore: Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 73

George E. Jones: "Not really anonymous, but still."

Hunger: Hundreds? No way. You're being melodramatic right now.

Hunger: That doesn't mean there isn't a substantial number though.

Chris K. Prower: "Hundreds at once is unrealistic. But over time… I mean, it's been running for a couple years now, hasn't it?"

George E. Jones: "What's a rich guy's failure of a son doing being so tight with a non-verbal spastic?" George is sitting on some pallets drinking lukewarm coffee from a Big Hug Mug.

Hunger: Sajdak, blind Unnatural.

Hunger: You perform cold arithmetic. The Skoptsi inflicted language neglect on their victims for decades. The silence may have been designed to hide their arcane abuse, but some victims heard something in the void without a voice. Language somehow interferes with the Hidden God, weakening control over the animal of man.

Francesca R. Sartore: "I guess. God, he was at Lemonnier. I could've walked past him and not known."

Hunger: In contrast, Tillman's operations at the water reclamation plant have been going for a year, maybe less. That's still inside the age range of cognitive linguistic development. The children inside can recover. They can be saved. You can stop it this time. But only if you go now. Every moment of delay means more pain, trauma, and brain damage. Every second brings the children closer to eternal silence and risks spawning more Teeth for the hunt.

Hunger: You truly understand why Clove did what she did now. This may be the only option. The impossible choice. Going there and ending things no matter what it takes. But this time, all things considered, you're likely coming out of there in a bag.

Chris K. Prower: "He's probably got it too… That thing… It's attached to Chasten. How he caught it, who knows?"

Hunger: "What's stopping us from just… Showing up?"

Hunger: You have the option to keep quiet on this or repeating the suspicion to the rest. If you're keeping quiet, SANLOSS.

George E. Jones: "He was at USMS and I had not a clue. Don't beat yourself up over it." He hunches and hides his free hand in his coat.

Francesca R. Sartore: I just rub my head at the thought.

Francesca R. Sartore: "Why Esau, though? Biblical name, brother of Jacob…" I stroke my jaw.

George E. Jones: Did I end up finding any connection with Nika's protective custody and his tenure in the USMS? It's almost too obvious.

George E. Jones: "He was a hunter."

Hunger: No. Not with all those redactions.

Hunger: You have your reservations about it, though.

George E. Jones: "That's why."

Hunger: And there is the elephant called the 2021 shooting.

Chris K. Prower: "Where is this facility? Let me pull up Google Earth…"

George E. Jones: "He could've went with Nimrod, but the Jacob Esau connection was too convenient."

Francesca R. Sartore: "And he passed over his rights as a firstborn to his brother?"

Hunger: Prower, it's next to Mesquite Hills / Futureland, TX.

Hunger: You're looking at it right now.

Chris K. Prower: Is it isolated?

George E. Jones: George points at Sartore - "He's the Esau to Chasten's Jacob."

Michael Sajdak: We can't go yet and if I tell everyone how I currently feel I'll be spreading the meme currently occupying my mind to everybody else and putting their own lives at risk. So I'll take the sanity hit.

George E. Jones: "Probably."

Hunger: No. It's right next to not one but TWO suburban communities. And itself being a municipal service. It's not isolated AT ALL.

Hunger: Despite being in the desert.

Hunger: Sajdak, parsed. You sleep on it for your own reasons.

Francesca R. Sartore: "Hmmm."

Hunger: Esau Tillman is rebuilding hell on the government's dime. This is exactly why the Program wanted more intel before committing to action. To proceed with the operation, you have to brief Pitzerelli and run things up the chain of command. He is on the way.

Hunger: Highest Bureucracy rolls blind.

Francesca R. Sartore: "Two suburban communities, ICE facility?"

Francesca R. Sartore: "It's going to be a problem just looking at the place."

Chris K. Prower: "I don't know how we're going to approach this on our own. Raiding an ICE facility is like sieging a castle…"

George E. Jones: ….But why? Is this connected to his little totem of Sredni Vashtar?

Chris K. Prower: I have 50. Am I the highest?

Hunger: Yes. Go.

Hunger: You have been a government employee for a really long time. Veteran of civil service, the grim experience of both the mundane and the unnatural has taught you to be cynical.

Hunger: There's almost no chance Delta Green acts on this. Period. Tillman has ties to private prison contractors, ICE, and the Trump 2 administration. Anything that happens to him has to be explained to a ravenous press and undergo scrutiny from multiple factions within the U.S. security state and politics. As repercussions spread, Delta Green might even be forced to brief the President on the existence of the unnatural, the same President who has worse approval ratings than Jimmy Carter.

Hunger: Meanwhile, Conradin's abuse appears from the outside to be one more sadistic embarrassment in a cascade of mundane American atrocities. That doesn't rate as a threat compared to exposure of the Program. The Program won't accept the risk. The order to retreat is coming.

Hunger: You have the option to keep quiet on this or repeating the suspicion to the rest. If you're keeping quiet, SANLOSS.

Hunger: Yes, prower, you.

George E. Jones: The split brain syndrome…. the Quiet Children were constrained by the inability to speak. Just loose murders in the grand scheme of things…

Hunger: Jones, blind Unnatural.

Chris K. Prower: I'm keeping quiet about it.

George E. Jones: Meanwhile this guy's got the gift of speech and the other side is speaking to him. That other side…

Francesca R. Sartore: He was their little ringleader back when you guys killed the Skoptsi too.

Hunger: You mentioned the Quiet Children being "constrained" by the ability of speech. They were acting preternaturally without ever needing to communicate. They carried out a highly evasive chain of murders without as much as making a gesture towards eachother.

Hunger: Were they constrained, or is Conradin the one being constrained?

George E. Jones: He's making Cornucopia House 2.0 and he's got the means, that is, language, to do so.

Hunger: Looks like you just have to figure it out on the field.

Hunger: Time for the closing statements about the course of action.

George E. Jones: I think I'm observing the transition from subsistence farming to the industrial revolution is what it looks like from down here.

Chris K. Prower: "Why was he telling people that Chasten was his roommate? Why was he lying? WAS he lying?"

Francesca R. Sartore: "I think we have to get in there, destroy Conradin and his friends, and get the kids off ICE's hands through any necessary means."

Darius J. Cruz: "And how do you propose we pull this off?"

George E. Jones: George has a grim expression. He's got something to say and he doesn't want to say it. By God he doesn't want to say it.

Chris K. Prower: "We might need to look at this a different way… What if we just take out Conradin? Or does he fucking… Eat and sleep at this facility, all hours of the day?"

Chris K. Prower: "I don't think assaulting the facility is a good idea."

Francesca R. Sartore: "You don't think he's doing it without any help."

Hunger: Prower, the facility is easily large enough to house some living arrangements.

Michael Sajdak: "This looks completely impossible. I don't even know what to say. We're not even LE anymore."

George E. Jones: If somebody can get a read on him and get him to talk - GM, it might be a HUMINT roll for one of the other characters to see if they can get George to not be mute on this.

Hunger: The team has one last thing left to do. Whether they have understood the complete scope of the consequences doesn't matter, as you can speak individually. You need to make up your mind. In broad strokes, you have the following options:

Hunger: 1 - Give up. Watch the Program do nothing. Imagine what's going on in Conradin's little playhouse during every spare moment for the rest of your life. Eventually, kill yourself over it.

Hunger: 2 - Manipulate the intel. Get the job done before the Program gets wise. Try to survive afterward, with your goodwill balance already well into negative hundreds.

Hunger: 3 - Pretend to give up. Pretend to heel like a good dog. Then ditch the leash and go hunting alone. Try to survive afterward. Go guerilla until you die of old age.

Hunger: What does everyone think? This is a turning point in your lives.

Francesca R. Sartore: Can I tell that weird look George had on his face?

Chris K. Prower: How long do we have until they 'get wise' to it?

Hunger: You don't need to be rolling social skills on eachother for situations like this. You can tell that something's up.

Francesca R. Sartore: "Jones?" I tilt my head. "Something in mind?"

Hunger: Prower, until the next wellness check. You don't know.

Michael Sajdak: I'm in favour of working in spite of Delta Green but I don't care all that much what my life looks like after this. So I'll say it straight up:

George E. Jones: George looks up at Sartore: "Yeah, but I don't think anyone wants to hear this."

Francesca R. Sartore: "Come on…"

Michael Sajdak: "If we see this through to the end we're all probably gonna die. I think that's what George is scared of."

Michael Sajdak: "That's fine by me. The question is if it's fine by you four."

George E. Jones: George shakes his head: "We're probably gonna die regardless of what we decide to do."

Chris K. Prower: "Did you think you were gonna go your whole life without dying?"

George E. Jones: "That's a given…."

Francesca R. Sartore: "Just call it a day and go home after meeting Pitzerelli then? Okay."

George E. Jones: "But… you remember back at Cornucopia House? What Clove said? About the kids?"

Chris K. Prower: "What's worse, living in regret and dying, or dying?"

Hunger: So far, you haven't died despite all the insane shit that has happened to you. Something glides you along this life. There is a very real chance you can save these children, for good. You already did it once. You were too late back then. You can feel it in your bones.

Darius J. Cruz: "I've lived a life. If putting a stop to this madness is what ends it, then so be it."

Hunger: Sajdak will lead the conversation with Pitzerelli, with Jones backing him up if need be. Jones and him also go back so.

Michael Sajdak: "Clove said to kill them because they were compromised by Baast. And she was right. We should have killed them."

SA Chris K. Prower: "We can't give up."

Michael Sajdak: "But those kids were abused for almost their whole lives to reach that point."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Yeah, but that was the Cornucopia House - this is the Cornucopia Factory. I'm thinking everybody's gotta go. Especially the kids."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "So? That was amateurs - you got a guy who was the sausage that got made. You think he hasn't perfected it?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm just frowning at George as he says that.

Michael Sajdak: "For once I might be the more optimistic one here."

SA Chris K. Prower: "…The kids, too? No… We have a chance to save them."

Hunger: Whatever you have been through, something much harder awaits. Killing abuse victim children will not be an easy task. It may be necessary, but when push comes to shove…

Hunger: You're not there yet.

Hunger: That being said, the sun is rising.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "And then what? Task Force Masticate gets sent on another wild goose chase trying to beat the clock and we'll go to another goddamn swamp."

Hunger: You have to make a presentation soon.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "We're all agreed that we're doing this. What are we telling Pitzerelli?"

Michael Sajdak: "Just shut the fuck up for now. I don't want anyone getting spooked this early in the game."

SDUDM George E. Jones: George gives a knowing look to Sajdak.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "We can either gung-ho this or try to squeeze as much backup from that fucker as possible."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Given that Hopko has access to language means he has access to ritual - we can lie and tell they're doing freak skoptsy shit in there or something."

Hunger: Very brutally put, you actually don't know the right words to say to him. Perhaps you never will.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "That is if we want access to resources."

Michael Sajdak: "I've got an idea. Listen"

Hunger: After Sajdak is done, we move on.

Darius J. Cruz: "All ears."

Michael Sajdak: "Pitzrelli knows Conradin is getting people into ICE. What he doesn't know is that he's actually called Esau Tillman, that he HIMSELF is a fed and that he has a fucking federal child-abuse factory at his disposal. So we just never mention the name 'Esau Tillman'. We tell him he's getting some of his buddies into ICE to poach kids for him - and nothing else."

Michael Sajdak: "Sound good?"

SA Chris K. Prower: "…I can change the documents to make it look that way."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "….Won't this just make him go 'this is not worth our time and that's that?'"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "We need bait."

Michael Sajdak: "Awesome. Then that's our play going forward. He's planning on buying an orphanage to make some sorta Cornucopia 2.0, and he's got quiet children hunting for wetbacks to traffic his way."

Hunger: This is a brazen lie. You will have to see how Pitzerelli reacts to it.

Hunger: In fact it's so brazen that you doubt what you are saying yourself whether this will work on a veteran Program case officer AND an U.S. attorney.

Hunger: You're about to find out.

Hunger: 22 SEP 26 1400R.

Hunger: Pitzerelli will be here soon. It's time to stop talking and check your notes one last time.

Hunger: You don't see him approach at first. You are directly looking at the sea, after all. He peeks the corner of the door, only taking the step inside after confirming you're already here.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He walks quickly with an awkward waddle. Despite the attorney's unmatched charisma in the courtroom, incredible amounts of stress have taken its toll. He's getting old, just like how some of you are.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He arrives at the tables without caring to address any of you. He simply looks all of you in the face, once at a time and scans for the traces of the work you have done so far. There is plenty.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He corrects his glasses. "Alright, let's hear it."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm just shaking and smoking as I watch him enter.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: An hour passes. You go through everything one by one, omitting and bringing forward what you wish to do so without error. What is meant to be is said and done, despite your mounting fatigue and stress.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: The attorney adjusts his glasses one last time, before putting a folder back on the table. He takes them off, rubs the bridge of his nose well and puts them back on. He looks at you like a frustrated dad about to tell the young one Santa is not real.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "So? What do we do next?" He puts his hands on his waist.

Michael Sajdak: "Find the guy and deep six him I suppose. Unless you've got a problem with that."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "You're funny. I'm not joking."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "What now?"

Michael Sajdak: "If there's a problem I'd rather you told us straight-up."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "…"

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He stays silent.

SDUDM George E. Jones: George gives a "told you so" look to Sajdak.

Michael Sajdak: "What's in that folder?"

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "Business. None of yours."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "Now speak."

Michael Sajdak: "I have nothing else to say."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He can see that you're worn out to the bits over this and turns to Jones.

SDUDM George E. Jones: I'm trying to gauge which levers to pull here. Given that I've known this old fuck - and we've been tying up odds and ends for him this past decade - do I have a read on what would make him take the bait here?

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He has his best poker face on at the moment.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He didn't even react to Sajdak.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Did Sajdak tell us about his dealings with the outlaws?

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: You know that fracasse, as one of the original team.

SDUDM George E. Jones: That really ticked him off back in the day, with Maryam and everything.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: Get to the point.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "We're thinking…. the unsanctioned part of this thing we're a part of… is either planning on making a move or that our POI is a part of tthat move."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He doesn't react at first.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: Let me clear this out, you're going to pass the ball to the Outlaws here?

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: And that they are already acting on it?

SDUDM George E. Jones: I'm going to lie through my fucking teeth that the outlaws are somehow involved in this shit.

SDUDM George E. Jones: There was the watcher woman and I can tie the Laughteries and the 'roommate' blind spot into the lie.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: You see his face turn red in real time.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He will only believe this if you roll a 1 on Persuade and he himself rolls a 99 on HUMINT.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli rolls Failure -> 75

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls Success -> 59

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "YOU STUPID MOTHERFUCKING RAT FUCKING SLIME!"

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "YOU THINK THAT SHIT WOULD WORK ON ME? YOU FUCKING STUPID RETARD?!"

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He looks at Jones. "I KEPT YOU MOTHERFUCKERS OUT OF JAIL FOR LIFE. FOR LIFE! AND THIS IS HOW YOU DECIDE TO REPAY ME?"

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "JUST LIES, LIES, MORE FUCKING LIES! IT'S BEEN TEN YEARS AND YOU STILL THINK YOU CAN GET AWAY WITH LYING TO ME!"

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He slams his fist on the table.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "That's it you motherfuckers. You're done. I'm never gonna pretend that you can play me ever again in my life. I haven't seen a rat scum shit fuck as arrogant and ungrateful as you bunch of ingrate sick fuck rat shit assholes as you are!"

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He breathes rapidly. "You're done. You're fucking done. I'm done with you and you're done with me. I will never play this charade again. I will fucking ERASE all of you!"

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "FUCK!"

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He turns around and begins powerwalking out of the room.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "You're not fucking leaving."

Hunger: Your trust with the attorney is broken. The Program no longer seeks your best interest. There is no getting out of this clean if the attorney leaves the room under his own power.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm pulling my gun on him and grabbing him by the collar.

Darius J. Cruz: Do we just fucking shoot him at this point?

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: Surprise attack with Unarmed.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: Roll.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 68

Hunger: He's out of reach but you have your gun out.

Darius J. Cruz: I'm pulling my gun out, too.

SA Chris K. Prower: Active Conditions Fatigued

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "Really."

SA Chris K. Prower: I'm pretty quick. Can I run and tackle him?

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "You fucking amateurs."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Just put your fucking hands up right this fucking moment or I'll blow your fucking brains out."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "I'm not putting up shit."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "You're finished."

Michael Sajdak: "He'll have backup. I'm sure of it."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: Turns! Prower, your move?

SA Chris K. Prower: Can I run and tackle him?

SA Chris K. Prower: I'm very fast.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: Not with Sartore standing directly in front of you.

Hunger: That wouldn't be a tackle but it would engage in regular melee combat.

Darius J. Cruz: "Listen man, we're just telling you how it is. Now you either sit back down, or the five of us are going to paint the floor with your brains."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "You're not telling me shit pirate. I tried to save you."

SA Chris K. Prower: Maybe it's time to punch his lights out, then. Or at least run up and grab him. Can I do that?

Michael Sajdak: "I imagine he was prepared for this. He hasn't trusted us for the past decade."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: Decide on your action and try to roll.

SA Chris K. Prower: Can I run up and grab him?

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: Unarmed!

SA Chris K. Prower: SA Chris K. Prower rolls Failure -> 87

Michael Sajdak: "But while we're here, I do wanna ask a couple questions." I'm not doing anything for the time being.

SA Chris K. Prower: You get in range, but…

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He pulls out one of those small Glocks.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: Glock 26.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "Oh you wanna play?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Damn he's fast ain't he.

Michael Sajdak: Active Conditions Fatigued

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: You're all fatigued too!

SA Chris K. Prower: Prower stares at him, his hands down at his sides.

Michael Sajdak: "What the fuck was any of this even for? Why does S-cell even exist? What were you expecting from us in here?"

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: That's a light pistol, no malus in gun-fu, by the way.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "I was expecting HONESTY."

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "The Outlaws? Fucking REALLY NOW?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "So that's what you call em', huh?"

Michael Sajdak: "And if we told you Conradin was using a ICE detention facility to recreate what happened to him as a kid you'd have told us to stand down and do nothing. Am I right?"

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He refuses to answer. You're past civilized conversation.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: Act.

Michael Sajdak: Nothing. Pass my turn.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Active Conditions Fatigued

SDUDM George E. Jones: George walks forward trying to see if this fuck is going to re-direct his weapon.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He does wave it at you.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He has no intention of being friendly anymore.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: Is that it?

SDUDM George E. Jones: That's it - up to Sartore if she wants to blow his brains out now.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Active Conditions Fatigued

SA Francesca R. Sartore: What range bracket am I in?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Melee?

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: No you're out of melee.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: You didn't make it.

Michael Sajdak: "If you're thinking of shooting you may as well let him walk. It'd be no different as far as we're concerned."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: A called shot at the leg would be -20 (call)-20 (fatigue)+10 (holo)?

Hunger: Sajdak, no need for roll. The moment he leaves here the moment you start being hunted to death.

Michael Sajdak: "Either he sells us down the river or the Program hunts us down for murder."

Hunger: Yes, Sartore.

Hunger: Best not miss.

Michael Sajdak: I know but I have enough faith in Pitzrelli to try and deescalate the situation.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Can I fire repeatedly over his shoulder to attempt a suppression?

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli rolls Success -> 46

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: "You're gonna have to do better than that."

Darius J. Cruz: Active Conditions Fatigued

Darius J. Cruz: I'm aiming at him, no way in hell I'm landing a shot like this otherwise.

Darius J. Cruz: Condition Changes Focusing

Hunger: He will just sprint for it.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: He's right at the door of the warehouse.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Fuck it, let's roll."

SA Chris K. Prower: Do I have any chance at running up and tackling him?

SA Chris K. Prower: What malus would that be at?

Darius J. Cruz: "Just fucking- SHOOT HIM ALREADY!!!"

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: Shots are fired. He will not play tickle with you if you get on top of him.

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: You are about to face reality.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Option 3 it is.

Hunger: Alright if you really really really intend on running up and powerbombing this guy that will be at an Unarmed roll at unchanged because you're speeding.

SA Chris K. Prower: Alright.

SA Chris K. Prower: SA Chris K. Prower rolls Failure -> 58

Hunger: You trip your foot on the shelf and fall facefirst.

SA Chris K. Prower: Condition Changes Prone

SA Chris K. Prower: You take 1d4 damage to your head.

Hunger: 1

Hunger: 2 damage. Your forehead has a bump but at least your brains are intact.

Michael Sajdak: Active Conditions Fatigued

Michael Sajdak: Pass my turn.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Active Conditions Fatigued

SDUDM George E. Jones: George is making his way for the rear exit but not before tossing his phone as hard as possible against the nearest wall. "Let's go!"

Hunger: It clatters around. On a 2 it needs a repair.

Hunger: 1

SDUDM George E. Jones: It does not matter.

Hunger: It doesn't. Jones, roll INT.

SDUDM George E. Jones: We're ditching this shit and moving out.

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls CRITICAL SUCCESS! -> 44

Hunger: Critical success. Let me rephrase that. If the attorney leaves this room YOU ARE GOING TO BE FUCKED SO FAST AND HARD YOU WON'T EVEN NOTICE BY THE TIME YOU'RE SITTING ON AN ELECTRIC CHAIR.

Darius J. Cruz: Well we're not talking him down, now, are we?

SDUDM George E. Jones: Actually - can I make my way around to intercept? What's the distance to his car?

Hunger: You have no idea where his car is. You can still draw your gun though.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Prower is flat on his face. I'm going to try getting a shot on him.

Hunger: The realization puts you on your nerves. Act at no malus.

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls Failure -> 96

SDUDM George E. Jones: Miss.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Active Conditions Fatigued

SDUDM George E. Jones: "GET HIS ASS!"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm crouching so Cruz can get a shot over my head.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Aim & bodypart: Not aimed, no bodypart.Attachments: Short-range attachment(s).Fire rate & range: Short range, single shot.Speed & size: ≤ Normal, regular.

Hunger: While crouching you can still shoot.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 93

Hunger: Miss.

Darius J. Cruz: Active Conditions Fatigued Focusing

Hunger: Act at no fatigue. You have been waiting to hold a gun for a while.

Darius J. Cruz: I'm taking the shot. It's do or die.

Darius J. Cruz: Darius J. Cruz rolls Success -> 3

Hunger: You're meant to roll that damage.

Darius J. Cruz: Darius J. Cruz rolls 1d10 -> 7

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli rolls 1d6 -> 2 (Draws a result from the Head Serious Wounds (5, 6, 7 Dmg) table)

U.S. Attorney Antony Pitzerelli: The shot hits his head and comes out of his eye socket. He's dead.

Hunger: Those shots you fired earlier. And that idea of a backup…

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I need to quiet down my nerves, run up and pull him the hell inside.

Hunger: Let's just say you don't get to do that just now.

Hunger: Before long you hear hurried footsteps at the door. A man peeks inside, with a weapon raised.

"Bobcat": He seems as he would like to make his introduction very briefly in the form of a hail of bullets.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "SHIT-!"

Hunger: Everyone but Prower rolls for Suppression.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Suppression (80): 37 - Success.Effects: N/A.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Active Conditions Fatigued

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Success -> 6

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls Success -> 12

Hunger: It's just Cruz down in cover.

Hunger: Prower, act.

SA Chris K. Prower: I can't whip my gun out and fire in the same turn, right?

Hunger: You can.

SA Chris K. Prower: What would that be at?

Hunger: You can fast draw pistols just fine. No malus.

Hunger: Your wounds were superficial.

SA Chris K. Prower: Firearms -20?

Hunger: Yes.

SA Chris K. Prower: What is this thing I'm next to? Is it good cover, and can I roll behind it?

Hunger: DEX roll to get in partial and also act again.

Hunger: Hurry up.

SA Chris K. Prower: SA Chris K. Prower rolls Success -> 54

SA Chris K. Prower: Condition Changes Partial Cover

Hunger: You have 3 AP behind this steel warehouse shelf.

SA Chris K. Prower: SA Chris K. Prower rolls Failure -> 41

Hunger: Miss.

Michael Sajdak: Active Conditions Fatigued

Hunger: Are you still standing dead still?

Michael Sajdak: I'm upping pole and taking cover in the shelf behind me.

Hunger: Not at once. DEX.

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Success -> 47

Michael Sajdak: Condition Changes Partial Cover

Hunger: yes you passed the roll

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls CRITICAL SUCCESS! -> 44

Hunger: IT SAYS SUCCESS BRO

Michael Sajdak: I'm aiming for his HEAD

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls 1d10 -> 8

"Bobcat": Let's leave this up to a coin toss since you don't get to call out bodypart after throwing the dice. On a 2 you get a clean headshot to his naked head at 16 and finish him. 1 is random hit.

Michael Sajdak: 2

"Bobcat": "Bobcat" rolls 1d6 -> 5 (Draws a result from the Head Critical Wounds (8+ Dmg) table)

"Bobcat": You got him directly in the neck. Not unlike you did Babushka in. He drops his IWI UZI Pro on its sling and clutches his bleeding neck with both hands.

"Bobcat": He drops to his knees at first and then sideways on the floor before he suffocates to death.

"Bobcat": Condition Changes Departed

SDUDM George E. Jones: George lets his gun arm rest at his side as he looks up and breathes out a sigh of relief: "Fucking finally."

Michael Sajdak: There's no fucking way we're hiding this from The Program.

Darius J. Cruz: "Are we- We're done, right? Nobody else is gonna strut through, are they??"

Michael Sajdak: We have to get out of dodge. There's nothing else we can do.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "So much for trust, huh? Bet he had that fucker ready for every single meet. Grab his shit… and the gun!"

Hunger: He had an IWI UZI Pro +HOL +SUP with 1+2 mags.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm slumping over to pull them back inside.

Michael Sajdak: I bought trashbags earlier on. Any shot at us using them to hide these bodies?

SDUDM George E. Jones: Do we need to?

Hunger: Holy shit. You did it. You actually did it. You idiots. You killed him.

Hunger: There's no coming back from this. You're fucked. You're fucked good, and once they realize he's not asleep they are going to descend upon you with everything they got. Your fate is sealed.

Hunger: There is no time for further elaboration. The team needs to decide what to do with the bodies NOW.

Hunger: It's likely that the Program will piece together what happened ages before the cops even get to the bodies.

Hunger: The only guy on Earth who was willing to cover for your tracks is now gone, killed by those he risked his entire life for over the course of a decade.

Hunger: Good luck. You're on your own now.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Let me just… run Antony's pockets…

Hunger: He's got his gun and his phone and wallet.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Fuck him and fuck them. It's option 3.

Hunger: Do you wanna make this shit look like a robbery?

SDUDM George E. Jones: And the folder?

Hunger: That's a fun idea.

Darius J. Cruz: I'm grabbing the folder and getting outta here.

Hunger: You can't glance the contents of the folder right now.

Hunger: How do you deal with the bodies?

SDUDM George E. Jones: We got anything to light this bitch up with?

Hunger: Not really.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm just going to say it. We have to take them with us, cut their heads and hands off, then toss them in a swamp separately from those…

Darius J. Cruz: No way we have enough time for that Hunger: That's theatrical to say the least.

Hunger: But you can spare some time on your way to El Paso to dispose of the bodies.

SA Chris K. Prower: Like there's a fucking swamp here.

Hunger: You're already on your way there… right?

SDUDM George E. Jones: We should be burning rubber on the way to El Paso right now.

Hunger: Or you take the flight there right now instead of the 4-day long trip.

SA Chris K. Prower: Fuck the bodies. Put them in a DUMPSTER and FORGET ABOUT IT!

Darius J. Cruz: TRUE, we're all fucked either way. Let's GET GONE

SA Chris K. Prower: Picking up the casings is the only worthwhile effort beyond that.

Hunger: There will be a substantial difference in how much wiggle room you have if you actually take care of the bodies or not. That being said, you also have two options to get to El Paso. Drive or fly.

Hunger: Driving will take 4 days if half of the team doesn't pass a Drive roll.

Hunger: Flight is four hours. You can have your vehicles shipped to you at an exorbitant price if you don't want to rent or steal.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We can't leave the bodies. I'm grabbing their guns and waiting for someone to come help me with them.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Over under on us being nabbed at the airport?

Hunger: If you go now? You'll be fine.

Hunger: If you go after they get the bodies, another story.

Hunger: You can check your weapons in properly if you wish to transport them.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: The moment they get the bodies we're on every single watchlist, their disappearance keeps it that bit ambiguous.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We have to come to an agreement, quick.

Hunger: Yes, you have 120 seconds before you just up and run away.

SA Chris K. Prower: If the bodies are found, it's the cops after us too.

Hunger: The timer begins.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Fuck it. Are there angle grinders on hand?

Hunger: No.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Not here. Trunk them and move.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We'll stop on the way and do it.

Michael Sajdak: We're putting the bodies in bags, booting them and disposing of them on the way to El Paso.

SA Chris K. Prower: My vote is for the drive.

Hunger: Cutting up two bodies will not be so great for your mental health.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Drive for sure. Trunk bisect and scatter the body?

SA Chris K. Prower: Take the bodies and drive.

Michael Sajdak: I'm the leader here so that's an executive decision.

Darius J. Cruz: Grab the bodies and drive is the best call.

Hunger: That's valid, I think everyone can agree on stuffing them in the trunk and figuring out what to do on the way.

Hunger: That being said you will have to DRIVE there under DISAPPEARANCE circumstances.

Hunger: Everyone throws Drive.

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls Failure -> 53

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Success -> 20

SA Chris K. Prower: SA Chris K. Prower rolls Failure -> 31

Darius J. Cruz: Darius J. Cruz rolls Failure -> 87

Hunger: Doesn't matter, the ride will take 4 days. Sartore, do you take the car or the bike?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I want to feel the wind on my hair as we ride to our deaths.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Success -> 37

Hunger: Everyone SANLOSS.

Hunger: The convoy rolls out of Baltimore sometime during the day, several vehicles slipping onto I-70 and settling into formation as the city recedes behind them. The Baltimore skyline disappears between overpasses, replaced by industrial yards, wooded hills, and the long concrete ribbon of the highway. They pass through the Appalachian country of western Maryland and into Pennsylvania, with the Alleghenies closing around the road for a while before the terrain opens again. The vehicles keep moving west beneath an ordinary daytime sky, radios occasionally crackling between them. Something reassuring about the routine of it all loses its grip as the cars advance; traffic, fuel stops, roadside diners, trucks grinding up hills. At the same time, every mile away from Baltimore feels like another layer of normal life being left behind.

Hunger: The convoy passes Pittsburgh and crosses into Ohio, continuing through Columbus and toward Indianapolis. The names on the signs become increasingly familiar in the abstract, places that once belonged to maps and television weather reports rather than anything personal. The Gateway Arch rises over St. Louis once again as they cross the Mississippi, this time not going into the city they had recently been in at all, marking the point where the eastern half of the country finally seems to fall away behind them. Beyond Missouri, I-70 cuts through Kansas, past Kansas City and endless agricultural country where the horizon seems to retreat every time they approach it. The monotony has its own dulling effect. Hours behind the wheel blur together, and the convoy begins to feel less like a group of people traveling somewhere and more like a single hunter crossing the threshold into a dark, uncharted forest.

Hunger: West of the Great Plains, the character of the journey changes again. Denver and the Front Range appear ahead, the Rocky Mountains looming over the horizon before the road carries them onward toward the drier country beyond. The green fades into ochre and brown, towns become sparse, and the distances between fuel stations grow longer. Eventually they descend toward New Mexico, where the landscape becomes stark and beautiful in its hostility. White Sands, the Organ Mountains, abandoned-looking stretches of highway, and finally the lights of El Paso wait somewhere ahead.

Hunger: By then, Baltimore has become impossibly distant. The convoy has accumulated exhaustion, silence, and the peculiar unreality of a one-way trip that has lasted long enough for home to become an abstraction in the process. Whatever brought them west gave them their summons. To not answer was unthinkable.

Hunger: You have been repeating the events of your life in the back of your head ever since you got in the seat. The excitement of it all, the sweet ethereality, until the moment the horrible truth was made bare to you. Your innocence and together with it any possibility of a regular conclusion to these long, long years have been absent from your fate for as long as you can remember.

Hunger: What you did back in that school. Their cries for help. For some, in that awful, awful place in the countryside where everything began. You remember how it smelled as it burned to the last ember.

Hunger: But you do know something for sure. More certain than whether you're going to kill Conradin and save those children, or fail miserably. More certain than if you'll ever be able to get back home and assure everyone that everything is going to be okay after your last chance to say goodbye has been cut short by fate, even though it absolutely will not be.

Hunger: You know that this is where it ends.

Hunger: DELTA GREEN - GOD'S TEETH - THE BEAUTIFUL

Hunger: Session 1 END.

Hunger: Thanks for playing!

God's Teeth - The Beautiful - Session 2

September 25, 2026

Hunger: DELTA GREEN

Hunger: GOD'S TEETH

Hunger: THE BEAUTIFUL

Hunger: SESSION 2

Hunger: The I-54 is moderately busy as it approaches El Paso, with steady traffic in both directions. Cars, pickup trucks, and the occasional semi-truck move along the highway, with more vehicles appearing as the city gets closer. Outside the road, the desert is flat and dry, covered with low scrub, scattered grass, and occasional fencing. In the clear daytime, the landscape is much easier to see, stretching out across the open ground on either side of the highway.

Hunger: The Franklin Mountains become more prominent as the highway continues toward El Paso, rising sharply from the otherwise flat desert. Their rocky slopes and ridgelines are clearly visible in the daylight, standing above the city ahead. El Paso spreads across the valley with buildings, roads, and neighborhoods becoming more frequent. The highway gradually picks up more lanes, signs, roadside businesses, and heavier traffic as it enters the outskirts of the city.

Hunger: There are a lot of things that need to be adressed if you're comitted to breaking out ICE detainees from a prison. Any rescue that actually helps the people suffering inside requires a lot more than shooting up the place. Detainees need food, medical treatment, translators, legal counsel, transportation off-site, and a network of safe houses for their lives to improve. Victims will most certainly require specialist treatment from child psychologists.

Hunger: The U.S. government will regard the rescue of the captives as a jailbreak of lawfully detained criminals. However, once they are are freed, officials may face challenges in arresting them again. Most deportation candidates are taken under false pretenses, using legal precedents that have since been reversed in appeal. It's one of the defining characteristics of ICE under Trump 2. The same bad paperwork used to hide arrests from oversight make them difficult to repeat. Supervisors fear media fallout.

Hunger: For the three of you that saw Cornucopia House, you know that things are simply not gonna be that easy this time around. You're not out in the middle of nowhere Maryland. No woods around to hide you. You will have to face the consequences of your actions, unless you have a genius escape plan.

Hunger: It's possible to do some good here, provided you do more than dump the liberated back on the streets. You can take as many precautions and investigate as deep as time allows, or until the FBI gets to you, but never forget that time is torture. Does anyone have any ideas?

Chris K. Prower: My only thought is wondering how much time we have left before the hammer falls on our heads.

SDUDM George E. Jones: I'm just wondering if there isn't any way we can trojan horse this and enter disguised.

Michael Sajdak: If it comes down to it I will be more than happy to take the fall and tell my prosecutors that I'm an Antifa nut or something, let this all be consigned to history that way. It's the others that need to worry about getting out afterwards.

Hunger: These are indeed interesting ideas.

Hunger: You do wonder who will be left standing after all is said and done. You're becoming more certain by the second that this is a one-way trip.

Hunger: SAT 26 SEP 26 1200T.

Hunger: Sartore and Sajdak are out. Cruz, Prower and Jones haul their bags.

Hunger: Your footsteps echo in the quiet room.

SDUDM George E. Jones: George tosses his day bag in a corner and slams down onto the bed back first, then looks up at Prower.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "You look like the Batman movie shooter."

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: "Shit, man. This was a fucking terrible idea and you knew it. Fool."

SA Chris K. Prower: "Yeah, well, maybe they'll just think we were crazy or something when it's all over. And people will stop…" He looks out the window, thoughtfully. "Nothing's going to stop…"

SA Chris K. Prower: "It's not my fault the dyepack was orange, anyway."

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: "The hair dye didn't need to be asshole."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "I was working with incomplete information, man, if you guys had any better ideas you could've vocalized them at the meeting."

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: He leans against the window. "Not much we can do about that now."

SDUDM George E. Jones: He sits up, looks at nothing in particular and then says "Fuck that fat fuck. He had it coming a long time."

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: He's quiet. Meanwhile, one of you is getting broiled out in the desert, close by.

SDUDM George E. Jones: He claps once and stands up. "How are we proceeding, gentlemen. We need a game plan for infiltrating a secure federal facility."

Hunger: As you think it over with the miserables…

Chris K. Prower: "Getting an idea of how many people will be there is a start."

Hunger: Sajdak. It's noon.

Hunger: The wind blows hard over you.

Michael Sajdak: I made a point to come here without telling the others and leave the rifle at home, I'm not trying to wave my dick around these guys.

Hunger: You see a black sedan approaching. It kicks dust as it speeds towards you.

2018 Honda Civic: It parks some dozen meters away from you. Two men dismount and begin approaching.

Silas Grant: Familiar faces perhaps? They do seem like they are here to talk, if they haven't gunned you down already.

Marcus Williams: "Well."

Marcus Williams: "We've received your letter."

Michael Sajdak: "I'm glad. Very glad. I can only imagine the dirt we've got on the spooks is of interest to you, then."

Marcus Williams: "Not surprised at all the traitors are being what they are once again."

Silas Grant: He coughs.

Marcus Williams: "Let's hear the pitch."

Michael Sajdak: "You can have everything we've got and in return I'd like your help putting a stop to Esau Tillman and his child-sacrifice operation. Simple as that."

Hunger: Roll Persuade blind.

Marcus Williams: "Thanks for being honest."

Marcus Williams: "We'll do it."

Michael Sajdak: "We know where he's running it and we know the identity of every one of his associates. There's the legalese to take care of, and how me and the others are gonna come out of the clusterfuck that'll inevitably come out of this, but that's our problem. Frankly if the fucker behind all of this dies I'll die a happy man no matter what."

Hunger: Roll INT. Public.

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Success -> 34

Hunger: These guys are a realistic option if you want to get to Chasten.

Hunger: You'd have to bring that up though.

Silas Grant: He looks into the distance.

Michael Sajdak: That I do. "He's got a contact out of the state who seems to be the vizier behind his rise to spookhood, so to speak. Of course, we can't really touch him since we're stuck here for now…"

Marcus Williams: "The way you put it we do not have much time."

Marcus Williams: "I need a number of your people for the hardware I can squeeze out."

Michael Sajdak: "Five."

Marcus Williams: "Can do. However, we do not have a lot of time."

Marcus Williams: "This vizier. It looks like its either gonna be him or us with you on the raid."

Marcus Williams: "I'd say you have maybe until Monday evening until the feds begin descending on you and your folk."

Michael Sajdak: "That's fine. I'm grateful if you can do anything at all. I'd rather you bagged that bastard if I was to make a choice."

Marcus Williams: "Okay."

Marcus Williams: He will roll Luck. On a heads, you're lucky.

Marcus Williams: 2

Marcus Williams: "We can do this 2 AM if we go now."

Michael Sajdak: "That's perfect, then. I don't care so much about him dying - I just wanna know what he knows about this operation they're running. Where they're getting the kids, anyone else who might be in on it… any sorta weak link here. If you can torture anything like that out of the guy I'll be happy."

Marcus Williams: "Sure. We can hold a phone against his ear."

Silas Grant: "Storage Unit 121. 4681 Ripley Drive, 79922."

Silas Grant: "You have…"

Silas Grant: He checks his watch.

Silas Grant: "About until tomorrow 2PM to wait."

Michael Sajdak: "I'll have everything we've got by then. I'm glad I had the chance to see you guys one last time."

Marcus Williams: "Right. It's been a real game of cat and mouse."

Marcus Williams: They are leaving.

Michael Sajdak: Hahahaha.

Michael Sajdak: I'll head back and let George and Prower know what's happening to that briefcase.

Hunger: 1300T.

Hunger: Landmarks are available by clicking on Notes.

Hunger: You're free to act. Sartore has the ice.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I have to get in contact with Luke Keane first.

Hunger: Ringing…

Hunger: "Hello? Who is this?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "So, a little bird told me you were in El Paso."

Hunger: "Ohhh it's you. Did you change your number?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "It's complicated, and we need to talk about it."

Hunger: "How complicated?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "The type of complicated I think you'll resent me for bringing you into after all these years once we're done."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I really need a hand, though."

Hunger: "Sounds like you're neck deep in shit."

Hunger: "Well. You caught me in the middle of something."

Hunger: You can hear kids laughing in the background.

Hunger: "I'll call you back when I can meet you. I need to make up an excuse."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Alright. Thank you, thanks a lot. I'll see you."

Hunger: "Right. It's probably not gonna be today, though."

Hunger: "Bye."

Hunger: He hangs up.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Would El Paso Water HQ have a rough blueprint of the Frank Harvey plant?

Hunger: Roll INT.

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls Success -> 34

Hunger: Why not go straight for the kill and head down to the city hall? They might pull some "its intellectual property" crap on you there.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: 2nd question before moving: did Julian get back to me on that favor I asked of him regarding Chasten Laugherty and his electronic communications?

SDUDM George E. Jones: That is true. We should probably get that done. I don't think our fed creds are flagged yet, so the civvies working there won't give us too hard of a time.

Michael Sajdak: Speaking of, I wanna see about getting us some plausible cover to do some B&E on the homes we've learned about. Some new cars would be a start - I'm thinking we break into one and hide it somewhere for when we wanna start burgling Conrad's buddies.

Hunger: No. He didn't call you back yet. You don't have to make the call again.

Hunger: That being said actions are…

Hunger: George is heading to the city hall. The rest, I don't know.

SA Chris K. Prower: We don't even know if Conradin uses his apartment. He probably lives at that water treatment plant like it's his house.

Hunger: You still know his address on behalf of the Program's research.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I need to buy a snap gun somewhere.

SA Chris K. Prower: A lot of these places seem like huge traps. If the Program wanted to get us, they'd have people watching his apartment and other sensitive areas.

Hunger: They don't sell that shit anywhere but online in 2026. And you're cash only. Sad.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll just get a fucking crowbar then.

Hunger: Easy work. Any old hardware store has one for buying.

Hunger: Incidental expense.

Michael Sajdak: The only problem is making sure we don't give the game away by getting arrested for petty theft or some shit but my plan hasn't changed. We're on very short time and I'm up to bust into literally every one of those houses in succession.

Michael Sajdak: George is our B&E guy right?

Hunger: Is anyone else joining George?

SA Chris K. Prower: I am.

Hunger: He's going down to the city hall.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Not me. I'm off to scout Terry Smedley's trailer first thing, and stop on the way if I find a survival goods store I can buy a pair of binoculars at.

SDUDM George E. Jones: I have my lockpicking kit, it's not exactly a snap gun.

Michael Sajdak: Probably best if we hold off until George is free then, I'll join Sartore in scoping these homes out.

Hunger: Sports binoculars are an incidental expense. Just lets you scout from a short to medium distance. Nothing impressive. That is, what would anyone think of it if they saw a bee on a bike looking at someones trailer in the trailer park?

A woman (Sartore): I'm just driving by. The binoculars I want for the facility.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: Cruz is not doing anything in particular. He will rest it off in the motel.

Hunger: George and Prower pull up in front of the city hall.

SDUDM George E. Jones: You wave off the security guard with your badge. He doesn't give a shit.

A Man, in a suit (1): "Hi. What can I do for you?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Y'ello, I need blueprints for public water infrastructure. You got any of those?"

A Man, in a suit (1): He inflates his cheeks and blows from his puckered mouth. "Anything specific sir?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Frank Harvey water reclamation plant, was it?"

A Man, in a suit (1): "I'll see what I can do."

SA Chris K. Prower: I stand a bit away from George. I look like an activist type. It doesn't make sense to be so close to him.

Hunger: This will take an accounting and a law roll. Failing either will result in 6 hours of research instead of 4.

SDUDM George E. Jones: George stuffs his hands in his suit pockets and looks around. What if these fucks had them scrubbed?

SA Chris K. Prower: Can I assist?

Hunger: Of course. That being said, nobody gives a shit about your casual fit here.

Hunger: That much you can see.

SA Chris K. Prower: SA Chris K. Prower rolls Failure -> 90

SA Chris K. Prower: SA Chris K. Prower rolls Failure -> 84

Hunger: It will take longer than you thought. You will be done at around 6 PM.

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls Failure -> 36

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls Failure -> 30

Hunger: No need for that.

Hunger: The Frank Harvey Water Reclamation Plant in El Paso, Texas, opened in 1985. It is a wastewater treatment/reclamation facility. The plant was built as part of the Hueco Bolson Recharge Project. El Paso depended heavily on the rapidly depleting Hueco Bolson aquifer for its municipal water supply, while groundwater levels were under pressure from heavy pumping. The Frank Harvey facility treated municipal wastewater and then injected the highly treated water into the Hueco Bolson aquifer through injection wells.

Hunger: The plant was designed for approximately 10 million gallons per day. Its treatment train was unusually advanced for the period, including biological treatment, powdered activated carbon, lime treatment, filtration, disinfection and granular activated carbon. The treated water was injected into the aquifer and subsequently recovered through production wells for El Paso's water system. The plant underwent major overhauls in 2001 and 2012.

SDUDM George E. Jones: That's space age for 1985, damn.

Hunger: The significant development in 2001 was the recharge basin, which changed part of the aquifer-recharge operation from direct injection to infiltration. By 2003, the basin accounted for roughly 40% of annual recharge of the aquifer. Bla bla bla… None of you really resonate with this technical stuff, and it's all blasted boring.

Hunger: A remarkably sophisticated computerized filtration management system was built into the junction house in 2012. It can be run by a single person but is consistently staffed by two employees for insurance purposes. A third employee can be added in instances of heavy usage. This also massively downsized the volume of machinery and employee quarters required in order to operate the plant, with most of the outbuildings and pump rooms being taken down or repurposed.

Hunger: Current blueprints are unavailable at the city hall. The red tape was expanded to include the machinery sections of the plant as the intellectual property of El Paso Water. Blueprints from 2001 show many outbuildings that simply don't exist today, recorded as fully or partially demolished.

Hunger: Continue?

SDUDM George E. Jones: Bummer, not at all unexpected.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Continue.

Hunger: Accounting (Subleases): Government records reveal there has been a sublease operational in the property since JAN 30 2017. ICE leased the building from El Paso Water, getting it cheap due to camaraderie between the Trump 1 administration and the company's owners.

Hunger: ICE initially subcontracted the facility to house dangerous "Islamic terrorists" caught by ICE raids. They prepared to receive hundreds of foreign nationals in a kind of domestic GITMO. Since no terrorist of any kind has ever been caught crossing the southern border with Mexico, ever, the facility remained officially unoccupied.

Hunger: Focus apparently pivoted when ICE subleased the location to Laugherty Youth Facilitation Force (LYFForce), a private company owned by Kyle Laugherty. LYFForce holds a contract with ICE "to facilitate detainment needs in the El Paso region." The contract reserves a part of the facility to be the corporate intellectual property of LYFForce and not subject to inspection by El Paso Water, which is a contractual requirement for the rest of the facility.

Hunger: Nobody knows what LYFForce is doing in there. You're baffled at just how many shells protect the company. LYFForce has sub-subleased the area reserved as their corporate property to another legal entity: "ICE! Maintenance" for the “reserved for corporate IP” area demanded by the contract was deducted by LYFForce as a cost, thus revealing that the square footage has been rented out to a completely different ICE facility and at ludicrously low rates.

Hunger: The government has shelled ownership of the facility to the point that America is no longer aware it owns it. The chief agent listed as the contact for this storage site is Agent Esau Tillman of Enforcement and Removal Operations’ Detention Management Division (DMD).

Hunger: Law (The "Surplus"): The “Surplus”, that being the nickname for the facility subcontracted to LYFForce is well-known in the local immigration law community. Some families that managed to learn the location of their loved ones and scraped up the resources to hire a lawyer could secure several releases for teens kept in the facility.

Hunger: Almost all of the captives lacked formal charges, aside from failing to staple their immigration papers to their heads. However, many families lack the means to secure any counsel, so the Surplus holds on to most “clients” collected by its enforcement agents and local police.

Hunger: The incentives for the mass incarceration are clear. A rough calculation reveals that LYFForce probably pays less than $2.30 per inmate, per day, against a $208/day stipend provided by the government. The $205.70 per inmate profit doesn’t even account for the daily bonus LYFForce receives for each “slam dunk” deportation candidate: anyone caught committing a crime, including jaywalking, fornication, minor drug possession, and underage drinking. They profit off every extension and court delay.

Hunger: Many litigations brought up vs. City of El Paso over the operations in the Surplus resulted in covering for 30% of the legal fees at best, and dismissal at worst. The Biden administration, in all honesty, did not "crackdown" on the ICE as much as change its priorities at first and return them to Trump 1 levels at the tail end of Biden's term. What Trump 1 and 2 did with the ICE, and how all of these cases managed to fall through, is a story that doesn't even need further elaboration.

Hunger: The "Surplus", much like the rest of the unaccounted-for holding facilities of ICE, is a completely legal operation. One backed up by the strongest military power in history.

Hunger: The sun is still up but not for long. Prower gains a second stack of fatigue.

Chris K. Prower: Condition Changes Fatigued

SA Chris K. Prower: "Can we get going?"

Hunger: You will need to roll for WP if you wish to work for more than two hours today.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Let's get outta here."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "We didn't get anything but more context."

A Man, in a suit (1): "Thank you. Right. Assholes."

Hunger: Let's see how the trailer thing went.

Hunger: Here it is. It's just a double trailer.

A woman (Sartore): No obvious activity riding past?

A woman (Sartore): Any neighbors?

Hunger: You're in Sajdak's car on the stakeout.

Hunger: No one seems to be in or around his trailer.

Michael Sajdak: I at least want a change of clothes or something before we bust this thing open.

Hunger: You already took a crowbar with you. Your masks are nearby.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Yeah, in plain daylight. Thanks for the suggestion, but we're just scouting these places out right now.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: If there are no neighbors to talk to here we're moving on to Lowe's place.

Hunger: In a Saturday evening, it might be even less comfortable for you to break into his house.

Hunger: Just a thought.

Michael Sajdak: We're not -talking- to anyone.

Michael Sajdak: I'm thinking we go in right now. If Sartore doesn't like it I'll drop her off somewhere and bust in on my own.

Hunger: You've spent a good three hours here. You can spend another three in front of Lowe's if you wish to sync.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Well if I had my bike I could've gone on ahead. Breaking in is just going to tip him off.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Whatever.

Hunger: Decide.

Michael Sajdak: I'm masking up. I'll give Sartore my car keys and tell her to park it around the corner before I get up and go round the back with the crowbar.

Hunger: Doable. You're moving in alone.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Yeah. I'll do that.

A man (Sajdak): She can either come with me or hold off, either call is fine.

Hunger: You jam the crowbar between the door and the frame and crack it open. It's a goddamn trailer not Fort Knox.

A man (Sajdak): Immediately I'll start pocketing phones or whatever looks sorta valuable to make this look like a robbery but obviously I'm looking for correspondence between him and Esau. Also I've got my gun out.

Hunger: Search. Public.

A man (Sajdak): Has he got a laptop, PC with a harddrive I can take?

A man (Sajdak): A man (Sajdak) rolls Failure -> 35

Hunger: You fail to find any electronics but you do find an AR-15 tactically situated behind the drawer in the bedroom.

Hunger: For valuables you get about one Standard expense worth of cool looking decorations you could cash in for a Criminology roll at the pawnshop.

Hunger: The man lives spartan.

Hunger: Other than that…

Hunger: You find books. Lots of them.

Hunger: The strata of neo-Nazi publications found in Terry Smedley's house indicate a vintage of white nationalism born of the militia movement of the early '90s. When leadership wanted "to infiltrate the enemy," he tried to become a cop. The closest he got was juvenile corrections officer. The man's racist extracurriculars slowed when Terry's militia folded shortly before 9/11. Smedley had to be content abusing his authority at the El Paso Juvenile Center for fun, without the higher purpose provided by his precious 14 words.

A man (Sajdak): More or less what I expected. If that's everything I'll be off, probably leaving that gun since I doubt I have a chance hauling that to the car without getting noticed.

Hunger: Wise decision. We move on.

Hunger: 2174 Bluff Ridge Avenue.

Hunger: Lowe sure knows how to live.

Hunger: Fitting for someone with a paycheck from both DoJ and LYFForce.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "This looks right out of a 3D render."

Hunger: It is certanly something you couldn't afford.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Where's his place. And this is important: I do not want to break in. I want to see if we can determine whether or not he lives on his own by checking his mail.

Hunger: Roll Alertness. +20.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 75

Hunger: His lights are on. You can't see the inside of the mailbox. It's quite secure. However you do know he is celibate.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: How's surveillance around these parts?

Michael Sajdak: This one is obviously gonna have more robust security than the trailer, so if we're breaking in at all I'm thinking we wait for George and take full precaution in the event he's got CCTV or something.

Michael Sajdak: Quite frankly I'm not against busting in while he's inside and killing or torturing him tonight.

Hunger: Lowe is no small fish for whatever operation Esau is running.

Hunger: Roll INT.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: That sounds right, but this one's a prominent LYFForce figure and we've already iced a US Attorney.

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Success -> 30

Hunger: Tomorrow is Sunday. That is most definitely an off-day for whatever job he does at this level. However, come Monday morning and he is unreachable…

Michael Sajdak: I think we'd need proper disguises and a car that isn't the one we're using to drive around if we wanna make this play. We could get a hold of all those by tomorrow.

Hunger: Proper disguise? You could straight up lie to Lowe or just mask up.

Michael Sajdak: Fair enough but if our plates get ID'ed we're fucked so that still stands.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm thinking we want to hold off until tomorrow night or very very early in the morning on Monday to make any more irreversible moves. I want to spend some time today figuring out what other civilians have LYFForce El Paso on their Linkedin profiles or something.

Hunger: Interesting proposal.

Michael Sajdak: Sooner is better and we could probably wait till midnight when he's asleep.

Hunger: Are you departing now?

Michael Sajdak: I'll ask George for help on this.

Michael Sajdak: Me and George should hit this in the middle of the night.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Yes, I want to get my bike ready for tonight anyway and tapping in at the motel for the Linkedin thing sounds right.

A woman (Sartore): Also, realistically…

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Nevermind, forget it.

Hunger: Jones and Prower will be able to join you in two hours.

Hunger: 1600T.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: Cruz is still unassigned to anything and seems perfectly content.

Hunger: Sartore rolls Compsci.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Cruz should go and spend his money getting civilian equipment we can use at h-hour.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 56

Hunger: Cruz can go check out Rapp's house on his own.

Hunger: That being said.

Hunger: Sartore. LYFForce employees below a certain paygrade are nonexistent on LinkedIn. This is a private prison company. Of course they don't advertise like that.

Hunger: There are upper level managers that you don't even recognize somewhere in their DC headquarters.

Hunger: However you do find some censored images of their uniform. Canary yellow polo on top of navy blue cargo pants.

Hunger: It's ugly as fucking sin.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I assume they've got logos on the polos.

Hunger: What is Sajdak doing on the by?

Hunger: Yes. On the backs.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I wanna check in on this again: will these binoculars be enough to scout the facility out from the hills at night from a distance?

Michael Sajdak: I wanna see about getting a car we can use for the remaining two break-ins that we can just dump in the desert once we're done with it. I was thinking we just straight-up steal one but maybe it'd be smarter to just buy one with cash off Craigslist or some shit.

Hunger: From the hills?

Hunger: You mean the Franklin Mountains?

SA Chris K. Prower: That's very far.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: That's way too far away. I'd need a telescope.

Hunger: That is approximately 13 kilometers away to the facility an these toys are obviously not enough. However. You are one step ahead with this thought.

Hunger: You could purchase one at an Unusual expense in a respectable sporting goods store.

Hunger: Telephoto is not a rare hobby.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm up to spend Cruz's Unusual expense.

Hunger: Let me put it this way.

Hunger: You are going to go haggle at a pawn shop for a camera for the goods. And then you're gonna go buy a telephoto lens for it in a sporting goods store. You are one Standard expense in debt afterwards.

Hunger: Not really debt. You need to cough it up no matter what or beg for a discount.

Hunger: Then you will be out of money.

Hunger: There are a lot of cameras for cheap at pawn shops.

Hunger: You can pawn your biking stuff for a standard expense.

Hunger: Sajdak will take care of it. Cruz will check out Rapp's place although what he is meant to buy afterwards is unclear.

Hunger: After this you are completely broke.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Not everything, I do want to keep the helmet and boots at least so I'm at least recognizable in the event of a catastrophic event. Didn't we steal some shit from Smedley too?

Hunger: They aren't willing to pay the full price for womens size.

Hunger: Sajdak will negotiate with a Persuade Blind.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Fuck them then, they either take it or they don't. I don't give a shit.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: If this fails we're not giving them shit. I'll figure it out.

Michael Sajdak: Don't we have a fuckton of crystal meth? Why aren't we getting Prower to try and sell some of that off or something?

Hunger: …

Hunger: Hit the roll please.

SA Chris K. Prower: What?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: That's just a Standard expense's worth and I intend to use it to get shit done at night.

Hunger: You can pawn the full set to pay off for the telephoto lens. Not a cent more.

Michael Sajdak: I mean in the long-term but whatever.

Hunger: Proceed?

Michael Sajdak: Yes

SA Francesca R. Sartore: This fucking sucks.

Hunger: It does. You're no longer a bee.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm one step closer to suicide.

Hunger: Now lets see what Cruz sees.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: He pulls up in front of his driveway. It's condos stacked side by side.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: Nothing happens for a good thirty or so minutes. And then…

Alan Rapp: He walks out and locks the door behind him. He stretches his shoulders and begins to walk away.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: "Goddamn."

Hunger: Alan is SEVEN foot tall.

Alan Rapp: He is graceful with his movements. Most people at this height are usually awkard. He grew into his shoes.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: "Someone should have scouted your sorry ass out."

Alan Rapp: He slowly leaves and makes way to his car.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: Cruz won't attempt to break into his place on his own.

Hunger: 1800T.

Hunger: Everyone is free to act.

SA Chris K. Prower: Sleep. I need to sleep. I'm about to pass out on my feet.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We need to check out Eps— I mean Tillman's place.

Hunger: Prower walks into the motel room as you are getting done with your online search.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I hate your hair."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "And you're fucking annoying the shit out of me with it."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm just going to leave now.

Michael Sajdak: I already mentioned what I wanna do.

Hunger: The giant bag of meth looks like a conversation starter on the nightstand.

Hunger: What is Jones up to?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Ayupp… I'm taking that.

SDUDM George E. Jones: I'm back from the city hall, I can tag along if Sajdak needed me.

Michael Sajdak: Not yet.

Hunger: He probably will considering he is about to BnE into another house.

Michael Sajdak: Oh?

Hunger: You said checking out Conradin's place.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I can bike over there to meet them and collect the camera from Michael, right?

Hunger: Sure. On that matter, there is a cool sporting goods store nearby that closes in an hour.

Hunger: Not open on Sundays.

Michael Sajdak: No Sartore said that, I mentioned before I wanted to see about getting a throwaway car for the remainder of our crime spree.

Hunger: This is not as easy as it sounds. Ten years ago you already wanted to do something similar on a whim and fucked up.

Hunger: You'll need to scout one out. See if the owner is nearby. Or plan to jack one.

Hunger: All are risky.

Hunger: Jacking is especially risky out here.

Michael Sajdak: I doubt buying one is on the table and I think taking this precaution will be less risky than using the same car we're driving around town with to rob and possibly murder a guy.

Hunger: Anyway. Things are moving fast and we could do this during your downtime.

Hunger: For now we should stay focused on what we can do right now.

Michael Sajdak: Meaning Conradin's home?

Hunger: Do you only want to stake it out?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Can you remind me what got my attention from the sporting goods shop? Am I going to freeze to death overnight at the mountains?

Hunger: Overnight is a funny word. You can not do night vision surveillance from thirteen kilometers. Whatsoever.

Hunger: The day is about to end soon.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: What time is sundown?

Hunger: In an hour or two. Doubtful you will get anywhere with it.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll just join in on what these two are doing.

Michael Sajdak: I'm willing to go inside Conradin's crib specifically because knowing him it will probably be abandoned but that's the rest of the team's call.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I agree on this.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Let's ride.

Hunger: Okay. Prower? You are trying to sleep next to a sack of meth.

Michael Sajdak: There's no way he would make finding him this easy. We've interacted with the Quiet Children enough at this point to know better.

SA Chris K. Prower: I'm quite tired and I'm not the type of person to indulge in methamphetamine.

SA Chris K. Prower: They're not my drugs, anyway.

Hunger: Peer pressure is not out of the equation.

Hunger: Ahem.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Unless he's not constantly in Bast mode.

SDUDM George E. Jones: There's a chance he has periods of lucidity.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'd push him to smoke that good rock with me but this is probably the last night he'll be able to get some decent sleep in.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll let him sleep tonight. I'm taking a couple of doses with me for tonight.

Hunger: Also this is the same night you are gonna hit up Lowe right.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Should be.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Actually, no. We said tomorrow.

Hunger: After this all of you will need a hit to avoid exhaustion.

Michael Sajdak: Not if we can't get a car till tomorrow

Hunger: Okay. Prower is jerking himself off to sleep. Cruz will do your shopping for you.

Hunger: Cha ching. No need to go over this as he is currently unensouled.

Hunger: You are officially on a neutral balance sheet.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Where we're going we won't be needing money.

Hunger: 1830T.

Hunger: The address is in one of the city's roughest neighborhoods: a single door in the middle of a blocks-long, crumbling row of identical buildings. It resembles worst of the worst type of social housing, yet these apartments are privately owned, at least according to what you found on archive.

Michael Sajdak: I'll see about liquidating the robbery loot I got before the end of today and reminding Prower to see what he can do with our crypto reserves.

Hunger: The loot is gone. Roll Alertness.

Hunger: The only security cameras operating in the street broke long ago. There are no signs of an alarm system. You could probably get in through the front door quickly. It's not the kind of neighbourhood B&E gets called in here. A prybar could do the trick.

Hunger: Jones.

Hunger: You swear you just saw a curtain move a little.

SDUDM George E. Jones: George glances at Sajdak. "Someone's in."

SDUDM George E. Jones: I'm guessing a cat.

Michael Sajdak: "I doubt it's him."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "You think he's got family? Of his own, I mean."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "I wouldn't have my worst enemy live in this fuckin' squat."

Michael Sajdak: "Fuck no." I'm masking up and heading in.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Are there like no people around whatsoever?

Hunger: Sartore. You have the UZI with you.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Yeah, it's tucked nicely under my jacket.

Hunger: Not a lot of them around.

Hunger: You can go in if you want.

Michael Sajdak: George can be the one to pry the door open, and meanwhile me and Sartore will take the sides with guns out.

SDUDM George E. Jones: George is masking up and grabbing the crowbar.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Not a lot" is still "more than enough to call the cops on us." I think the wise move is to wait till it's dark.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Come on, guys.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Let's stop acting fucking retarded.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "This is the ghetto. What are the odds anybody cares?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "That's what you think?"

Hunger: You can hear the sounds of Mexico from here.

Hunger: This is for sure not where you came from.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "I think we blitz this and scram. We don't have much time."

Michael Sajdak: If Sartore wants to hang back then we'll do what we did last time and let her park the car someplace discreet while me and George break in.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Gah I'll just go with them.

Hunger: Very well.

Hunger: 11121 Mesa Arroyo St, El Paso, TX 79927

Hunger: You're standing in front of the door.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Prying it.

Hunger: Jones gets the first go. STR.

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls Failure -> 96

SDUDM George E. Jones: Now that's rare.

Hunger: Thump. Thump. Thump.

Hunger: You are for sure that was not quiet or subtle.

Hunger: Turn 1.

Michael Sajdak: Lemme hold this side and take overwatch.

Michael Sajdak: Condition Changes Focusing

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm running the rabbit and having Jones peek it after me.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Is that valids?

Hunger: Move.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Testing doorknob.

Hunger: The apartment is spartan. All the furniture seems second hand or clearance sale. The whole place is carefully arranged with almost no signs of usual living. The kitchen looks barely used.

Hunger: Your turn is over.

Hunger: Sorry. Continue.

Michael Sajdak: You can't partir au anglaise in the middle of a combat scene so I am acting for him.

Michael Sajdak: That being said he moves in and holds the door.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Which way does this door open, towards me?

Hunger: Yes.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Am I at the handle side?

Hunger: You need to reach.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Yeah, I'm opening it this turn.

Hunger: A soap-scummed shower and immaculate toilet, the towel crusty and dry from long use without a wash. Tillman is not here regularly.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll nod at Jones and turn.

Hunger: No surprises here.

A huge man (Jones): Moving up to the next door.

A huge man (Jones): Opens out?

A huge man (Jones): Or in?

Hunger: Handle is on that side. Sartore can't slip in at the same turn. You are completely blocking the way with your mass.

Hunger: It opens like this

A huge man (Jones): Given that it's probably the last room, the bedroom, I can just attempt to do an 80s cop bust into it when I open it. What does everyone else think?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I think you want me and Mike to be able to shoot and I'm in a shitty position right now but if there's anyone in there they know we're here already.

A huge man (Jones): Or I can wait it.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Wait this one out let Mike get in position if you wanna make it safer.

Michael Sajdak: Just wait, it'll take like a second until I'm in position to aim.

A huge man (Jones): Let's get into position first, I'm going to let the others get into it.

Michael Sajdak: I'll head to the side of George, looking into the door when it opens.

Hunger: Okay.

Hunger: This is very claustrophobic.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I want George to open it for me, then I'm running the rabbit again and letting him run in after I do.

Hunger: I said this will not be possible. George is too fucking huge.

Hunger: You are next to the fridge.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Just get that shit open past me so I can see inside then.

Hunger: I mean come on look closer to what you look like right now.

Hunger: George opens the door for you.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Now I'm Stepping In At A Full Sprint

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Clear."

Hunger: As soon as you run in…

???: Unarmed combat at +20 to put you into a hostage hold.

???: ??? rolls Failure -> 89

???: It's messy. You are now on the floor.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Condition Changes Prone

Michael Sajdak: "Don't shoot."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I know better than to scream, but I'll keep his attention on me.

???: They haven't shot despite holding onto a Silenced USP.

Hunger: Continue.

A huge man (Jones): I'm coming in to wrestle this guy off and get him in the walls of jericho, or something.

A huge man (Jones): Just in a hold, I guess.

Hunger: Let me put it this way. They are two people in a space one person can barely lie on.

Hunger: A third and a fourth in your case…

Hunger: You could crush Sartore.

Hunger: They are grappling on the floor.

A huge man (Jones): Is the USP somewhere?

Hunger: Yes. In their hands.

Hunger: That being said…

Hunger: Roll Alertness.

A huge man (Jones): A huge man (Jones) rolls Failure -> 73

Hunger: Something is strange about them. You're not sure. Decide on what to do now.

A huge man (Jones): I can put the cold steel of my pistol against the back of his head?

Hunger: No they are grappling on the floor.

Hunger: Sartore is at a disadvantage.

A huge man (Jones): Shit, I'm a tree trunk of a man, I could grab him by the scruff of his neck like a kitten realistically. Given that they're grappling smacking his gun hand really isn't an option here, huh?

Hunger: You have twenty seconds to come up with an action against this person that is as big as you.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Do they smell of seafood for me?

Hunger: …

A huge man (Jones): I'll chance it with trying to grab this bastard off.

Hunger: Unarmed at minus fourty.

A huge man (Jones): If you get a broken rib I'll treat you to ice cream, Sartore.

A huge man (Jones): A huge man (Jones) rolls Failure -> 37

???: In the scuffle…

???: "What the fuck?"

A huge man (Jones): "Who the fuck are you?!"

???: "What the fuck are you doing here?"

A huge man (Jones): I presume hostilities cease momentarily?

???: Where do you recognize this voice from?

Michael Sajdak: Can I even go inside if it's that cramped?

Hunger: You can look from behind Jones.

Michael Sajdak: Then I'll do that with the gun out. "Take the mask off."

???: "Holy shit-"

???: They yield. The fight is over.

???: The USP clatters against the floor as they back up.

???: Condition Changes Prone

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "You didn't have to do all that shit." I'll get up and dust myself off.

A huge man (Jones): "Holy fucking shit, woman."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Don't shoot. What in the WORLD are you people doing here?"

A huge man (Jones): "Right back at you - what the fuck are you out here for?"

Michael Sajdak: I put my own gun down. "Chasing the same trail as you from the look of it."

A huge man (Jones): George holsters his pistol.

SA Almudena Velasquez: "They just told me to watch this place for a few days."

A huge man (Jones): "Who is this 'they'?"

Michael Sajdak: "Ahh fuck."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "What do you mean who is this they? You know exactly who."

Michael Sajdak: "You were sent out here to find us."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "What? You found ME."

A huge man (Jones): George looks at his compatriots, exasparated.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I don't even know who you are."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Me neither."

A huge man (Jones): "She's, uh, an old acquaintance back from the digsite days."

Michael Sajdak: "It's a long story— fucking hell, talk about a coincidence…"

Michael Sajdak: "I'm not even sure what to do here."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "You could start by explaining."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Who's your case officer?"

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Why are you breaking into this place?"

A huge man (Jones): "Same reason you got stuck with watching this god-forsaken apartment that your mark probably doesn't use, like, ever."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "What? That doesn't make any sense."

SA Almudena Velasquez: Jones. Roll HUMINT.

SA Almudena Velasquez: Her confusion is real.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Are you staking this place out to kill the guy who lives here or are you keeping it safe for him?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Yeah, okay - did they just tell you to squat this joint with no context or what?"

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Yeah? That's like ninety percent of all assignments!"

SA Almudena Velasquez: She's not wrong.

Michael Sajdak: "Fuck, man. Y'wanna know what happened? They sent you here to find us because they knew we'd be looking for the guy who owns this place. And for all intents and purposes we're meant to be enemies now."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I have not a fucking clue what you are on about."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I'm not gonna kill you two out of all people even if they made me to."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Man, hold on," he raises a hand to Michael for him to shut up.

Michael Sajdak: "George, I'm gonna tell her everything. There's no point in hiding it now we've got to this point."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "What everything?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll puff my cheeks up and exhale deeply.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "This isn't the place to do it. You got read in and now you're basically a gangstalker, right?"

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Well so are you. We're on the same side. Or at least it appears to be that way now."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Do you feel like you're making a difference?" he looks at her very seriously and expectantly as he enunciates his words.

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Uhh.."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I guess."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "What do you have for me?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: That wasn't very convincing.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "This is a nice and all, but we just broke into this place and I'd really like to check it top to bottom before this high school reunion can go ahead."

Michael Sajdak: "Let's go get a coffee and talk this over."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "This is a dead end and nobody will notice that you're not in this place,"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Let's get, like now."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I mean shit. It beats having to shoot eachother over a lack of context now does it."

SA Almudena Velasquez: She nods towards the gun on the ground.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Yeah, yeah, take it."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I need to stop paying attention to these people and huss up to see if there's any books, electronics or anything else of note here.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Vamos, let's move."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Uhh. Alright."

SA Almudena Velasquez: As she gets up she bangs her head on the shelf. It doesnt hurt her but the laptop on it rattles.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm nabbing dat.

SDUDM George E. Jones: George looks at Sartore looking around, "Grab what you need and let's go."

SA Almudena Velasquez: There are also some documents and a notebook on the bed.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm nabbing dat too.

Michael Sajdak: We'll search this place and then hit a diner or something.

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Yeah. Those. It was the only thing worth of interest when I came here but I didn't actually touch it."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Guy didn't even have any food."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "That's cause he doesn't live here. I'm sure you figured that out."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "No I just stood two shifts here. I don't even know who the guy in question is."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Alright. Uh… I'll forget about you putting a gun to my head for now. Sartore."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "We can go now."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Okay. The night shift guy is a few hours away."

SDUDM George E. Jones: Let's close doors and scram.

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I guess we could talk it out."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Who's the night shift guy? The deputy?"

Michael Sajdak: "It's probably better if you just act like you didn't see anything, but we'll get there. Let's go grab a drink."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "No. He's the night shift guy. You know, like, from us."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Let's beat it."

SDUDM George E. Jones: Didn't the deputy get read in too?

SDUDM George E. Jones: Let's move.

SA Almudena Velasquez: You find out that the deputy did not get read in.

Hunger: You manage to sit down at a nearby diner. Rare these are, these days.

SA Almudena Velasquez: "So what's up?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I wanna check the notebook and documents while they talk, I'll try the laptop back at the 'tel.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "You remember me, Michael over here, Darius is around too. Maryam didn't make it, neither did Keith. Or Anderson."

Hunger: You peer over the laptop and the notebook at another table. Let's take a moment to appreciate what you find.

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Shit. What happened?"

Michael Sajdak: "The long and short of it is that we're not friends of The Program anymore. That case with the dig site - basically, one of that kids that got out of that is trying to… complete, or re-do the ritual that they were doing in the orphanage. Kids and all. That's whose apartment you were at and that's why we searched it."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "…Wait wait wait, from the beginning please."

SA Almudena Velasquez: You explain to her the gist of what happened from the last you saw her up to the events of the warehouse. From there on you have the chance to omit.

SA Almudena Velasquez: Sajdak. As she listens intently, you notice that making agent did nothing to lessen her fire.

SA Almudena Velasquez: You can already tell before she even speaks that she is about to explode into questions as to what you are actually doing here and if its as big and bad as the last time as you are together on the job.

Michael Sajdak: I know this, of course, and as a result I don't hesitate to tell her absolutely everything. I explain that being here means we've defected from the program to finish what we've begun all those years ago, that to even get to this point we were nearly killed by - and forced to kill - our own case handler, and that she was posted in Conradin's apartment today to apprehend us, the very people that helped read her into The Program a decade ago."The reason I'm telling you all this is to hammer home that, as a member of The Program, you musn't have anything to do with us. Anything. I trust you enough to figure you'll know I've told you the truth about why we're here, our intentions. What I'd like in return is for you to act like we've never met."

Hunger: Conradin's stuff is accessible in journals tab by the way.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll quietly take a seat at her side of the table by the time I'm through reading through the papers and the laptop.

Hunger: Everyone. Before we go ahead throw two SANLOSS. One for the opening of the briefcase. The second one for seeing this.

Hunger: They are coming. You are here.

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Is that so."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Do you know how many nights I spent thinking I could prevent what happened at that orphanage?"

Michael Sajdak: "I can imagine. We all just ruined our lives 'cause we were thinking more or less the same thing."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "What I mean is I am not sleeping on that opportunity."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "This shit has been twenty years in the making, if you weren't there at ground zero in 2001 there really is no reason for you to get into this."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Matter of fact - having been there in the first place is a prerequisite for even getting into it."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Oh yes there is. I know the reason why you killed your case officer is because it was happening again. Isn't it? Give me one more explanation as to why you would brain him."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Alright, you mind if I explain this, Michael?"

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I challenge you to come up with one more reason as to why you would execute your fucking case officer."

Michael Sajdak: "You're right. It is that bad. Probably even worse."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll stifle a sniffle with a hand. "We're just… so fucked."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "You gotta tell me."

SA Almudena Velasquez: She shakes her head.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "You're read in, fuck it. In 2001 we all acquired a sense of smell. Gingerbread, rotting flesh, mixing in the air. You wanna know why we didn't get shafted in 2016? It's that."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I see where this is going. I've seen my share."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "You don't have to divulge into details."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "It's… often hard to remember."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Nah, fuck it, I like you on a personal level and I might as well give you the in on it," I'm going to take my time explaining that we've become pawns of a subatomic intelligence, throwing in the fact that I was at goddamn CERN producing actual research of it. I'm going to tell her the coincidences and outer power that's been moving us.

SDUDM George E. Jones: I'm telling her about Lake Braddock. And I'm telling her that they could've stopped it before it happened.

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Alright. You are confusing the fucking hell out of me and if you want to flirt I'd rather stick to music or something."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Look I get it. This is my turn to do things."

Michael Sajdak: "Pfft."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "You need to give me the rundown on the situation."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "In one ear out the other."

SA Almudena Velasquez: She is not interested in your insane bullshit as much as she is interested in having a part in the raid.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Which agency are you with?"

Michael Sajdak: "If you wanna help us, the most I could ask from you in good conscience is for you to try and keep your colleagues off our trail. Any more than that and you'll be fucked just as bad as us. You understand?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Alright, this is the last time, and I'm really hoping you say no because you will most likely end up dead or wishing you were dead. Are. You. Sure?"

SA Almudena Velasquez: "FBI."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "We need advance notice on when they get wind of our trail and our identities."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I am sure. If I get to put an end to this myself I am ready to go to prison for it."

Michael Sajdak: "Tell her, George."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Your trail and identites. Right. Pitzerelli."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I'm already there."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "By all means I should be dragging you out of here in handcuffs right now but I am not doing it. I think that goes to show."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "This time I won't be sidelined."

Michael Sajdak: "You're right."

SDUDM George E. Jones: Did we end up telling her we killed Pitz because we deducted they had zero intention of putting a stop to this?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Any equipment you can check out of the field office for the shootout, money you can muster… this is going to be fucked up, but if you want in…"

Hunger: No. She figured it out herself. You did say killing a certain case officer and all she had to do was connect the dots from the basement meeting.

Hunger: You are in good hands.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Frank Harvey water reclamation plant."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "What about it."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "ICE facility staffed by a private contractor LYFForce."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Oh shit."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "He's down there making more of us. Orphanage methods."

SA Almudena Velasquez: She rubs her temples.

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Fuck. The ICE. Really."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "He's got an infinite source of kids and protection up from DC."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Why do I find this entirely believable? I think that is the real question."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Yeah, you tell me. You think the Program would ever want to read Trump in?"

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Fuck no."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "They wanted to leave this until his term ends, and probably even after that."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "What's a psycho and few kids huh?"

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Goddamnit."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Not just that - he's been going out of his ways to hire insane people to run his torture machine."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I'll help you out any way I can. And by god I will be there when the time is here."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Pedophiles, extremists, and the like."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "He was there, back at the orphanage."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I know people around this town. I'm staying at a friends for the time being. I'll arrange somewhere for you if they get to your tail before it's over."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I'm sorry— I think we'll also need to know the names and addresses of any personnel attached to your task force that won't play ball with us."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "The night shift guy?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "One of the kids. He's got some sort of split brain syndrome. He's like half normal half the vagrants who have been guided to us."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Im alone on the job along with the night shift guy. I don't even know his fucking name. We just swap hands when its time and that is that."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "It's never meant to be a serious one."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Until now."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Maybe you'll get word from upstairs that more are coming in soon. We'll see."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I could go out and do a few things during the day. Doubtful they will even notice my absence."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "They won't as long as you handshake with the other guy."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I can't stick with you though. One camera and it is over before it even begins."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Which you should keep doing until we figure out our plan of action."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Michael, the meet you had, what did they say?"

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I think its a similar one to the last time. Gear up, go there at night, kill every adult, set the whole thing on fire."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Yeah, right. And the kids?"

Michael Sajdak: "That they'd give us guns and bag Conradin's handler back in D.C."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I'll gladly fucking do the killing if we get to free the kids."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Let's square something off right now. I want to be clear on this with everyone."

SA Almudena Velasquez: Silence for too long. Sartore. Roll Intelligence.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "We want to free the kids and get them the help they…"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Success -> 14

SA Almudena Velasquez: She is absolutely in this to save the kids. Turn your muzzle on them and it will not be pleasant.

SA Almudena Velasquez: Not a question about it.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "…need." I nod at her.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Do you know how we might go about getting them said help?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "We can't just leave them out on their own."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I know an immigration lawyer from around here."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "She has ties to NGOs."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "You may want to see her."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I look at Jones and nod repeatedly.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "With what's happening to them realistically the only thing that will help them is an insane asylum with no exits or entrances, but we'll cross that bridge when we get there. If you REALLY want to help the kids we need to set them up being monitored for the rest of their goddamn lives."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "El Puente de la Esperanza. Google it."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "And it's not cause someone will be out to get them, no."

Hunger: You do so. Legal LLC with lots of connections. Big ones. Deep pockets.

Hunger: Unlocked on the map.

Michael Sajdak: "If we crack this egg early enough the kids will be fine. Luckily we're on a tight timer."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I fucking hope we are. Anyway. Do you want anything else from me for now?"

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I need a moment to take this all in."

SDUDM George E. Jones: I presume Green boxes were a cowboy years thing and Program agents get shit issued as needed?

Michael Sajdak: "That's fine. I'm sorry we've, uhh, foisted all this onto you at once."

SDUDM George E. Jones: I doubt she has ready access to unmarked firearms.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Just for you to be aware that we're probably interviewing their legal representative tonight or tomorrow night. But mainly, how much do you think you can check out of the Bureau's field office?"

SA Almudena Velasquez: Velasquez is not given a green box for this mission. Her entire thing here is to stand watch at some guys house during the day and that is IT.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Roger.

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Whatever one person reasonably can."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I might try my luck if it's still open." I check my watch. They've got night shift at the DEA office, right?

SA Almudena Velasquez: "We're neighbours in El Paso, pal."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Of course they are."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "You got a way to check whether our names have entered any FBI watchlists so far?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I don't want to walk in there and come out in cuffs."

Hunger: As far as equipment goes, Velasquez will be able to supply her own stuff (whatever you find her appropriate to have) along with one or two specialist items.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Just carefully. Any search might ping something and that's even before the shitfire with Pitzarelli."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "That is a good question. However I have no APBs on any of you."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "I'll call you if something comes up."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "It's been… refreshing." She is leaving now.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Uh, yeah, the phone situation."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Thank you. I mean it."

Hunger: "Right."

SDUDM George E. Jones: Gotta give her the motel address and phone number.

Hunger: She busts out a piece of paper and a pen and it is done.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "One of us should pick it up, and for what it's worth, I really hoped you would've said no. If at any point you want to back out - you can and should. And this isn't meant to be an insult."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "No. This time I get to do something good for the world, once."

SA Almudena Velasquez: She leaves.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "We'll see if it's any good."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "If you want the kids out you better figure out a contingency," George looks at Sartore.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I'll talk to that immigration lawyer myself."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Because otherwise this will happen again. It's already happened and it will keep happening."

Hunger: On top of the whole satanic child ritual abuse stuff she is also a Mexican woman and has no problem sending ICE agents to the other side either way.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "If you think otherwise, we're going to have to gun down your old buddy there."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "I'd rather it not come to that."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "So you better start thinking, I'll do some of my own, too." George says as he downs his coffee and stands up.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Yes. That's just one more thing that's not gonna work out very well for us in the long run."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Right…"

Hunger: The Bridge of Hope only has two hours of consultation at around 11AM on Sundays that is rendezvous only. With your badge…

Michael Sajdak: "Personally I'm less worried about the children being detained again and more worried about them turning Quiet. My dog in this is up once Conrad's dead."

SDUDM George E. Jones: George looks at Michael for a second: "Maybe your…. nah, they're already doing above and beyond."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "We're lucky it was her here and nobody else."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I need to head to the field office and see if I can check out any gear.

Hunger: You were. You don't want to imagine what the night shift guy would have done to you.

Michael Sajdak: "Anything else that needs doing today?"

Hunger: Sartore. INT roll.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Success -> 31

SDUDM George E. Jones: Or what we would've had to do to him.

Hunger: If you check something out from the office the entire FBI will absolutely BEAM DOWN on El Paso with their full might the second you are a person of interest.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: True. I'll just have to rely on my Contax.

Hunger: You know how these things work. They get around quick.

Hunger: That being said it is…

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Speaking of, nothing from Julian on Chasten I suppose… before the rabid dogs crash down on him?

Hunger: 1900T.

Hunger: Julian still didn't call back.

Hunger: Unless you go to bed or do drugs you will begin rolling WP consumption now.

Hunger: Cruz is still slacking off as he usually does.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Alright, we should make a choice now whether to try interviewing Lowe tonight or tomorrow. With our buddies on their way to meet Chasten and disappear him…

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm absolutely up to start bumping it and head out to Lowe's on my bike if nobody's up for it.

Hunger: We have an hour left for the session. You need to step on the gas.

Hunger: We will do the Bridge on your downtime.

Michael Sajdak: I already laid out my own plan for Lowe and Rapp but if you insist on doing this right now then I'll accompany you.

Hunger: We still haven't explored the possibilty of Trojan horsing your way in.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Can we OSINT the uniform provider for Lyfforce?

Hunger: No need for INT roll. If your name is not on the list you are sure as shit you are not getting in there.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: They will definitely check for employee IDs…

Hunger: However.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Everyone will be balaclava'd up given it's an ICE facility.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Might as well pretend to the Corrections people or local cops.

Hunger: Exactly. How does the local and federal law enforcement interact with the facility?

Hunger: You might learn the answers at the appropriate places.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: But I think I misinterpreted you earlier, Mike, I can hold off on doing that ok.

SDUDM George E. Jones: If we can google stats and news articles about Corrections and El Paso PD transfers to Frank Harvey we'll pretty much have confirmation that they're shipping in kids.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Themselves.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Instead of them being picked up.

Michael Sajdak: My plan was to wait till I see what I can do to prepare during downtime before we do any high profile crimes.

Hunger: News articles are many but you won't learn shit from them.

Chris K. Prower: Conradin's in charge there, and he is acutely aware that we are here to kill him. He's going to be incredibly suspicious of any new faces showing up there. He doesn't know who we are, but I'm sure he can guess if we show up and don't have an immaculate cover.

SDUDM George E. Jones: There's the ICE office but they're likely to blow us off.

SDUDM George E. Jones: We can ask the county sheriff about it.

Hunger: Doable. Anyone else joining you?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Yes.

Hunger: And meth or fatigue?

Chris K. Prower: Sleeping…

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm Smoking.

SDUDM George E. Jones: I'll leave it for when I need it, which is probably the evening before the op.

Hunger: George. If you roll high enough you are too sleepy for it.

Hunger: d6.

SDUDM George E. Jones: 1

SDUDM George E. Jones: Condition Changes Exhausted

Hunger: Sartore chases the dragon. No rolls for the next six hours.

Hunger: Sajdak. Unless sleeping, you have to roll or hit.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I shake my head frantically and blow air out of my mouth.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Incredible."

Michael Sajdak: I'm going to sleep.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Usually it's my people who smoke meth while tuning up monster trucks."

Hunger: Alright. The three of you are being complete laze asses as the time you do not have is slipping by.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "And I'm talking about both Virginia and Samoa here."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "We're— the body is a resource."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "FFFForget about it."

Hunger: Its not me who is about to get his door kicked in. The choices you make are yours to keep.

Hunger: That being said…

Hunger: Here you are. Going in is effortless with your legitimate identities.

Hunger: The inside is getting noticeably quiter, but people are still working.

Hunger: There are some ways to get started. We can give you this one for free as you already had a head start in thinking it out.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Sure.

Hunger: If the right papers could be faked, and the right uniform could be purchased, technically one could gain access to any ICE facility of their choosing within the jurisdiction of El Paso County Sheriff to question someone or to confirm their wellness under some intentionally obscured pretense.

Hunger: The sheer chaos of the collaboration between a federal and a local law enforcement body could mean that the papers you show might as well be waved off as you're let in by the incompetent ICE. However, elevating the ball game from local cops to ICE to other federal agencies to ICE could produce actual consequences. ICE does not need or liberally accept inspection from other federal law enforcement agencies. Red-tape generated by the process could remain in the system for years. It boils down to having the right cover. And not blowing it catastrophically once you're inside, until you come out.

Hunger: Roll Law.

SDUDM George E. Jones: SDUDM George E. Jones rolls Failure -> 60

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 95

Hunger: Law (287g): Since 01 JAN 26, Texas Senate Bill 8 requires county sheriffs to participate in the federal 287(g) immigration-enforcement program. El Paso Sheriff Oscar Ugarte chose the Warrant Service Officer (WSO) model, which is the most limited of the available models. Under that arrangement, the Sheriff's Office primarily deals with immigration enforcement after someone is already booked into the county jail. Deputies can check for outstanding federal immigration warrants and serve those warrants. It is not the model where deputies routinely question people about immigration status during ordinary traffic stops or patrol activity. Sheriff Ugarte has explicitly said the WSO model was selected because of its lower impact on community relations and public trust on ABC News.

Hunger: Despite the niceities in what's said and what's actually done, El Paso County Sheriff had a very cooperative working relationship with the ICE before the Senate Bill 8. Hundreds of people have been immediately handed over to the ICE once their alien status were confirmed. Once they are let go, it's the ICE's problem now.

Hunger: ICE transfers detainees internally under the JPATS program. Once ICE takes someone from a county jail, the process generally becomes a separate federal immigration-custody process. The person's original criminal case and their immigration case are separate. First, ICE takes physical custody from the jail. The person is processed into ICE custody, assigned or confirmed an immigration identification number, and ICE determines the person's immigration status, criminal history, existing immigration orders, and whether they are already in removal proceedings. ICE can keep them at a processing facility or place them in an ICE detention facility or contracted facility.

Hunger: El Paso County Sheriff does not know where, when or for what reason ICE detainees are transported internally. Accessing this highly specific information could require months of red-tape and a good reason. Accessing it in order to discredit Trump 2's ICE is a non-starter. What you can immediately tell is that El Paso County Sheriff and ICE operate on different wavelengths.

Hunger: Putting this together takes about two hours.

Hunger: Anything else to do here?

SDUDM George E. Jones: George just palms his face and sighs.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Theoretically, could we pose as cops and execute one of these wellness checks if we had the mock credentials/uniform/patrol car? Does that sound insane?

Hunger: I just told you that same exact thing.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Even if we got a uniform or car they could just tell us to fuck off.

SDUDM George E. Jones: And they most likely would.

Hunger: There is correspondence between the facility and the sheriff's office.

Hunger: They will not tell you to get the fuck out as soon as they see you.

SDUDM George E. Jones: But it is in fact ICE who picks up the kids and not the other way around?

SDUDM George E. Jones: To the facility, I mean.

Hunger: There are instances of the sheriffs office going in there to retrieve an inmate. Few but happened.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We could pretend it's some administrative fuckup once we're there? Benefit of the doubt, let us get the lay of the land from the inside. But the question remains, how do we even get uniforms or a patrol car from these guys?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We could pretend to be detectives, but then we'd need fake credentials we don't have time to get.

Hunger: The car is a hard sell. Uniforms on the other hand…

SDUDM George E. Jones: Uniforms? Youtubers get em' all the time.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Well we're broke you know.

Hunger: Sartore. INT.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Success -> 74

Hunger: Effectively speaking you are your papers. Whatever you wear at the moment doesn't fucking matter if the paper says you are supposed to be inside talking to someone.

Hunger: You could walk in with a jock strap and the legally operated ICE facility has to comply.

Hunger: How the employees react to your presence would be the make or break.

SDUDM George E. Jones: So it's the matter of a bullshit warrant and then shooting them in their head when they're busy arguing about it, OK.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We'd still need said papers. I don't think we could just ask any of these guys working here or the sheriff to write up a few pages.

Hunger: If you go in there with two people and two pistols that plan will quickly turn kinetic in a bad way.

Hunger: The sheriff is an elected official. The people around here are not.

Hunger: You could leverage your badge here.

Hunger: But this will take a serious amount of time.

Hunger: At least until sun rises.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: How long do we think?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Hmmmm.

SDUDM George E. Jones: If we commit to this plan we really commit to it.

SDUDM George E. Jones: The other option is storming it like Braddock.

Hunger: If you want to break anyone out the trojan horse with two, three of you at max is a non-starter.

Hunger: It could give you intelligence but actually finishing the job is looking like a Braddock no matter what.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I think this warrant pass would not be the raid pass. It'd be more like information-gathering.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We'd just have to be careful not to set any alarms off by being there. I'm up to do this.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll stay up all night here.

Hunger: You will be unable to participate in Chasten's tele-interrogation.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll take the L, Mike and Georgie got it.

Hunger: You will also consume another line of meth and still mount a fatigue stack. If you don't sleep afterwards that will be a second stack and another line. You are actively working here.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I understand. We proceed.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Also, can I at least call the guys once (if) Julian gets back to me before those two evil men interrogate Chasten? So they have a little context at least.

Hunger: To expedite this, it took this long because you already failed. You can go in there and ask to see a certain Esteban Rodriguez Perez because the DEA requested the sheriff to carry it out. The case is not officially handed over to the DEA yet so this is a "kindly asking" thing for the sheriff's office. All of this creates a trace you can not possibly imagine erasing.

Hunger: Sartore. Call a coin and throw it.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: 2

Hunger: Your phone rings.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Hi."

Hunger: "Hey you asked me to look this dude up right. I did it and holy shit he is gay. Like gay gay."

Hunger: He yawns.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "What?"

Hunger: "This is some kind of Mar a Lago guy right?"

Hunger: "He uses Grindr for like two hours a day."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "He's like… in the closet then? You got screenshots, chatlogs?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "He hangs out with white supremacists, you know?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Holy shit."

Hunger: "He's so in the closet. No screenshots or anything but I got his history from his ISP. It is actionable evidence that is if being gay was a crime."

Hunger: "I'm not surprised."

Hunger: "You know what they say."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Thank you so much. Send that to me on catbox or something, I wanna see it."

Hunger: "Gotcha. I'll SMS you the link."

Hunger: You receive it. That is a lot of connections.

Hunger: A lot.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I have to run to the guys with this.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: There's like nothing else I can do here right.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: And this avenue is over over.

Hunger: No. You can wake up Sajdak or just ask George.

Hunger: This is all the NSA can do for you with no subpoena.

Hunger: That being said this consumes a hefty bit of bond score.

Hunger: You violated someones privacy.

SDUDM George E. Jones: He's going to die, what's it matter to him?

Hunger: The guy on the other end of the phone doesn't know any of this.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I meant at the sheriff's office, like… I've just left a trail and can't advance any further, right? And when do we expect that call with Chasten on the line to happen?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll just send Mike the link as I show George.

Hunger: 2AM. Soon unless Jones is up to anything at night.

Hunger: Jones. You are out by 9.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Condition Changes Exhausted

SDUDM George E. Jones: Is there anything I can really do solo here? I'm thinking of the possibilities and they all mostly involve the group acting.

Hunger: You can go back and wake those fucking retards up for a starter.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Good idea and my first thought.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "HELLO gentlemen. Are we going to be doing anything with the limited time we have remaining on this earth?"

Hunger: Yes they are bedsharing money is tight as hell.

Michael Sajdak: "You got anything in mind or are you just here to be an asshole?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Me? Personally? I'm stumped because our options are getting narrower by the minute."

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: "Man turn that fuckin' light off."

SA Chris K. Prower: "Man, what?" Prower groggily wakes up.

SDUDM George E. Jones: How long has Prower been sleeping? That should clear some exhausts.

Michael Sajdak: "Just tell me what you need, man, I wanted a nap 'cause I figured you didn't need three fuckin' people to run that chore in the PD."

Hunger: Since 6. It only clears the last one.

Chris K. Prower: Condition Changes Fatigued

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Sartore should've sent a link to you," he says to Michael.

Michael Sajdak: "A link to what?" I'll check my laptop.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: He pulls the eyepatch over his good eye and turns around to his back.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Some shit involving the DC guy."

Hunger: You have three hours until the promised time.

Michael Sajdak: "The one who's about to have a pineapple in his ass?"

Hunger: If you choose to do something until then this session will go on for a bit longer.

SDUDM George E. Jones: I'm thinking we can peep the link and George is probably going to take a nap.

Michael Sajdak: "Okay so he's a bastard. I'm not sure what the angle is with this."

SA Chris K. Prower: "You woke me up just for that?"

Hunger: The link is just a long history of Laugherty's Grindr habits. That's it. Still blackmail.

Hunger: This is dangerous in the right hands.

Michael Sajdak: "I think we've taken pretty good care of the Laugherty situation already and it's not like I can call off his upcoming torture-death."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Maybe your boys can figure something with it? I dunno," George shrugs at Michael.

Hunger: Okay that's enough. List action or we are skipping to Laugherty's home invasion.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Sleep a bit.

SA Chris K. Prower: Go back to sleep.

SA Chris K. Prower: If I even can.

Hunger: Everyone can wake up at 6 if they continue sleeping. Sajdak about two hours earlier.

Hunger: Who will be there for the interrogation?

SDUDM George E. Jones: George.

Michael Sajdak: If anything we can maybe use this to turn him to us when I interrogate him but that's all I can think of, I'm heading to sleep

SA Chris K. Prower: Will I still be tired if I wake up for the interrogation???

Hunger: Last scene

Hunger: Anyone who participates will just sleep an hour more thats all.

SDUDM George E. Jones: I'm participating.

SDUDM George E. Jones: I think it's just old teeth that should be in on this.

Hunger: 1724 Meridian Crescent NW, Washington, DC.

Hunger: 0200R.

Marcus Williams: Williams looks around for one last time.

Silas Grant: Grant doesn't say anything. He just racks the slide on a Glock with its numbers long gone.

Marcus Williams: They do quick work of the feeble front door lock before walking up to the right floor. Once again, they are inside. You have chosen pros for the job. That much is known.

CEO Chasten Laugherty: He is crashed on the couch, fast asleep with a phone on his chest.

Marcus Williams: He nods to Grant. This is a piece of cake.

Marcus Williams: Marcus Williams rolls Success -> 36

Marcus Williams: He quickly puts Chasten in a neck hold as the man fails to make a noise any louder than a whimper. Grant sets him on one of the kitchen chairs and handcuffs him to it.

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "F—-"

CEO Chasten Laugherty: Condition Changes Restrained

Marcus Williams: "You should have a good idea of how this goes. You do as we say, or, well."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "This is bullshit man. Just name me a number. I'll pay you right away."

Silas Grant: "Shut up."

Silas Grant: He is dialing.

Hunger: Who picks up the phone?

Marcus Williams: Marcus walks over and locks his door.

Michael Sajdak: Me.

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "Come on man. I have all the fucking money you could ever need!"

Silas Grant: His phone speaks. "Hello?"

SDUDM George E. Jones: We should play the homo blackmail angle here to get him to talk.

Silas Grant: "Start talking."

Michael Sajdak: "You've got me."

Silas Grant: He holds the phone up to his face.

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "What?"

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "Who the fuck are you people?"

Michael Sajdak: "Let's keep things simple. I wanna know everything you know about Esau Tillman and the Frank Harvey Water Reclamation Plant."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "That's a pretty weird request."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "It would have been easier if you just asked for money."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "Now you're in deep shit."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: He looks extraordinarily smug even though you can not see it. This is the face of a man who knows he is about to rain hell on those who pissed him off.

Michael Sajdak: "You've got two people there who could just as easily kill you. And I've got something even better than that."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "You still have a chance to get the fuck out of my place. Pretend this never happened."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "And I am not paying you."

Michael Sajdak: "I know that you're a bastard, Chasten. We've got all your shit from Grindr on record here. Y'think they'd put this up on Breitbart or something? I think they might. That'd play nice with your Mar-a-Lago buddies, I'm sure."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: Roll Persuade blind.

SDUDM George E. Jones: Do we have his username?

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "Alright. Hold your fucking horses. Is this all you want?"

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "You're crossing Rubicon here better make it worth your while buddy."

Michael Sajdak: "Oh trust me I know. You can start talking now and I'll decide when I've heard enough."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "I can do that."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "The second pray-away-the-gay camp that my dad sent me to was called God Runners, some converted defunct Boy Scout camp located in backwoods Arkansas."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: You know more or less what he's talking about since you were there to witness the polemic. Distraught and disgusted conservative parents around the country paid exorbitant tuition for God Runners to torture their children throughout the 2000s. Since his dad founded the place for his “cure,” Chasten got a scholarship.

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "It was a lot of push-ups and wind sprints while screaming Timothy 1:8 and Jude 7. The “tutoring service” was half-hour of NatGeo reruns and three hours of Bible study per day. It was during “school” that I met Jacob. Esau. Blondie was not “in treatment” but still spent all day in the classroom, dropped off at the camp by a Laugherty family friend."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: The kid was just there. Jacob never talked much. I found about his father’s babysitting arrangement from Eli Tillman’s book tours long after the fact. That, he's his dad."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "It was easy to hate Jacob. He sat in the lodge all day. He was never forced to do manual labor while chanting prayers. No one ever hit him. The instructors didn’t even force him to do wall sits if he failed to quote Bible verses correctly. Just like me, although they were given orders to "sweat the fruit out of me", so to speak. It was not a great position to be in when you consider how other kids saw us back then. They hated us."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: He shuffles in his chair and smiles as he speaks.

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "You still with me pal? We are getting to the good part."

Michael Sajdak: "Yeah, yeah, I'm listening."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "So."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "One night, I got pulled out of my bunk by the camp’s archery instructor. He reeked of booze. He dragged me to the sports shed. I knew what was gonna happen. When he dropped his pants I saw Jacob from behind a rack of equipment. He must have been hiding there for hours, since the door was locked after afternoon exercises."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "I have no idea how, or why, but I only saw it when the glint of the pocket knife came out. The knife sawed down the inside of his exposed thigh. Blood gushed out. Assholes screams deflated even faster than he did. Jacob was already struggling to load the fat man into a wheelbarrow by the time I came to sense. I helped him do it."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "We got a hose and sprayed the blood down, covered the stains with sawdust. We pushed the wheelbarrow through the trails cut around the camp and up the side of the valley, toward the Lover's Leap. Jacob smashed the counselor's gin bottle against the rock."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "And then I remember… He looked me straight in the eyes and said his first words, "Bad piss." We tipped the body over the side. Oh man…"

CEO Chasten Laugherty: He is absolutely waxing rhapsodic. As he recalls this, you get the feeling that he forgot Marcus and Grant were even there.

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "We ran back the hill, back to the crime scene. I had never felt so alive, so sleek, powerful, safe… We stripped and chucked the bloody pajamas into the previous night's campfire. The garments miraculously caught and burned. By the time the rest of the campers woke up we were in the lake. Naked. Scrubbed clean. Splashing and screaming at the dawn. Hah."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "Searchers found the body that day. The corpse was shattered by enough compound fractures to hide a gash from a knife. The school announced the archery instructor suffered a bad fall on a night hike. Kids whispered that he'd died drunkenly pissing off a cliff. We were punished for the crime of succumbing to temptation, a common enough infraction. They closed the camp by winter due to the litigation."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: He comes back down to earth.

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "You still there or have you killed yourself yet over your lack of such a love story?"

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "Me and Esau. Wow."

Michael Sajdak: "I wanna know more about Esau himself. About his prison."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "We stayed close. I know something is deeply, truly fucked up with Jacob, I mean Esau, but I don't give a shit. That night at God Runners was his stunning intuition.

They think he's just another sneaky link ex-boyfriend of mine. They don't know anything. I still see the boy with the knife."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "Jacob's the real blade. He cuts through the world like butter. Always in the right place, you know? At the right time. Like magic."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "Imagine you had a guardian angel. A real one. Someone who can protect you. From everything."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: He laughs and pleads with himself as much as he pleads with you. "What would you do to keep that? How would you show gratitude?"

Michael Sajdak: "I'm guessing that's why you're in with everything he does."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "You've said it yourself."

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "Now is the part where you let me go."

Michael Sajdak: "Is that so?"

Hunger: Grant hangs up the phone.

CEO Chasten Laugherty: "Wait."

Marcus Williams: There are no parting words.

Hunger: DELTA GREEN - GOD'S TEETH - THE BEAUTIFUL

Hunger: Session 2 END.

Hunger: Thanks for playing!

God's Teeth - The Beautiful - Session 3

October 2, 2026

Hunger: DELTA GREEN

Hunger: GOD'S TEETH

Hunger: THE BEAUTIFUL

Hunger: SESSION 3

Hunger: 0700T.

Hunger: Sajdak, Sartore.

Hunger: You are approaching the vicinity of the water plant in Sajdak's car.

Hunger: Is there anyone in the backseat with you or is it just you at this time?

Michael Sajdak: Looking like that's a no…

SA Francesca R. Sartore: The others can do.. whatever at the motel.

Hunger: Very well. Act as you wish.

Hunger: Before that, Sartore gets a Milsci.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls CRITICAL SUCCESS! -> 22

Hunger: The complex dominates a couple of hectares of northern El Paso, a maze of barbed wire fences, service roads, pipes, sluice gates, skimmer cisterns, scum pits, and sand aquifers. On the northeast side of the compound lies an enormous, windowless, gray warehouse at the corner of the property. Fences with razor wire cut this area off from the rest of the compound and the surrounding desert scrubland. Security lights and cameras watch everything around it.

Hunger: Passage through the water plant seems to be required for access. This interior path leads through the filtration equipment to a gated razor wire fence separating a small employee parking lot. A single service road through the desert terminates at the second outside access, an unmanned gate in the razor wire fence.

Hunger: The warehouse in the top corner is set up like a PMC safe-house in Iraq, not a storage building in suburban Texas. If it follows the usual formula, there should be a drive-thru lane cutting through the whole facility, allowing any assault from one direction to be escaped out a second garage door. This “escape hatch” likely has the most restricted access, and therefore the lightest security once past the door.

Hunger: The barren desert surrounding the plant doesn’t make for easy observation. The best option is setting up with magnification optics in the parking lot of a Waffle House off the highway. Even peering through chain link and pipes from blocks away, it’s clear the site is serious about security. Access is only available through a mantrap checkpoint on the interior. The side of the building facing the desert has a garage door. Your second best option is the Franklin Mountains, which George is already on.

Michael Sajdak: "So what are you thinking we say to these guys? Y'know if Conradin's there he'll probably recognize us no matter how good you play this cop thing off."

Michael Sajdak: "He might just fuckin' shoot us for the fun of it."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I wipe my nose with my sleeve. "We're just cops. And as long as Laugherty's name hasn't been released to the public yet, he shouldn't be tapped in like that."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "You know, because you got him killed and all?"

Michael Sajdak: "You don't seem to realize we're dealing with a psychic here."

Michael Sajdak: "Or something so close to one it doesn't matter."

Hunger: Sajdak, roll Unnatural. Blind.

Michael Sajdak: "Fuck it, man, let's just go inside and see what happens."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "There's legitimate ICE employees here, subcontractors, Asian people just doing the rounds with a mop and a bucket of water. Not everyone's involved with this shit."

Hunger: Gingerbread smell. Very, very faint but there.

Hunger: You know where the source is.

Michael Sajdak: I'm driving this thing out front of the water plant and parking it. "We'll tell them we think they've got a witness for a shooting or something."

Hunger: Moving…

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Yeah just let me do the talking."

Hunger: You're in front of the gatehouse.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Anything conspicuous?

Hunger: Roll Alertness.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 64

Michael Sajdak: Can I try?

Hunger: You can see the inside of the gatehouse from here. There is an old man inside, not paying attention to you despite the emptiness of this place.

Hunger: Go for it.

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Success -> 42

Hunger: Fresh, jet black tire marks streak the entrance. As if something accelerated past it.

Michael Sajdak: That's strange but it's not like we're being watched at least. I'm getting out.

Hunger: You get out the car. Walking to the gatehouse?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Is there like a parking inside?

Hunger: There is employee parking, you can see it from here just like you could see it across the angle of the Waffle House.

Michael Sajdak: It's not like it matters really.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Let's just drive up, we're cops.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Legs are sore.

Michael Sajdak: Sure, I'll drive up to the gate and give the old guy a wave.

Hunger: Loading…

Hunger: You could try approaching.

Hunger: The old man notices your pause.

Sajdak's 2012 Honda CR-V EX: That I do, what side is the toll gate on?

Hunger: Intercom to the drivers side here.

Michael Sajdak: "Y'said you wanted to do the talking?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: YUP. I'll lean over him and speak out the window. "MORNING!"

Mohammad A. Nasser: "Hi."

Mohammad A. Nasser: "Visitors?"

Michael Sajdak: What is this bitch's deal?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Sheriff's office! We've got papers!"

Michael Sajdak: "Eyup, that."

Mohammad A. Nasser: He comes out of the shed and walks towards the motorized gate. It opens enough to let one person through.

Mohammad A. Nasser: "Well. Let's see."

Mohammad A. Nasser: He adjusts his pants.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Y'ello. We're here about Esteban Rodriguez Perez." I'll yawn as I pass over the papers.

Mohammad A. Nasser: "Oh, you're here for one of 'em Surplus fellas."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "That's right."

Hunger: Sajdak, roll Anthropology.

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Failure -> 81

Mohammad A. Nasser: He certainly doesn't sound like a Mohammad to you, as his name tag suggests.

Mohammad A. Nasser: "You not in them black SUVs this time."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "We couldn't pass by the office, got called right out of bed."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "It's a pain in the ass… still have to get it done."

Michael Sajdak: So it's a white Muslim? What, was he in prison himself or something?

Mohammad A. Nasser: You'd have to ask.

Mohammad A. Nasser: "Tell me about it. Me, I'm just a few months off the good life."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "How many months?"

Mohammad A. Nasser: "I retire this December."

Michael Sajdak: "That your birth name? You seem American as apple pie is all."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Congrats. I've got twenty years ahead of me."

Michael Sajdak: "Ehe."

Mohammad A. Nasser: "I was born in Albuquerque partner."

Mohammad A. Nasser: "Well. Everything seems alright to me."

Mohammad A. Nasser: Either of you HUMINT.

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls CRITICAL FAILURE! -> 66

Mohammad A. Nasser: He sounded a bit annoyed at that quip but he is still letting you through.

Mohammad A. Nasser: "You have fun in there, with whatever those bastards are doing."

Mohammad A. Nasser: He's leaving.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Ayup." I'll wave.

Michael Sajdak: "Funny."

Mohammad A. Nasser: The gate opens fully with a tired old screech. He's back to his radio.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I want to tie a noose and hang myself."

Hunger: There is a good hundred meters seperating the front drive to the water plant.

Michael Sajdak: "Don't do that, c'mon…"

Michael Sajdak: Guess we'll just drive up to the parking lot.

Hunger: You also have the option of just parking up front instead of in the parking lot. Though that makes it immediately apparent that you are a guest.

Hunger: Either works.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Lot is okay.

Michael Sajdak: Yeah we'll do that then.

Michael Sajdak: "So is there an actual guy in here called Esteban Rodriguez or did you make that up off the cuff?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "He's supposed to be here, according to the papers."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "He might be here, maybe in New Mexico, I don't know."

Michael Sajdak: Unless there's something in the way I'll be heading to the warehouse.

Hunger: As you lock the car door, your knees get weak at the prospect of how close you are to your objective. Without a chance to do any damn thing about it, right now.

Hunger: Proceed?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I sigh deeply. Yes.

Michael Sajdak: Yes please.

Hunger: You may move freely.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I've never been to one of these…"

Hunger: The machinery hums quietly as you pass by.

Michael Sajdak: "To what, a factory?"

Hunger: You see two El Paso Water employees. Both are on their phones.

Ember Redcloud: Ember Redcloud rolls Failure -> 73

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Door open?

Dan Spring: Dan Spring rolls Failure -> 56

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Well, wait.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We should take a look around first.

Dan Spring: They don't seem to pay attention to you.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Looks like nothing of interest.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Does it smell terrible?

Hunger: You get up and begin walking on the catwalk. Weird smelling water slushes beneath you.

Hunger: It smells chemical.

Michael Sajdak: I'd rather we headed to the good stuff instead of lingering around poop-water and being needlessly conspicuous.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll just get a feel for the angles, though this might be the worst place to make a tactical entry from.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: And then… I'll turn Around.

Hunger: It is. Many cameras watch the water plant.

Hunger: Milsci Land.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Success -> 9

Hunger: The service road to the side, leading to the unmanned gate is the cleanest possible entrance you can make into the perimeter short of breaching the fence.

Hunger: Where that leads to you do not know yet.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Right.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We'll approach the door.

Ember Redcloud: Ember Redcloud rolls Failure -> 54

Hunger: You can hear the TikTok from where you stand.

Hunger: It's quite loud.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: What is it?

Hunger: She's just scrolling.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'd have thought such a specimen might be watching Misery edits.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll knock on the window.

Ember Redcloud: She looks up.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Two waves.

Ember Redcloud: Confused, she walks to the door.

Ember Redcloud: "Hello?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Hi." I'll shove the papers in her face.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Sheriff's office."

Ember Redcloud: "Woah. Am I under arrest?"

Dan Spring: Her coworker notices you.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Not that I know of. We're here to see Esteban Rodriguez Perez at the surplus."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "What's your name?"

Ember Redcloud: "The Surplus?"

Ember Redcloud: "Well go right on. We're not even allowed to go near the fence."

Ember Redcloud: She nods at her employee pin. REDCLOUD.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: That's a weird surname.

Ember Redcloud: Native.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: It all makes sense now.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll just wave at the guy as I shimmy on through.

Dan Spring: "Hey, what are you guys doing here?" He adjusts his glasses.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll replicate the paper-shoving in his face too.

Michael Sajdak: I roll my eyes. Are these guys even part of the immigration stuff or this just some shell company?

Dan Spring: These guys are EL PASO WATER as their polos and pins suggest.

Michael Sajdak: I'll make my way inside and have a look around while Sartore chats.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Yeah, the LYFForce people wear yellow.

Dan Spring: "Okay. We can't open the gate for you."

Dan Spring: "We literally don't have the key fobs."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Is there an intercom?"

Dan Spring: "Sure."

Michael Sajdak: "This is a pretty weird arrangement."

Ember Redcloud: "Erm…"

Ember Redcloud: "I don't even know what to say to that."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Oh, I get why they were bewildered at our presence.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: The actual door is all the way over there.

Michael Sajdak: "I mean, I didn't think there'd still be people working the plant given what they're using the place for."

Hunger: The warehouse is thirty meters next door.

Ember Redcloud: "Yeah well, we're not supposed to talk about that either."

Dan Spring: "NDAs and all."

Ember Redcloud: "Fuck ICE though."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Hear hear."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Alright, we're off."

Michael Sajdak: "See ya." We'll head to that gate on the left.

Hunger: You can move freely. They go back to doing nothing as you leave.

Ember Redcloud: "Weird…"

Hunger: You begin the last stretch of walk towards the Surplus.

Hunger: Sajdak, the smell is getting a bit more intense as you move.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Intercom here?

Hunger: On that side, yes.

Hunger: The monolithic warehouse stands before you.

Hunger: You're here.

Hunger: Cameras dot the walls. You are already seen.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: It was expected. I'll press down on the button, guess it's a buzzer.

Hunger: It responds. "Hello. State your business."

Hunger: A female voice.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Morning, Sheriff's office. We're here to see Esteban Rodriguez Perez."

Hunger: A pause.

Hunger: The intercom buzzes as the gate opens.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I nod at Michael.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Usually men walk annoyingly in front of you.

Hunger: There is a 4 meter wide garage gate next to a security door entrance.

Hunger: The door unlocks remotely as you approach it.

Hunger: There is an access list next to the door.

Hunger: According to the access list, the company employs a dozen part-time “caretakers,” a full-time secretary, an on-call nurse, and a corporate compliance officer. Staff is not supposed to drop below six for the purpose of maintaining a ratio to detainees, and are required to wear company standard yellow polos. All 15 "names" here are employee identification numbers rather than their legal names. You can think of several reasons why someone wouldn't want their name here on this sign.

Michael Sajdak: Hope Sartore's getting a lay of the land here.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll try to burn these numbers into my mind as best I can, I guess. Also— on the way here, yeah, that.

LYFForce Caretaker PV: "Hey there."

LYFForce Caretaker PV: "One at a time please."

LYFForce Caretaker PV: A mantrap checkpoint blocks the door.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I nod, keeping the folder close to my chest.

Hunger: He stops and holds out a bin for your weapon.

Michael Sajdak: "Eyup." I say trying to gauge our odds of bagging one of these guys on their way home or something.

LYFForce Caretaker PV: "Please."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll pop the holster open, take the magazine and clear the chamber before dropping it inside.

Michael Sajdak: Much the same.

LYFForce Caretaker PV: On the way in, both of you are also waved down with a metal detector stick.

Hunger: Roll Alertness.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 93

Hunger: The door closes behind you. Sajdak also gets the chance.

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls CRITICAL SUCCESS! -> 1

Hunger: Sajdak.

Hunger: As it closes, you notice that the mantrap checkpoint had its own metal detector independent from this guy.

Hunger: The garage door adjacent to the employee entrance is used for prisoner unloading and does not have metal detectors. At around 4 to 6 meters of clearance, a prisoner escort truck could easily manuever into the facility.

Hunger: Judging from signage in Spanish, the facility is for “accompanied” minors that “choose” to refuse refugee status and instead decide to hire their own legal counsel. The population of detainees skews heavily male and Latino, with ages ranging from nine to 17 years old. The facility houses them until their court dates, at which point they typically receive a rubber-stamp deportation and are moved to a different facility to await transfer. The wait for that court date can take months or years.

Hunger: The caretakers have all the callousness it takes to hold children in cages so long as it’s legal. They are armed with pepper spray and batons. Threatening them seems like a non-starter.

Hunger: An empty plastic Sourheads container in Security & Processing has a handwritten sign that reads, “$5 to Make Life Easier.

Hunger: You can tell that is some kind of brazen lie. Nobody even visits here.

LYFForce Caretaker PV: "Oh that? You feel like you're up for a donation?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "For the minors?"

LYFForce Caretaker PV: "I don't wanna lie to a cop. We give the five bucks to the booked ones for their… legal fees. On slow days we get donuts for the office."

LYFForce Caretaker PV: He laughs as he speaks.

LYFForce Caretaker PV: According to federal guidelines, detainees brought to the Surplus by local police qualify as unaccompanied minors once they have been separated from family. According to local statutes, a minor is considered accompanied and "awaiting representation" if they have the means to hire their own lawyer. Unlike the "unaccompanied," minors awaiting legal representation may be held indefinitely. The municipal jurisdiction defines a solvent minor as "any minor in possession of $5 USD, either in a federally recognized bank account or U.S. currency." LYFForce staff donate to the pot every week in order to give $5 to every teenager before booking. On slow weeks, staffers use the money to buy donuts for the office.

LYFForce Caretaker PV: The guard gestures you at the vending machine. "You guys want anything?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll try to keep my jaw from clenching and just say "I'm good, thanks."

LYFForce Caretaker PV: "Right. Deb will go through your paperwork."

LYFForce Caretaker PV: "Follow me please."

Hunger: As you walk towards the communications room, you notice someone on the other side of the glass opposite of the door.

Janitor Alan Rapp: He stands up from his mopping, perfectly still, and looks you both dead in the eyes.

Janitor Alan Rapp: He is huge. No doubt.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll do a half-assed smile and wave.

Michael Sajdak: "Shiiiit, you could have been a modern Larry Bird." Ugly-laugh.

Janitor Alan Rapp: He doesn't say or do anything. He smiles and glides towards the door, like something not fully human but close.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Resplendent," I mutter.

LYFForce Caretaker PV: "Yeah he is a fucking creep."

LYFForce Caretaker PV: "We don't really talk to him."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I can see why."

LYFForce Caretaker PV: "Anyways. Deb is right in there. Don't forget your guns on the way out."

LYFForce Caretaker PV: He points you at the door.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Thankies."

Michael Sajdak: "Eyup."

Hunger: This office contains all of the security camera feeds. The camera systems are high resolution with omni-directional microphones, expensive gear courtesy of DHS money. No camera watches the communications room itself. Office Facilitator Deb Richter runs the Communications office, or at least that's what the sign next to the door says. LYFForce caretakers occasionally come in to fill out paperwork, charge a walkie-talkie, or freshen up coffee.

Hunger: Emergency telephone numbers also dot the walls of the Communications office. Those numbers reach Kendall Duncan, an ICE Special Response Team (SRT) member with authority to call a tactical SRT from the El Paso field office. Roll Bureucracy.

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Failure -> 70

Hunger: Yes.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls CRITICAL SUCCESS! -> 11

Hunger: The file system and paperwork are hopeless. Confidential detainee documents have been left in plain sight. The handwriting on restraint and observation paperwork is illegible. Drawers in the file cabinet aren’t labeled consistently. This place either never heard of an audit or operates under the certainty it will never face one.

Hunger: Despite the abundance of monitors and whatnot, there is a surprisingly small amount of "computer" to be seen.

Hunger: Sajdak, you notice something else.

Mariam Helena Khoury: She is sitting on the table, playing with a CD.

Mariam Helena Khoury: You lock eyes for a second before she is gone.

OF Deborah Richter: "Hey folks."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Howdy. Sheriff's office, guess you heard."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll set the folder on the table.

Michael Sajdak: I just wish she'd stay out of trouble for a change.

OF Deborah Richter: "Yup."

OF Deborah Richter: OF Deborah Richter rolls Failure -> 43

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "So, Esteban R.P."

OF Deborah Richter: She scratches her head.

Hunger: Sajdak, as her large mass covering the setup moves out of the way, you notice something.

Hunger: The hard drive rig attached to the monitors is inadequate storage for the facility's high-grade cameras. Either the Surplus is storing high-def surveillance video in the cloud (doubtful), or they delete the overwhelming majority of their footage. If there's anything juicy to be seen on cameras, it would have to be pulled to an external storage device before the hard drive got overwritten by fresh footage. And of course, someone must be around in charge of carrying out this duty.

OF Deborah Richter: "Esteban Perez. Shit. Well."

OF Deborah Richter: "I guess you'll just have to find out." She yawns.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Don't tell me he's not here." I'll fake some bewilderment.

OF Deborah Richter: "I don't know. I don't fuckin' care either."

Michael Sajdak: I don't suppose it'd be a good idea to straight-up ask who's carrying that footage but I'll at least keep an eye out.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Hey, neither do I, but we're still here at a crisp seven in God's green morning…"

OF Deborah Richter: "Yeah. In this humble little shithole."

Michael Sajdak: "It'll be bad news if he's been deported already 'cause we were hoping for a testimony. You guys keep a log of who goes in and out of here or anything?"

OF Deborah Richter: "The log is all around you if you care."

OF Deborah Richter: "They never stay long enough for it to matter."

OF Deborah Richter: "That's just how we work."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: There aren't any cameras in here specifically, right? Could I try to draw her attention to the papers once more to give Michael a chance to snoop around?

Hunger: No cameras here.

Michael Sajdak: "That's about what I was expecting."

Michael Sajdak: Just a quick question to the GM

Michael Sajdak: I can still do low-level versions of the Skoptsi spells right? What would it take to hypnotize this lady?

Hunger: Would you like to find out?

Michael Sajdak: I have a hunch this isn't going to work because of Conradin but I at least wanna try.

Hunger: Roll Unnatural, blind.

Hunger: Both of you SANLOSS.

Hunger: With a quick yet impossible gesture and the snap of a finger you have her attention on your fingertips.

OF Deborah Richter: She looks at you as if nothing happened.

Hunger: Sartore, on the other hand…

Hunger: What the fuck did he just do? That did not look possible, the thing with his fingers.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "W-W-W-what the hell is that?"

Michael Sajdak: I'm gonna gesture her to keep quiet since I don't wanna break the trance.

OF Deborah Richter: She doesn't react to it.

Michael Sajdak: How well is this supposed to work again? I recall being able to ask whatever I like until something distracts the person being entranced.

Hunger: Exactly.

Michael Sajdak: Then I have two questions.

Michael Sajdak: "Don't suppose you know who's got the CCTV footage at the moment?"

OF Deborah Richter: "I do. I have more than enough footage to bring this entire place down."

OF Deborah Richter: "That pedophile Tillman and Smedley. Rapp, too. I know they are up to something in there. In the Private Side."

Michael Sajdak: "Is the Private Side a place in here?"

OF Deborah Richter: "Yes. It's down the hall and to the right, all the way. Security door."

OF Deborah Richter: "I was going to sell the footage to pay off my legal debts but nobody would buy it. The Bridge wouldn't pay me for it either."

OF Deborah Richter: "I was thinking of selling it to you, actually."

Michael Sajdak: If I have cash on hand I'm gonna offer to buy it right now.

OF Deborah Richter: "Not that much. I mean at least fifty thousand."

OF Deborah Richter: "I don't think it will ever sell."

Michael Sajdak: "I don't have that kind of money in my wallet but I could pass you an IOU."

OF Deborah Richter: "At this point might as well. I think that nurse also knows something but I'm not sure. She wouldn't talk to Tillman again after one day. Nobody but me really noticed."

Michael Sajdak: I'm gonna guess straight up compelling people to do things is beyond this trick I'm pulling.

Hunger: You'll have to find out.

Michael Sajdak: "Then I'll take that hard drive off your hands."

OF Deborah Richter: "I got it on my phone. Hard drives back in my trailer."

OF Deborah Richter: She takes it out and unlocks it, preparing to show you something.

Michael Sajdak: "Y'think you could email this to me?"

OF Deborah Richter: "Now we're talking. Where's my fifty thousand?"

Michael Sajdak: "Y'think you could wait till, I dunno, Monday evening?"

OF Deborah Richter: "I'm not buying that."

OF Deborah Richter: "I may be susceptible but not stupid."

Michael Sajdak: To be clear Prower doesn't have that crypto anymore right

Hunger: It doesn't add up to that amount.

Michael Sajdak: "That's a shame cause we're dead broke. Are you open to haggle?"

OF Deborah Richter: Her radio crackles.

OF Deborah Richter: She snaps back, phone on hand but locked.

OF Deborah Richter: "Uh…"

OF Deborah Richter: The radio mutters something about the visitors.

OF Deborah Richter: "Yes Vivienne. Come in and show 'em around."

OF Deborah Richter: "You can keep your papers. We don't want them if you can't find him here. He may already be gone."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "A-a-a-alright…" I'll grab the folder and clutch it to my chest.

OF Deborah Richter: "And I'm not signing no damn thing if he is not here."

OF Deborah Richter: She waddles back to her chair.

Michael Sajdak: "Don't worry about it." Nothing we can do about that for now, I guess, although now I'm tempted to follow this lady home to try and get that footage. If we can prove what's happened here then getting those kids safe would be no effort at all.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Come on in."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: She nods towards the door.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Well. This is the processing room."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Not a beauty to look at."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "They get the free shower and shitter and all on their way in."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: She points at the door.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm a bit distracted by that total insanity that went down just there a minute ago. I'll just nod twice.

Michael Sajdak: "Seems pretty lax security-wise. Are you guys safe?"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "We are safe. Safe and very bored."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "You guys want a tour?"

Michael Sajdak: "Heh. Sure."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: She walks over to the processing bathroom and opens the door.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Voila."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: No need for Alertness roll. It's alarmingly clean.

Michael Sajdak: "Dunno what I expected really."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Let me show you the floor."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "CALDWELL. THE GATE."

LYFForce Caretaker PV: He raises a middle finger as the garage door behind her opens.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: She puts her hands to her sides.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Sorry, did she have a nametag with her surname on her shirt?

LYFForce Caretaker NU: No. Employees don't have nametags.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: You begin getting a tour guide's explanation of the place. Staffers just call it “Floor.” It’s a giant concrete space, divided into blocks of cells with cages of stainless steel chainlink fence topped with razor wire. The cages stand around drains. They are dotted with thin, cheap rubber mattresses and foil blankets. These are the only personal possessions allowed beyond a single plastic cup and the clothes one was arrested in.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: Dishes must be washed in a communal concrete trough near the drain, where all bathing, dishes, and other cleaning duties are based. The copious public showers and restrooms attached to Process are almost never used. A trashcan full of paper plates from meager meals sits on the other side of a single, arm-sized hole in each cage. The chain link around the gap is coated in a thick film of rotted food. A single port-o-potty services each cage. The door of every one is ripped off and the interior is coated in filth.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: Every cage contains 20 to 40 children of various ages, mostly boys. A single pen corrals the entire population of young girls and infants. The far side of the facility holds adult men, kept from the children at a remove of a truck lane that enters from a garage door on the desert side. There are far fewer adults than children. The grown men whisper to each other behind thick beards and cupped hands. Most are held here only temporarily, awaiting transfer to other facilities or local court dates.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: A few dozen girls care for infant and toddler children of both genders. These girls provide the unpaid childcare required to make the youngest detentions possible. The rationale is that the separation keeps them safe from sexual predation from the other inmates. Finally, a small number of grown men on the far side of the facility balding, sallow, and silent say nothing and stare. They are referred to as “Overflow” from other ICE facilities. These men are supposedly “dangerous criminals” awaiting transfer to more secure ICE detainment units, though LYFForce officials do not have files on them. Most guards do not even know their names, and few stick around long enough for it to matter.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: Off to the side of the car lane that cuts through the floor, a door marked “STAFF” leads to an area that the tour guide calls “Backstage.” That contains the riot response armory, infirmary, break room, staff locker room, and offices.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: The entire room is surrounded by a second-floor catwalk where guards patrol. There are firehose boxes on either wall. Roll Law.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "The CHILDREN are caring for the infants?!"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: She shrugs.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "It's what it is."

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Success -> 6

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Okay, I guess I said that. I'll put my hand over my mouth.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: You realize that considering the ongoing disputes in federal appeals courts, there is nothing definitively illegal going on here. The El Paso “Surplus” detention center skews toward young boys. About half were picked up by Customs and Border Patrol entering the country by themselves. A few were separated from their parents during the 2025 roundups and lost in shoddy record-keeping. A few were seized during the lightning deportations of early Trump 2. Many were returned from ICE custody after the move was struck down in court, but not everyone had the family or means to be found after getting shipped out of state.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: They are under orders to call the ICE Special Response Team in to “quell insubordination” by the adults. The men confine themselves to whispers, living as quietly as possible. Still, the guard giving the tour joyfully admits to calling SRT whenever he feels like it, as it "keeps them honest."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: In fact…

LYFForce Caretaker NU: The SRT is here right now.

Michael Sajdak: "C'mon, we're not here to naval gaze, wee know how it is out here."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Y-Yeah, I know. Sorry."

Hunger: You see a Bearcat G3 MRAP parked in the unloading area.

Hunger: You can glance more information than what the guard is telling you with certain skill rolls. There are results for Anthropology or HUMINT and Criminology.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll hit HUMINT since that's the only one I'm any good at.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 72

Michael Sajdak: I'll try the latter too.

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Failure -> 94

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Failure -> 57

Hunger: There are both new immigrants and first and second-generation children of illegal immigrants in the cages. Many speak only English. They seem to be separated by national origin and language, likely as a means to counteract solidarity amongst the detained. All there is left to do for the guards is to stand back and watch the fights play out in the name of 'working' in this place.

Hunger: Everything in this facility is meant to manage the maximum number of inmates as cheaply as possible. The flatscreen TVs on walls outside the fences run PBS on mute so the facility can claim it meets the educational requirements of juvenile incarceration. Little care is provided beyond food and water. The fluorescent lights in the room are always on. It is a system that breeds rampant inmate sickness and violence. The only reason the guests can be said to be relatively healthy is due to remarkable acts of communal care inside the pens. A sense of contained violence in the air is very real, directed at the guards but twisted inward by the endless chain link.

LYFForce Caretaker BJ: "Dude I'm telling you, they should just execute her and be done with it. That psycho bitch."

Deportation Officer KD: "Incredible what women can get away with these days."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I wish I could fire all but one bullet at these fuckers and then blow my brains out.

Hunger: Not happening.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll look deadpan at Vivienne.

Teenage boys (1): The crowd is suspicious of your presence. They don't dare to act.

Michael Sajdak: Anything else to see here?

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Well. We got the Backstage and all."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Yeah, let's… let's just go, yeah?"

Deportation Officer KD: Deportation Officer KD rolls Success -> 34

Hunger: Carry on.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Is this guy ogling me or something?

Hunger: You don't know. Sunglasses.

Hunger: You hear loud conversation in English from behind the truck.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: What're they saying?

Michael Sajdak: "This all of them, then?" I'm looking down the hall to what I'm guessing is the private spot we were told about before.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Those SRT dickheads. Think they are some kind of commando but they are just jack shit."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Why are they even here?"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Someone called them in for exercise this six AM. Not unusual."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Not sure who did it but there was no fuckin' time for playing at that obscure hour."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "They usually get called in for no reason."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Yeah…"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: What were those dudes talking about behind the truck?

Hunger: Alertness.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 90

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Failure -> 56

Hunger: "…You guys wanna come over for BBQ?""Nah man we got church…""My wife wants to go over to Mexico for her pills."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Right… "Who're those guys there?" I'll upnod in their direction.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Those are the scary Garies as I'd like to call them. They stay around for the least."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "In reality none of them are man enough to do anything. One whiff of this and they are down." She taps her large can of bear mace.

LYFForce Caretaker HC: "Hey Viv. You wanna come over here for a second?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Just fencehoppers?"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "One second Huxley."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Yeah, that kind of stuff. I'll be right back."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: She is walking off to him.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: STAFF ONLY…. Hm….

Michael Sajdak: I wanna know where that nurse is.

Hunger: She said she would be back to show you the backstage.

Hunger: Nobody in particular but the teenage boys are looking at you right now.

Michael Sajdak: I look at Sartore and then over to the staff room.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Yeah. It's not like they'll swiss cheese us for being clumsy. I'll try the door.

Hunger: Locked.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Naturally.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I subtly shake my head at Michael, then look over the kids…

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Do they look "normal"?

Hunger: As far as normal goes.

Michael Sajdak: "It isn't here where it's going down."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I actually want to walk up to the cage while we wait, see if they've got anything at all to say?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Out of reach, of course.

Michael Sajdak: "Y'speak Spanish?"

Hunger: They look at eachother and then at you. "Don't tell them anything Diego."

Hunger: They try to look away.

Hunger: That was in English.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Eh, mi dispiace ma…"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Hi."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll wave at whoever's looking at me.

Hunger: As you do, someone starts the Bearcat's engine.

Hunger: Sajdak, roll Alertness.

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Failure -> 71

Special Agent BX: He walks over and opens the rear door.

Special Agent BX: These three get in single line as he himself rides shotgun.

Hunger: The horn sounds once.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "That's a whole shitton of them…"

Hunger: BEEP!

Deportation Officer AB: The door behind you opens.

Deportation Officer AB: "Get the fuck outta my way."

Deportation Officer AB: He jogs to the truck.

Hunger: It slowly drives out the front gate.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Sorry about that. He had something to say."

Michael Sajdak: "Yeah, yeah, no problem."

Deportation Officer KD: This guy didn't leave. He is still talking to the LYFForce caretaker.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "So. The back."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Did you guys find your culprit?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I have half a mind to talk to that guy later. Whatevs.

Michael Sajdak: "It remains to be seen if the guy's even here anymore at this point."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "You said something about some backstage?"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "I'm just itching to see what happens in two years to them."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Do you know if any of these guys actually served?"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Well. Agent Tillman sure did. Most of the SRT guys have some kind of military background. Tough nuts."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "The rest are just dregs."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I see."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Let's go."

Hunger: "Not much to see in there. Just a padded cell."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Anyone in there right now?"

Hunger: You can confirm that through the viewport. It's an empty all white room.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I nod.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: It is used only for Public Side detainees. There is a camera to record video, but it has no microphone. State law protects minors in crisis recovery rooms from audio recording.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "This is the kitchen."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "You guys can grab a snack I don't really give a shit if they starve."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: Despite its size, the ingredients, utensils, and equipment on hand in the kitchen appear completely inadequate to feed the population. A typical meal might include a spoonful of refried beans, a cheese sandwich, and a single moldy clementine. It’s at least clean, a duty ‘privileged’ to trustee guests on the Floor.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "You mean the ICE guys, right?"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "No."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "You know exactly who."

Michael Sajdak: "Ehehe."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll just scratch my head.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Offices."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: Both are empty as of now. The second one has Lowe's nameplate.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll take a look inside Lowe's as we go.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Just a looksie.

Hunger: Roll Alertness.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 83

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Failure -> 79

Hunger: The doors are often unlocked and cheaply made, as the only permanent occupant is the unit holding CCO Jonathan Lowe. There is quite literally nothing inside worth of any value.

Hunger: Lowe is probably home waking up right now.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "I can't actually let you in here."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "That's okay."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "You know, Tillman told us to not even knock in case of a fire alarm."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "I do wonder what's inside. Whatever."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I don't."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: A hallway leading out of Backstage ends at a windowless metal security door. A sign reads “Private Property of LYFForce: Approved Staff Only.” Ironically, no one employed by LYFForce is approved. The door is protected by a magnetic key lock.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: The access list is as follows:

LYFForce Caretaker NU: SDDO Esau Tillman

LYFForce Caretaker NU: SA Kendall Duncan

LYFForce Caretaker NU: DO Terry Smedley

LYFForce Caretaker NU: DO Patrick Meritt

LYFForce Caretaker NU: DO Arthur Voss

LYFForce Caretaker NU: CCO Jonathan Lowe

LYFForce Caretaker NU: Janitor Alan Rapp

Michael Sajdak: "Funny the janitor's on the list with all the big cheese guys."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Someone's gotta clean up the place after all. You think those guys would ever hold a mop and keep their masculinity?"

Michael Sajdak: "Ehe, true."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "God forbid…"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Alan is just a misunderstood creature. That's how I see it."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: She adjusts her hair.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Armory. Lots of fun toys in here that we never get to use."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Caldwell said he was a creep."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Well he is two feet taller than Caldwell."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I bet he's funny too."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "What kind of toys, anyway?"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Full body armor, tear gas, shotguns, flashbangs…"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "There's a jaw dropping amount of gear in there."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "You trained?"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "All of us are. We're just itching to finally do something with it."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Looks overkill. You could put them down with a tele and a couple of those." I'll point at the mace on her belt.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "It is."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: She continues.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Nurse is not in."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Monday, wednesday, friday only."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I nod.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: NURSE HUONG LAN PHAN

LYFForce Caretaker NU: Says the nameplate.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll burn that into my brain. "So what if anyone gets hurt on tuesday, thursday… you know?"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "They just eat shit. If its too bad we'll throw a bandage over it and hope for the best."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Doesn't happen a lot."

Michael Sajdak: I make a note to see if we can't keep this Vietnamese chick out of the shitstorm tomorrow, get her testimony on these guys.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "They don't want to die, you know."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Who does?"

Michael Sajdak: "I mean no shit?"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Against their best wishes we cant let them live. Not here at least."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "They never learn too."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "What do you mean you can't let them live."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "The whole cage thing. You think that's some kind of living?"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: She shrugs.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "I'm just trying to make rent."

Michael Sajdak: Somehow people randomly talking like maniacs is so common to me now that I roll my eyes a little.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: Sajdak, roll HUMINT.

Michael Sajdak: "Yep."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Where do you live, anyway?"

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Success -> 23

LYFForce Caretaker NU: In such a weird line of work its only a matter of time until you adopt some strange worldview. Imagine it being similar to how butchers think and feel. It's all meat to them.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "I got an apartment downtown."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Married?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll do the subtle Kubrick stare. "Kids?"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: She rolls her eyes. "In this economy?"

Michael Sajdak: "Oh, come on, don't grill the poor lady."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: She laughs.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "…Yeah, sorry."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "That's about all."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "I hope you liked it."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "It's nice to see a human face around every now and then."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Nice to see another woman in a male-dominated field of work, too."

Michael Sajdak: "Well we didn't find shit about our guy but we got to look busy for an hour's salary so there's that."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "They can't strip search them in detention facilities, after all."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Right on. Me too."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "What's down the hall? You sure Esteban's not hiding in some nook over there?"

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "You mean the security door? I'm pretty fucking sure your man isn't there."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I meant like… down the hall to the left around the corner."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "That's just the comms room."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "You wanna say bye to Deb on your way out?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Sure."

OF Deborah Richter: Deborah is perched over the desk clutching her head.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "You okay?"

OF Deborah Richter: "Yeah, just migraine."

OF Deborah Richter: She lays back on her chair.

OF Deborah Richter: "God I need a day off."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "Who doesn't."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Bye, Deb…"

Michael Sajdak: I probably gave this chick brain cancer or something, I think to myself, as I give her a wave on the way out.

LYFForce Caretaker NU: "They're done here. Check them out."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Thanks, Vivienne."

LYFForce Caretaker NU: She waves at you once before going back into processing.

LYFForce Caretaker PV: "Alright. Your guns."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Are you working tomorrow?"

LYFForce Caretaker PV: "No, I'm just getting off my Sunday shift."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Thanks. We'll let the feds know their guy isn't here."

LYFForce Caretaker PV: "Alright."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll grab my gun and load it.

Michael Sajdak: Likewise.

LYFForce Caretaker PV: He presses a button that unlocks the mantrap and lets it spin freely. You can leave.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I'm sick to my stomach."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "And no it's not just one of those days."

Michael Sajdak: "We've got a lot to do now. I can think of three things."

Hunger: The motorized gate opens in anticipation of you.

Michael Sajdak: "We've gotta get to the motel ASAP."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Yes…"

Hunger: Are you leaving?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Let's just do a cheeky walk-around to scope out the place we'll be approaching from.

Hunger: Nobody is there to really interrupt you as you do so.

Hunger: Deborah is probably sulking in her desk.

Michael Sajdak: Yes, and heading home to delegate our next steps— well okay after that I guess.

Hunger: Sartore, this is where the service road leads to.

Hunger: The back exit garage door.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Right into the authorized-only area. Was there like a keypad?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Indoors?

Hunger: Yes, that airlock requires a keycard to open. You don't see an intercom on this side.

Hunger: Nor a keycard pad.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Only opened from the inside. Breaching this is going to be a pain.

Michael Sajdak: If we can trick a car in that would be another story.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Hmmm.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Oh shit. Lowe.

Hunger: Getting a prison transport in here is not a joke. Your outlook is not looking great regarding that.

Hunger: I'm not even mentioning the MRAP.

Michael Sajdak: We couldn't just pretend we're delivering Sysco or some shit?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Let's head straight to the motel. We have to pick the guys up and meet Mr. Lowe immediately.

Hunger: Sajdak, you know damn well it will not be that easy to park up a truck here.

Hunger: Are you leaving back for El Paso?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I think this is it, yes. Though attached living facilities were mentioned, was there another building?

Hunger: This is the 'another building'.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I think we're done here for now then, I can't think of anything we'd use the surrounding industries and businesses for right this second.

Hunger: 1000T.

Hunger: Prower and Cruz have been working on making the gear from the green box usable, along with figuring out offers on where to obtain the replacement parts. It's only a matter of going and getting them now.

Hunger: You find them working side by side as radio is playing on the TV.

SA Chris K. Prower: "So, how was it?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I'm on suicide watch. I have to sleep."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Is that Alan Jackson?"

Michael Sajdak: "Well, now I'm gonna need your help with something, Chris."

Hunger: Sartore, you can disappear into your room and not come out until 10.

Hunger: Or, earlier at 6. You will still have a stack.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll stick around for the chat until they get boring, then I'll decide when to set my alarm.

SA Chris K. Prower: "Yeah? You want me to hack into the camera system there, or something? Because unless they're super insecure, that's not happening."

Michael Sajdak: "No, listen."

Michael Sajdak: "There's a chick in there who has definitive proof of what's going on in there behind closed doors and she's keeping it on her for blackmail. I know her name and I know she lives in the same trailer park as Smedley. Surely that's enough to work out where she lives?"

Michael Sajdak: "What do you call it, OSINT?"

Hunger: Sajdak, she said nothing about living in the SAME trailer park.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Call Velasquez and figure out her address?"

Michael Sajdak: Well, still, it shouldn't be too hard.

Hunger: OSINT can still get you somewhere. Although I'm not sure what is the plan with the hard drive.

Hunger: You are planning to kill everyone inside.

SA Chris K. Prower: "Well, her name might be enough. It's easy to find shit like that. If they pay property tax, if they've been in a breach… If they're a dumbass with a Facebook… Pretty good chance."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I think Deb isn't as important as Lowe is right now."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "He was approved for the Satan Room in the back. Keycard reader."

Michael Sajdak: If we have definitive proof that this place is a ritual child abuse factory that will surely strengthen the case of these children's future lawyers.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I'll draw a sketch of the layout for you guys later…"

Hunger: You check to make sure. Lowe is actually not on Conradin's list.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: "The "Satan Room"…?"

SA Chris K. Prower: Can I just try a straight up google search of her name?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Oh, right, can I check the other names on the approved list?

Hunger: Prower, COMPSCI.

Michael Sajdak: Of course it'll be the same story if we can keep that nurse alive and get her story after we're done blowing this place up.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Satan Room— it's in the staff only sector, says LYFForce employees only but only Lowe is on that list out of them all."

Hunger: Success.

Hunger: This is indeed a dumbass with Facebook.

Hunger: She graduated from Franklin High School in 2009. She worked a series of food-service and retail jobs for the next five years. Her struggling family had lost their house in 2008. She has a daughter, Kady Richter, born in 2015. The father is Clive Rollins, aka Ivan Rollo, age 37: enlisted in the Marines for four years, honorable discharge, occasional jobs as a mechanic and security officer, several misdemeanor charges for fighting and disorderly conduct. Arrest photos show Viking tattoos often associated with white supremacists. Rollins started work at LYFForce in 2015, three months before Richter began working there, but quit in early 2017 to take a security job at a fracking company in North Dakota. Richter needs her job. For all his talk about protecting the children of the master race, Rollins left her broke and bitter to chase women elsewhere.

Hunger: She looks so much older than she is.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I forgot to chat with that skullface guy in the garage. Whatever.

Hunger: He didn't look like the type for a chat anyway.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "You guys have to get Lowe's definitive cooperation or his keycard at the very least. He's not on the pedophile Excel, I don't think he's involved in what Esau is doing."

SA Chris K. Prower: Can I scroll through her feed for a while until I see a picture of her trailer?

Hunger: You find her address.

Hunger: Noted.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I'm going to be out until 10 PM, then we can regroup with Georgie and decide if any of them need taking out tonight. Tonight is the night to do this, not any other."

SA Chris K. Prower: "I got it. You said it's on her hard drive? What do we do once we get it?"

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: "I think it'd probably be easier to grab his keycard than convince him to help us, how we'd go about doing either is beyond me, though."

Michael Sajdak: "We email everything to that law firm, bridges or whatever, before we storm the place."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Wait."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I'm so fucking sorry but we can't do that."

SA Chris K. Prower: "What is 'everything' exactly?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "If this is anything other than a crazy shootout out of absolutely nowhere, they're going to kill our families and anyone we've ever interacted with."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "We have to save the kids and let it sleep."

Hunger: Sartore has a good idea of it. The Bridge can help the kids on their own with their network, if the promises are right.

Hunger: You see Cruz bobbing his head and squeezing gun oil into the AMD bolt as he cycles it.

SA Chris K. Prower: "It's still a good bargaining chip. We can use it, even without releasing it. The threat of releasing it, or showing it to select people…"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Lowe might comply if he's shown it. So might the nurse. But it can't be distributed."

SA Chris K. Prower: "We could get somewhere without that. Maybe somewhere besides a grave."

Hunger: Our time is running thin. We need to figure out who does what for the rest of today.

Hunger: Don't forget about Velasquez. She can arrange that U-Haul truck to transport you there.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Before we make decisions: I'll take a second to check the names on the Satan Room against Esau's Excel, can I do that?

Michael Sajdak: "I don't know how much good blackmail material is gonna do by the end of this. I don't even know what the fuck 'the end of this' is gonna look like. If we've got nothing better to do I'll check out the lady's trailer tonight, maybe."

Hunger: Yes. Everyone except Lowe is on there.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Even Kendall?

Hunger: Even Kendall. Fun thing about him- he has no attached tag.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Holy shit.

Hunger: He's just on the list.

SA Chris K. Prower: Prower can handle stealing the blackmail, with a buddy.

SA Chris K. Prower: Better do it while the bitch isn't home.

Michael Sajdak: "Are we thinking this Lowe guy is a weak link or something? Do we even know much about him?"

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I think the order of actions is looking something like… get Deb's hard drive, find out the nurse's address and talk to her, see what she can tell us when shown that we know… then go to Lowe's and get his keycard, at least…

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm going to have to be up earlier than 10 for the Bridge meet.

Hunger: That can all be done.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Lowe is like the legal representative, AND he's got a keycard. He's our way in, whether he gives it up willingly or not.

Hunger: Sartore, on your way out your feet clatters on a familiar black and blue CD album. There's crap laid out all over the floor but how did that get here? You're sure you've heard this one before.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll grab it.

Hunger: It's not of much use. You go to your own room.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Bye."

Hunger: You three, who does what?

SA Chris K. Prower: I'm down for going to her trailer right now. She should still be at work, right?

Hunger: You reckon.

SA Chris K. Prower: If we're fast we can probably get on her computer and get the files out without having to steal the whole thing.

Michael Sajdak: I don't really want to burgle this rich and probably very secure lawyer's home without some backup.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: I'll tag along, then.

Michael Sajdak: If George was with me, at least, then…

Hunger: Sajdak, your mind goes to the basics.

Hunger: It does not take much to get someone to open their door.

Hunger: After it's open is a different story, though.

Michael Sajdak: If we have the chance to find the nurse afterwards that'd be ideal but if not, no biggie, we can surely find the only Vietnamese lady in the whole plant while we're busting it down.

Hunger: It's unlikely a nurse will grab a gun and try and kill you.

Michael Sajdak: Yeah that's more or less my line of thought. So me and Cruz will visit Lowe while Prower goes to Deb's trailer.

Hunger: 1030T.

Hunger: Prower, it's time to earn that glory. You have your mask and crowbar.

SA Chris K. Prower: Looks pretty secluded. Can I see a doorbell camera from here?

Hunger: None.

A man (Prower): Wonder if anyone's home. Any cars parked up against the trailer?

A man (Prower): It's a Sunday. Might just be her daughter here.

Hunger: Alertness.

A man (Prower): A man (Prower) rolls Success -> 12

Hunger: No activity in the trailer.

A man (Prower): I jiggle the doorknob. Unlocked?

Hunger: Locked. Not that easy.

Hunger: STR for the crowbar.

A man (Prower): This better work. I don't want to bust through one of the window screens.

Hunger: Failure.

Hunger: Wow, this is harder than it looks.

Hunger: You're gonna have to look for another way in.

A man (Prower): Are any of those windows open? Taking out the screen and crawling through should be easy, if a little annoying.

Hunger: All are closed. You can try prying one. You need to FAIL a strength roll to get it open without shattering it.

Hunger: You're in, and you only broke the simple lock latch.

A man (Prower): Nice. Where's the computer? Better just grab the whole thing and any other storage she might have laying around.

Hunger: There is a laptop laying on the working space that dominates the main room.

A man (Prower): Anything connected to it?

Hunger: No. Roll Search.

A man (Prower): A man (Prower) rolls Failure -> 49

Hunger: You're quite sure this is it.

A man (Prower): I'll turn it on first.

Hunger: You can wreck the whole place and see if you missed anything but it will not exactly be subtle.

Hunger: It powers on. Password?

A man (Prower): password.

Hunger: Negative.

A man (Prower): Right. Is there a little notebook around the computer?

Hunger: No.

Hunger: Doesn't seem like its noted down.

A man (Prower): Hm…

A man (Prower): Well, we can figure that out later. I'll take the laptop and get out, closing the window behind me, if I can.

A man (Prower): She might not notice a broken latch.

A man (Prower): She'll definitely notice the missing laptop, though.

Hunger: Of course. Though, thinking back on the kind of posts she made…

Hunger: I'll let you guess one more time.

A man (Prower): Hm…

A man (Prower): Kady?

Hunger: Negative. Looks like you're out of luck.

Hunger: Now leaving unless you have anything else in mind.

A man (Prower): …1488?

Hunger: DU-DUN DUN… Desktop opens.

A man (Prower): Right. Where would she keep her snuff films?

A man (Prower): Probably in Videos, synced to OneDrive.

Hunger: There is a folder called "privateside"

Hunger: Two videos.

A man (Prower): I'll start both of them just to make sure it's what we're looking for.

A man (Prower): Don't need to watch the whole thing.

Hunger: You're fairly sure this is the crisis room and the airlock Sajdak told you about.

A man (Prower): Great. Onto the USB stick, and then I can shut the laptop down and leave it behind.

Hunger: A matter of seconds. You hop back out the window, close it to the best of your ability and sprint back to the car.

Hunger: Around the same time…

Hunger: You're back. Sajdak, you already know.

Michael Sajdak: So what's the plan here? We're not getting shit out of this guy without the jig being up and at that point we'll have to kill him. That's not a problem in my book, but I doubt it's what Sartore had in mind…

Hunger: It can be done quietly if you act right. You two are pretty strong.

Michael Sajdak: I suppose all we can hope is that it doesn't come to that. We'll have to see. I'm gonna ring the doorbell while gesturing Cruz to get behind me with the steel ready.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: And I'll trail behind, then.

Hunger: Ding dong. "Who is it?"

Hunger: Cruz, all you see is him talking.

Mariam Helena Khoury: "Doordash."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "Heyy."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: CCO Jonathan Lowe rolls Success -> 12

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "You don't look like Doordash."

Michael Sajdak: Is the door open?

Hunger: Wide open.

Michael Sajdak: I nod at Cruz and then walk inside while pulling out my gun.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: He holds his hands up.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "Woahh.."

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: I'm gunning it in there, too.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "Easy now."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "I ain't dying for some jewelry man."

Michael Sajdak: "Yeah, you can keep that shit. We wanna know a couple things about the detention facility in Frank Harvey." I point over to the couch with my gun.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: He sits down calmly.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "Like what?"

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "You're not here for no money aren't you."

Michael Sajdak: "See, what's funny is you don't seem like the sorta person Esau Tillman would have in his entaurage. You know what I'm talking about? You know what he's doing with that place?"

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "…"

CCO Jonathan Lowe: CCO Jonathan Lowe rolls Failure -> 79

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "Who the fuck sent you?"

Michael Sajdak: "Nobody fuckin' sent us, man, we're here because your pal is using that place to rape a bunch of kids."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: He seems stressed out at the mention.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "You think you some sort of white knight in shining armor for this shit? You think it would make me throw my loyalty?"

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "I don't give a shit what he does to some illegal immigrants. Your politicians are doing it to citizens so fuck you."

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: "Well we /do/, funny enough. Now you're gonna help us put a stop to this."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "And if I don't?"

Michael Sajdak: "Okay. That's about what I expected. But there's something funny about all of this."

Michael Sajdak: "Esau Tillman wouldn't chum it up with a guy like you, not really. His inner circle aren't yuppies, they're psychopaths like that fucking maniac with a bowl cut that cleans the halls in there."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: CCO Jonathan Lowe rolls Failure -> 68

Michael Sajdak: "So whatever you say to me, I'm conviced we can strike a deal."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "It's called a job man. I rub him, he rubs me."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: Sajdak, roll Intelligence or History.

Michael Sajdak: "Well I'm about to rub you. You're a lawyer, right? And I know a lot of lawyers are making millions off a certain case involving an island in Little Saint James right about now."

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Failure -> 87

Hunger: This is in fact the type of guy you can strike a deal with. However, you are very much out of any bargaining chips for this. You doubt the blackmail you have will exonerate him from being a part of the scheme. It will put him dead front and center of it.

Michael Sajdak: "We've got proof of all the shit going on in there. All of it. Now, let's say you become known as the guy who played cover for a child rapist and his gang of serial killers…"

Hunger: He is the legal liaison after all. You release that, he eats shit. He doesn't get a better job in LYFForce by the end of this admin, he eats shit in a purge. This is a smart man with nothing to lose.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "Yikes. No one would want that right."

Michael Sajdak: "Or you can play the whistleblower and maybe a few years down the line you'll get a fat check out of this."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "Fuck you and your whistle prick."

Michael Sajdak: "Sounds like we're at an impasse."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "I don't know what you want with Tillman but it definitely isn't about some kids who may or may not be getting touched."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "In an ICE facility too that is."

Michael Sajdak: "Aha. Shit, man— if you only you knew who that guy was before he became a fuckin' body for Trump 2. But if you don't care about what he's doing now, it'd be a waste of breath to tell you."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "I gotta know what you actually want."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "Your plan."

Michael Sajdak: "We're going to kill him. It's that simple. Him, and anyone between us and him. And then we publish all the dirt we've got on what's been happening at Frank Harvey and let them think we're the fuckin' Antifa or something, I don't care."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: CCO Jonathan Lowe rolls Failure -> 72

Mariam Helena Khoury: She takes out a red keycard from the bottom of one of the kitchen drawers and puts it back in where it was.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "Alright man. You want my keycard? It's right below the coffee table."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "I'll go get it."

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "Is that fine?"

Michael Sajdak: "You're a real comedian." While Darius keeps his gun on the guy I'm gonna fetch his keycard from where he's really keeping it.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: He just whispers "fuck" under his breath as he dives for the coffee table next to him.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: CCO Jonathan Lowe rolls Failure -> 36

CCO Jonathan Lowe: He doesn't get to it right away.

Michael Sajdak: "Shoot that asshole's wig off."

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: "Sit back down, jackass. You're not going ANYWHERE." I say, firing off a warning shot.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: CCO Jonathan Lowe rolls Success -> 53

Michael Sajdak: idiot

Michael Sajdak: JUST KILL HIM

Michael Sajdak: LOL

CCO Jonathan Lowe: He pulls the gun out and claps back at Cruz.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: CCO Jonathan Lowe rolls Failure -> 59

Michael Sajdak: I'm shooting him in the head.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: Go ahead and roll.

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Success -> 31

Hunger: You're one off.

Hunger: Cruz, roll POW.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: Darius Jeremiah Cruz rolls Success -> 35

Hunger: You may act.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: I'm also just fucking shooting this guy, since he clearly doesn't know how to act.

Hunger: On a 2 your aim is uninterrupted. Coin toss.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: 1

Hunger: Sucks.

Hunger: Roll with the malus.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: Darius Jeremiah Cruz rolls Failure -> 89

Michael Sajdak: I shoot him

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls Failure -> 52

Hunger: He's gonna suppress Cruz again and run for the exit.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: CCO Jonathan Lowe rolls Success -> 5

CCO Jonathan Lowe: No hit but he still has some rounds in the mag.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: Cruz, POW.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: Darius Jeremiah Cruz rolls CRITICAL FAILURE! -> 100

CCO Jonathan Lowe: Coin toss.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: 1

CCO Jonathan Lowe: You dive.

Darius J. Cruz: Condition Changes Full Cover

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: Active Conditions Full Cover

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: Roll POW to clear.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: Darius Jeremiah Cruz rolls Success -> 21

Michael Sajdak: Shooting him

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls CRITICAL SUCCESS! -> 11

Michael Sajdak: Bodypart damage wound.

Michael Sajdak: Random bodypart?

Hunger: Yes.

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls 1d10 -> 8

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls 1d10 -> 7 (Draws a result from the Random Hit Location d10 table)

CCO Jonathan Lowe: That's a 16 for a crit.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: Roll wound.

Michael Sajdak: Michael Sajdak rolls 1d6 -> 2 (Draws a result from the Torso Critcal Wounds (8+ Dmg) table)

CCO Jonathan Lowe: CCO Jonathan Lowe rolls Failure -> 61

CCO Jonathan Lowe: "AUUURGH—" His screams deflate quick as you send him to shock. Not much of a chance to save him.

CCO Jonathan Lowe: Condition Changes Casualty

Michael Sajdak: "What a fucking moron."

Darius J. Cruz: Condition Changes Full Cover

Michael Sajdak: I'm trashing this place so it looks like a robbery and then we're out.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: "God damnit-"

Hunger: Very well.

Hunger: No further rolls.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: I'll help in fucking the place up, too.

Hunger: You are in posession of his keycard.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: I guess we got what we came for.

Michael Sajdak: "He was just some fucking mook and he died for him. What a piece of shit."

Hunger: As you run outside you can see bystanders pause to see what is going on.

Hunger: Congratulations on your fuckup. That being said, the time is…

Hunger: 1130T.

Hunger: We have room for little left.

Hunger: Make it count.

Chris K. Prower: I've got the videos.

Hunger: Exactly. The Bridge.

Hunger: They are in the middle of consultation hours.

Hunger: Now that I have your attention. What next?

Michael Sajdak: I can really only imagine Sartore meeting up with them.

Hunger: Alright the meth will have worn off and she will hit rolls at a minus fourty if you really insist.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Hypothetically what if I do another line?

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Just questioning.

Hunger: Nothing changes you're past that point.

Hunger: You can stay awake. However sometimes staying awake this long has its benefits.

Chris K. Prower: I'm not tired.

Hunger: Prower can walk in there.

Chris K. Prower: I can go visit someone on your behalf.

Hunger: Just Prower?

Hunger: I'm taking that as a yes you waived your right to a decision.

Hunger: Prower. You're here.

Hunger: How do you plan on introducing yourself?

Chris K. Prower: A close associate of Sartore.

Chris K. Prower: Her uh… Shit, how did Sartore introduce herself to these people?

Hunger: She didn't

Chris K. Prower: I think I was asleep for that. I was having a nice long nap.

Hunger: You'd have gotten the reference from Velasquez.

Chris K. Prower: Oh, yeah. She hasn't been here yet. I wish she wasn't asleep.

Chris K. Prower: I'll see if I can find someone who knows Velasquez.

Hunger: You're going in nonetheless. It's just Nelinha Estevez, Esquire at this time.

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "Well. This is certainly unusual."

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "I hope you have a good excuse for interrupting an appointment."

SA Chris K. Prower: "Hi, uh…" Who is she in an appointment with?

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: No one anymore. There was an African immigrant here just now but he got forced out by your badge.

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "Please, take a seat."

SA Chris K. Prower: Damn. I didn't want to butt in like that. This is more important, though.

Hunger: Nelinha Esteves is a 37-year-old immigration law specialist of Brazilian-American decent. Her legal non-profit, El Puente de la Esperanza, “The Bridge of Hope,” or more often, just “The Bridge,” is a co-op of local immigration defense officials providing pro bono representation for asylum and naturalization cases since 2015.

Hunger: There is a framed motivational poster from the 2000s that is a frame the movie "Day of the Dead" with the caption "Choke on 'em" on her side of the wall next to her diploma.

SA Chris K. Prower: "Yes, I do have a good excuse. A very good one. Do you know of the nearby ICE detention facility, the one in the water treatment plant?"

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "Go on."

SA Chris K. Prower: "Right. We have word that…" Prower fumbles for the words. He's not usually the one to handle this. "A few arrests, quite a few actually, are going to be made at that facility. Not of the immigrant detainees, but of the staff there. Possibly all of them."

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: Nelinha Estevez, Esq. rolls Success -> 38

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: She doesn't say anything.

SA Chris K. Prower: "Right now, we're trying to find someone who can… Take charge of the children. How do I put this…" He scratches his hair. His scalp itches, after the bleaching for the dye.

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "Hm."

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "I think I have an idea of what you are trying to ask me for."

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "Following these arrests, the status of the detainees will be in a gray zone."

SA Chris K. Prower: "We don't have the resources to hold the children, after the arrests are made. Honestly, with everything going on there, we're not sure of the legal basis of their detention, even in the current climate."

Hunger: Roll Persuade. Blind.

SA Chris K. Prower: "So, it's likely that most, if not all of them, will be released."

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "Alright. I'm going to ask you to stop right there."

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "I didn't ask you for your name yet and I'm sure my other client could agree on keeping his quietitude on this."

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "I need an address and a time and a rough headcount."

SA Chris K. Prower: "In the Mesquite Hills, I can call you with a more precise location soon. As for the amount... Fifty or sixty, I think. They don't keep very good records."

SA Chris K. Prower: "You do know someone that can help with this, right?"

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: She hands you a business card with her phone on it.

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "Don't call me twice on this number. Use a burner, payphone if you manage to find one that still works."

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "Now you can leave."

SA Chris K. Prower: "There might be way more than 60 there, to be honest."

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "We estimate roughly 121. Maybe more, maybe less."

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: "I don't want to hear any more from or about you."

SA Chris K. Prower: "These arrests, we're making them because the children have been abused, sexually. We're unsure of how many they have been keeping there, without making records."

SA Chris K. Prower: A time. Shit. We haven't agreed upon the time, yet…

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: She doesn't reply. She doesn't have to talk.

SA Chris K. Prower: I'll stand up and leave, looking at her once and nodding.

Nelinha Estevez, Esq.: She nods back and returns to her computer.

Hunger: 1230T.

Chris K. Prower: I'll have to pick up a Walmart phone or something. Payphones don't exist anymore.

Hunger: You can sort something out with the rest of the team. They can each call once.

Hunger: With that being said who wanted to talk to the Nurse?

Michael Sajdak: I think we agreed there isn't much point to say nothing if the fact that we have no idea where she lives.

Hunger: You could learn where she lives. But you are missing one thing.

Hunger: Time.

Hunger: Everyone throws a coin of fate. If it's less than 3…

SA Francesca R. Sartore: 1

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: 2

Michael Sajdak: 1

Chris K. Prower: 1

SDUDM George E. Jones: 1

Hunger: Sajdak. Your phone rings.

Michael Sajdak: I pick it up, "hello."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "Wherever you are you need to pack up and get the fuck out now. I don't know what you did and I won't ask. Start driving to New Mexico. I'll give you an address."

Hunger: DELTA GREEN - GOD'S TEETH - THE BEAUTIFUL

Hunger: Session 3 END.

Hunger: Thanks for playing!

God's Teeth - The Beautiful - Session 4

October 9, 2026

Hunger: DELTA GREEN

Hunger: GOD'S TEETH

Hunger: THE BEAUTIFUL

Hunger: SESSION 4

Hunger: TUE 29 SEP 26 01440T.

Hunger: Somewhere along Railroad Dr., TX.

Hunger: The gloomy interior hums with the sound of the road yet you can't help but focus on the warm, fuzzy, excited feeling in your stomach.

Hunger: This is it. The un-making of a twenty five year old mistake. Hundreds have lost their lives in the process. Among them were ones you knew.

Hunger: Keith. Anderson. Mariam. They would have wanted to see the end of what they started in those cold, dark Maryland woods.

Hunger: Their families would have preferred to know what happened. Now, they just want to forget and move on. You are about to carry out the only kind of justice they will ever receive.

Hunger: Although for some, old friends never left…

Michael Sajdak: Sajdak stares into nothing next to Jones for a moment.

Hunger: The others are slowly accepting the fact that there is no sweet ending to this. They are going to pay the ultimate price.

Hunger: … Or will they?

Hunger: Your radios crackle. "We're-- five minutes -ff."

Hunger: Velasquez can participate in the conversation through the radio. In the meantime, how is everyone feeling about being so close to the finish line?

A woman (Sartore): Shitting bricks, puckering up. I'm holding the Fallen CD in my hands.

A huge man (Jones): George thinks this is a symbolic suicide at this point, pure harakiri.

A man (Sajdak): More than anything I'm curious. This is meant to be the end of the world, right? How are we supposed to get to that point? So far it just looks like Conradin hurting some people and a bunch of old bucks trying to stop him.

A large man (Cruz): If I weren't so certain that this was it, I'd have offered to grab beers with everyone here once we're done. I've wanted this to be /over/, for the longest of times. Today's the day.

SA Almudena Velasquez: I got nothing to say. Eyes on the ball. Kill the bastards. Get the kids out. No time for feelings.

Hunger: I'm wishing I had impulse bought that Punisher skull balaclava months ago. I saw it on Aliexpress. It would actually be useful right now. But how could I have known that this is what I would be doing?

Hunger: "Waatching mee, waanting mee…" - Maybe you're reflecting on the fact that a now-dead person owned this once.

A woman (Sartore): I am. It's about to be two.

A woman (Sartore): I'll shove it in the spot it was.

Hunger: It's still ripped open so it goes in.

Hunger: Sajdak- the end of the world is a subjective term.

A man (Sajdak): I'll be disappointed if Conradin isn't planning to set a nuke off or something.

A woman (Sartore): "We haven't talked about our rules of engagement yet. I don't think anyone here expected to leave the LYFForce fuckers off the hook tonight."

Hunger: A nuke is just a firecracker compared to the play partner of Conradin.

A huge man (Jones): "Shoot anyone that looks adult and is wearing a fucked up uniform of some sort, yeah?"

A man (Sajdak): "I think we'll be best of killing everyone we see. We've covered our bases with the innocents already."

A man (Sajdak): "And speaking of which."

Hunger: "Whatever's easier. I think if we don't gun them down as soon as we make contact, they'll try to run or fight back. That makes it a lot harder."

Hunger: "They're all potential combatants."

A man (Sajdak): "The idea is for Deborah to set that alarm off as soon as we're outside, right? If at all."

A woman (Sartore): "ICE and LYFForce are all shoot to kill." I nod and rip this goddamn Confederate flag off my back. Surely nobody thought I was going through with that.

A woman (Sartore): "Yeah."

A man (Sajdak): "Perfect. Then I'll be our forlorn hope."

Hunger: The reality of the situation begins to settle for everyone.

A huge man (Jones): "That means first responders and ICE. Probably ICE coming by first."

Hunger: Whether or not you think positively, you certainly got something coming for you…

Hunger: You're here. Velasquez turns the ignition off and Jones opens the hatch. You begin disembarking one by one.

Hunger: You hop out and grab your bags. Lastly, Velasquez gets out of the cabin and plants her feet on the ground.

Hunger: A little bit of sand flies up and gets everywhere. In that instant, you're too late to notice that something has been waiting for her at that exact spot for who knows how long.

SA Almudena Velasquez: "FUCK!"

Hunger: You walk around the truck to see what happened. As soon as you lay eyes on her clutching her hand, now wet with a weak stream of blood, you already know exactly what is happening.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Ha."

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Shiiit. Welcome to the club."

SA Almudena Velasquez: "A damn…snake."

Michael Sajdak: I look around at everyone to make sure they don't say anything— and they do anyway.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: Let me scan the horizon with my mono. This is a nice reunion and all.

SA Chris K. Prower: "What the fuck was that?"

SA Almudena Velasquez: "What club?"

Michael Sajdak: I really didn't want her to be spooked.

SDUDM George E. Jones: "Don't even trip, it don't matter."

Hunger: Sartore, roll Alertness at -20.

Darius Jeremiah Cruz: I keep quiet - A little spooked myself.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'll actually take my helmet off for this.

Michael Sajdak: "Let's just go."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: We're not yet engaged.

Hunger: Without your helmet you see jack shit because its dark and you are in rural Texas. Well done.

A huge woman (Velasquez): Velasquez stifles her pain and masks up like the rest.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: The mono is in My Pocket…

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm pulling it up and using it…?

Hunger: Okay. Do it.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: SA Francesca R. Sartore rolls Failure -> 54

SA Chris K. Prower: It's not a full moon, but it's almost a full moon.

Hunger: Not only you fail to find out anything you also have to use the spanner wrench to affix it back.

Hunger: It will lag the whole team a couple minutes.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: I'm not fixing it back, this thing's too fucking heavy with it.

Hunger: Alright.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: It was intended to go in my pocket all the time.

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "I don't see anything."

SA Francesca R. Sartore: "Anybody else wanna give it a try?"

Hunger: You're running late. No time for games.

Hunger: Ready or not, here you come…

Hunger: But before that… Your radios begin playing a familiar old tune.

SA Almudena Velasquez: "What the hell?"

A woman (Sartore): "…Yeah." I'll turn it off and on again.

Hunger: It doesn't stop.

A huge man (Jones): "Just keep it level, ignore it."

A man (Prower): What frequencies is it on?

A large man (Cruz): I try and turn the volume down, at least.

Hunger: Yours. Only yours.

A man (Prower): "Let's use a different frequency."

Hunger: Roll SIGINT.

A woman (Sartore): "Forget about it. Let's just go."

A man (Prower): SIGINT: 60

A man (Prower): 36

A huge man (Jones): "Yeah we do not have fucking time for this, it'll pass when it passes. Turn down the volume."

Hunger: Impossible. As soon as more than one of you changed it it started playing on that frequency too.

A man (Prower): "What the fuck…?"

A huge woman (Velasquez): "Fuck it. Go."

A man (Prower): "Yeah. We don't need this shit."

Hunger: You can begin moving towards the plant at a leisurely pace.

A man (Prower): Prower turns his radio all the way down.

A woman (Sartore): If we're doing a leisurely pace I'd like another ALERTNESS for the mono… otherwise we're better off jogging.

A woman (Sartore): How long will it be?

Hunger: The song ends on its own.

Hunger: You can hit another roll once you reach the gate.

Hunger: 800 meters (to the door), at a jog you could close the gap in ten or so.

Hunger: 500 to the perimeter.

A woman (Sartore): There's no silhouettes calling to our attention against the lights?

A woman (Sartore): That sniper rifle might as well have stayed back home.

Hunger: What Lights…

Hunger: It's 2 AM.

Hunger: Anyway. You are moving on.

Hunger: You are closing in on the service road gate. It's as quiet as it gets.

A woman (Sartore): I'll hit that roll now then?

Hunger: Do it.

A woman (Sartore): A woman (Sartore) rolls Failure -> 92

Hunger: Nothing of note.

A woman (Sartore): Great. Nobody else try, don't worry…

A man (Sajdak): Can I?

Hunger: Go ahead.

A man (Sajdak): A man (Sajdak) rolls Success -> 42

Hunger: You're pretty sure no one is secretly watching you.

Hunger: The horizon is clear of signatures.

A man (Sajdak): "You're nuts, it's fine. Let's go."

A woman (Sartore): Okay— Lowe's keycard goes into the reader. It's time to start running from here.

Hunger: BEEP.

Hunger: The door starts opening.

Hunger: With a whine, the motor comes to a halt. You can move.

Hunger: No need to move individually. What are we doing?

A man (Prower): Are there any cameras pointed at the gate?

Hunger: This could be the tenth time saying this but the service road Does Not Have Any Camera Coverage up to the Surplus door.

A man (Prower): That's a good sign. I wonder if anybody will be waiting on the road for us?

A woman (Sartore): Let's move up. Once we see the first camera it'll be time to stop and consider whether to call or try walking in.

Hunger: How far are you getting?

Hunger: Most importantly are you skipping the plant?

A man (Sajdak): Why would we bother with it?

A huge man (Jones): Let's just fucking move, the child molesters are too busy molesting the children INSIDE the surplus.

A huge man (Jones): The plant is like two dudes watching computers.

A huge man (Jones): Unless somebody thinks they can get a vantage point somewhere up there.

Hunger: The vantage point would see nothing but the front door and the gate. No windows.

A woman (Sartore): That's two civilians, but they're surrounded by cameras.

A woman (Sartore): Right?

Hunger: You have thirty seconds to say otherwise before you pull up to the front gate.

A huge man (Jones): Yes, let's skedaddle.

A man (Prower): What kind of retard wants to work night shift at a place like this, anyway?

A woman (Sartore): Let's go, the intent is to stop short of any cameras.

A man (Prower): Let's go!

A large man (Cruz): Yeah, lets go!

Hunger: You're here.

A man (Sajdak): "Well there are your cameras."

Hunger: The monolithic warehouse stands before you. The house of horrors.

Hunger: Very real ones.

Hunger: Velasquez… You feel a strange, gingerbread cookie smell emanating from it.

Hunger: In a moment it turns into rotting flesh and sour milk.

A huge woman (Velasquez): "Eugh…"

A huge woman (Velasquez): "You smell that?"

Hunger: Sartore and Prower, you have your own ideas. For Sartore it smells like Lemonnier, for example.

A huge man (Jones): Do we actually or have we gone noseblind?

Hunger: Jones, you get it too.

A huge woman (Velasquez): "Rotten meat and milk…cookies?"

A huge man (Jones): "Yep."

A woman (Sartore): "Yeah, right. Not for me."

A woman (Sartore): Jeez I just got the shakes. I think it's time to call Deb now, any sweep will take them longer than it'll take us to enter the place.

Hunger: Call now?

A woman (Sartore): Yes.

Hunger: Ringing…

Hunger: It rings for a good five seconds. Keep ringing?

A woman (Sartore): Oh she's dead.

A woman (Sartore): Sure.

Hunger: Right when you think that she picks up.

Hunger: "What do you want? I thought you would only ring me!" - No tricks here, it is her.

A woman (Sartore): "Go ahead." I'll hang up.

Hunger: Beep.

Hunger: You may move.

A woman (Sartore): Keycard.

Hunger: BEEP. The gate opens with a roll.

Hunger: waiting for prower to realize he is not on token selection

A woman (Sartore): Do I hear an engine behind this?

Hunger: First of all, weapon states.

A man (Prower): Sartore, when you were walking this place, did you see any exterior ladders to the roof?

A woman (Sartore): I think not.

Hunger: There is no roof access from the exterior.

Hunger: Surveillance reveals it.

A woman (Sartore): No engine sound then?

Hunger: No need to roll Alertness, it's whisper quiet.

A man (Sajdak): We're waiting for the alarm, right?

A woman (Sartore): Alright. I need Prower to try that doorcam under this before we use the keycard.

A woman (Sartore): The alarm's probably on already.

Hunger: You are moving towards the door, actually.

Hunger: As you do…

Hunger: EVERYONE ROLLS LUCK.

A woman (Sartore): 1

A huge man (Jones): 1

A man (Sajdak): 1

A large man (Cruz): 2

A huge woman (Velasquez): 2

Hunger: CODE. ORANGE. CODE. ORANGE.

Hunger: As soon as you begin hearing that…

Hunger: A shot rings out from the INSIDE.

A huge man (Jones): The fuck?

A woman (Sartore): Yeah. Stack up immediately. We're clearing, I'm pointman, George is with me.

A woman (Sartore): EVERYONE MOVE

Hunger: What now?

A woman (Sartore): Bang the keycard in, crack it open.

Hunger: You swipe the keycard. The latch unlocks and you throw the door outside. The mantrap swings freely.

LYFForce Caretaker GS: "HOLY FUCK!"

LYFForce Caretaker GS: He is not looking AT you.

LYFForce Caretaker GS: He is looking at the Communications room.

A woman (Sartore): Clearing with Jones, he's right behind me.

Hunger: You have a drop on this guy.

A man (Sajdak): I'm guessing the mantrap isn't active.

A man (Sajdak): In which case I'd like to shoot him.

Hunger: Act.

A man (Sajdak): Aim & bodypart: Not aimed, no bodypart.Attachments: No attachment(s).Fire rate & range: Short range, single shot.Speed & size: ≤ Normal, regular.

A man (Sajdak): A man (Sajdak) rolls Failure -> 90

A woman (Sartore): Aim & bodypart: Not aimed, no bodypart.Attachments: Short-range attachment(s).Fire rate & range: Short range, short burst.Speed & size: ≤ Normal, regular.

A woman (Sartore): A woman (Sartore) rolls Failure -> 89

LYFForce Caretaker GS: Condition Changes Departed Casualty

A huge woman (Velasquez): "MOVE IN!"

A man (Sajdak): I'm going forward to see what he was looking at.

Hunger: The blaring alarm becomes a blur in the background of the adrenaline.

A man (Prower): Can I butt past them to get through, since I'm first? Or would it make more sense to wait for them to ahead? I want to rush in.

Hunger: You can.

Hunger: Move.

A man (Prower): 10M?

Hunger: Sure.

A man (Prower): Foot movement type: Walk.

Hunger: The mantrap spins freely as you go.

Hunger: You have five more meters left.

A man (Prower): Chris.

A man (Prower): You move where you want, and see through the window…

OF Deborah Richter: She has her brains blown out all over the desk execution style.

Hunger: Any other actions?

Hunger: I guess not.

A man (Sajdak): I'll take cover to the side of those windows and aim in on them.

Hunger: That's not the window Chris is looking at.

Hunger: Sure?

A man (Sajdak): Oh

A man (Sajdak): So this way?

Hunger: It would be like this.

A man (Sajdak): Oh I had no LOS on them so I thought it was a wall

Hunger: The room is clear from where you stand. You can not focus.

A woman (Sartore): Foot movement type: Walk.

A woman (Sartore): I'll actually stop by here and switch to the M16. What a waste that call was.

A woman (Sartore): DEX?

Hunger: Yes.

A woman (Sartore): A woman (Sartore) rolls CRITICAL FAILURE! -> 66

Hunger: You fumble on it but luckily don't have the stupid cape to impede you.

Hunger: You have it up.

A huge man (Jones): I'm just getting in here.

A huge man (Jones): Foot movement type: Walk.

A huge man (Jones): Can I aim down to the door forward?

Hunger: No you just moved.

A huge man (Jones): Fairs.

A huge man (Jones): We done.

A huge woman (Velasquez): Moving to the corner near the dor

A huge woman (Velasquez): Actually nvm moving to where the dead guy is and looking at the monitor

Hunger: This is not a camera monitor. It's off.

Hunger: However the gate controls are here.

A woman (Sartore): "Break 'em so they can't get the Bearcat in or out."

A huge woman (Velasquez): "Should I hit them now?"

Hunger: Sartore. Roll Intelligence.

A woman (Sartore): A woman (Sartore) rolls Failure -> 95

Hunger: No result.

Hunger: Carry on.

A woman (Sartore): "Actually, they can just ram it in. Leave it closed for now."

A huge man (Jones): "We're just gonna shove the kids through the mantrap one by one or what?"

A man (Sajdak): "There's another drive in the back you genius."

A man (Sajdak): "Open the gate."

Hunger: Jones is smart enough for this. The stampede will kill many if they try to leave without the garage doors open.

A huge woman (Velasquez): Opening the gates.

A huge woman (Velasquez): Roll needed or not?

Hunger: No.

A large man (Cruz): I'm making my way inside, too, don't see why I shouldn't.

A large man (Cruz): Foot movement type: Walk.

Hunger: You guys are going too fast… maybe you should slow down with it…

A large man (Cruz): I can't aim at anything, so I'm just gonna pass my turn.

OF Deborah Richter: Active Conditions Departed

A man (Prower): Prower is rushing in to take cover behind the vending machine.

Hunger: As he does…

Hunger: Two overwatches are triggered at once.

LYFForce Caretaker RY: LYFForce Caretaker RY rolls Success -> 24

LYFForce Caretaker RY: Doesn't matter. The ballistic glass stops it.

Hunger: Prower succeds the DEX roll and takes the hit behind the cover.

Deportation Officer KD: Aim & bodypart: Not aimed, no bodypart.Attachments: Short-range attachment(s).Fire rate & range: Short range, short burst.Speed & size: ≤ Normal, regular.

Hunger: How?

A man (Sajdak): Through here?

Hunger: That's not a flank you would be looking straight at them.

Hunger: Also for that movement you need athletics.

A man (Sajdak): Surely I could take cover and throw a nade in.

A man (Sajdak): A man (Sajdak) rolls Failure -> 97

A man (Sajdak): Guess not.

Hunger: You take partial cover but don't have enough time for the nade.

Hunger: There is a particularity about KD's cover. He is not behind any physical cover but a crowd of people. Any un-aimed or failed shot will strike an innocent.

Deportation Officer KD: Active Conditions Partial Cover

A man (Sajdak): I thought they were shooting him from a lot closer.

Hunger: There's a second man up above there.

A woman (Sartore): A woman (Sartore) rolls Success -> 30

Hunger: Unlocked.

A man (Prower): Are those windows floor-to-ceiling?

A woman (Sartore): Prower's following it up with me, we're going. Come on.

A woman (Sartore): I'm running the rabbit.

Hunger: No, they are waist high. Prower is not moving anywhere right now.

Hunger: You can go in alone if you want.

A woman (Sartore): …

Hunger: He just got in cover.

A huge woman (Velasquez): Can I back her up

Hunger: Nope not adjacent.

A woman (Sartore): I'm staying. Hitting DEX for partial.

A huge man (Jones): I'm going to stack up behind Sartore so we can push in.

A huge man (Jones): Foot movement type: Walk.

A huge man (Jones): Should I use extended walk instead?

Hunger: Okay. Since that was a full bulkhead you can push in this very round with her.

Hunger: No need for roll.

A huge man (Jones): Roger.

A huge man (Jones): Let's push, then.

A woman (Sartore): I'm already thinking about that door up north opening up against us. Is that desk actually any cover facing north?

Hunger: No that's a whiteboard with no cover in front of a thin plywood desk. No cover.

A woman (Sartore): Let's go in. I'm running it, Georgie behind yeah?

A woman (Sartore): Or is it the other way due to it being his turn?

Hunger: You can do it however you'd like and you have thirty seconds to carry it out.

A woman (Sartore): I'm running he's behind me then BRO I CAN'T MOVE

A woman (Sartore): How far can we go?

Hunger: How far are you moving up?

Hunger: You can run across the whole room if you want.

A woman (Sartore): Good. We're taking corners.

A huge man (Jones): Take the opposite corner.

Hunger: The path you traced intersected with here.

Hunger: George. Where are you aiming?

A huge man (Jones): You mean like now?

A huge man (Jones): NW.

Rabbit: You see a seven foot tall rabbit come out to snatch Sartore for a split second.

A woman (Sartore): "OH FUCK."

Hunger: Without an aimed shot you will hit Sartore.

Hunger: He is rolling at a +20 to surprise.

Rabbit: Rabbit rolls Success -> 54

Rabbit: Rabbit rolls 1d6 + 1 -> 3

A huge man (Jones): Dude, she either gets shot or she gets raped. What's the likelihood of her armor protecting her from buckshto?

Hunger: Chest is pretty likely. Anywhere else, especially the head… you're gonna make a huge mess.

Hunger: You can hit called shots at -20

Hunger: You have thirty seconds.

A huge man (Jones): Well, I don't want her to fucking die by this guy's hands so it's probably best I shot this guy in the chest now.

Hunger: The chest is Sartore.

A huge man (Jones): Well, it's a called shot anyways.

A huge man (Jones): Firearms at -20?

Hunger: I'm gonna be lenient with you, you will deal half damage as the other half goes into Sartore's IBA.

Hunger: Roll. And try not to fail.

A huge man (Jones): A huge man (Jones) rolls Failure -> 69

Hunger: You hit Sartore. Random bodypart, damage.

Hunger: Your upper leg is covered, so you get a nasty blunt trauma to it. You will be able to walk.

Hunger: You don't get to scream that out. You are KO'd.

Hunger: Fentanyl.

Hunger: Sure. Athletics, unmodded.

A large man (Cruz): A large man (Cruz) rolls CRITICAL FAILURE! -> 88

Hunger: Clink. You should have gotten into soccer instead.

A man (Sajdak): Sajdak is down to 6

Hunger: PAFF!

A man (Prower): What's the - for short burst again? I have the combat helper up I just want to know my chances

Hunger: Can you see the region?

A man (Prower): Shooting to suppress.

Hunger: It covered the whole hallway, basically.

A huge woman (Velasquez): Cant see it but i get it

Hunger: All those stuck in the cloud have one Athletics roll, modified by armor, to get out the zone in time.

A huge woman (Velasquez): now?

Hunger: YES.

SA Almudena Velasquez: SA Almudena Velasquez rolls Success -> 61

A man (Prower): I've got the combat helper up. I just don't know what the malus is for short burst VS single shot

Hunger: A single turn you mean?

A man (Prower): No, firing mode

Hunger: You cannot suppress on single shot but you could try bursts.

A man (Prower): Okay.

A man (Prower): I'm firing to suppress the guy who just nailed Sajdak.

A huge man (Jones): I'm pulling Cruz back into cover man.

Hunger: STR roll.

A huge man (Jones): A huge man (Jones) rolls CRITICAL SUCCESS! -> 55

Hunger: You place him behind the wall while staying in partial yourself.

A huge woman (Velasquez): Active Conditions Partial Cover

A huge woman (Velasquez): Throwing the flash at the pig.

Hunger: Athletics no mods.

SA Almudena Velasquez: SA Almudena Velasquez rolls Success -> 42

Hunger: Deviation

A huge woman (Velasquez): A huge woman (Velasquez) rolls 2d8 -> 6 (Draws a result from the Slow Projectile Deviation d8 table)

Hunger: That is a very hard deviation to the north.

Hunger: Call a coin and flip it. 2 heads as always.

Hunger: You didn't call

A huge woman (Velasquez): HEADS

A huge woman (Velasquez): 2

Pig: Pig rolls Success -> 38

Hunger: He avoids the stun but gets a -40 for d6 turns. Roll.

A huge woman (Velasquez): 5

Hunger: Ouch.

A large man (Cruz): Active Conditions Stunned

A huge woman (Velasquez): Shoot to supress

A huge woman (Velasquez): Please

A large man (Cruz): I'm stunned, even if I could get back out to take a pot shot, I wouldn't. I've a sharp reminder in my chest on why that's a bad idea.

Hunger: nah he is clearing his sstun

A large man (Cruz): Condition Changes Stunned

Pig: Active Conditions Partial Cover

Pig: The pig doesn't give a shit. He is aiming down at you.

A huge man (Jones): I'm shooting yet again.

A huge man (Jones): What's the modifier here

Hunger: +20

A huge man (Jones): A huge man (Jones) rolls Success -> 30

A huge man (Jones): Not calling nothin

A huge man (Jones): A huge man (Jones) rolls 1d10 -> 1 (Draws a result from the Random Hit Location d10 table)

Hunger: Covered by the tray. Damage.

A huge man (Jones): A huge man (Jones) rolls 2d8 -> 16

A huge man (Jones): naur how is it covered by the tray

Hunger: He takes 13 damage to his left leg.

Pig: Pig rolls 1d6 -> 5 (Draws a result from the Leg Critical Wounds (8+ Dmg) table)

Pig: "MAAAHHH—!!"

Hunger: He says something like "mother" before falling on the floor, unconscious.

Pig: Condition Changes Unconscious

A huge woman (Velasquez): Active Conditions Partial Cover

A huge woman (Velasquez): Moving up and peeking the right

Hunger: Go.

A huge woman (Velasquez): As soon as you do, you notice the presence of a very special person.

SDDO Esau Tillman: Conradin has no need for complicated rolls.

SDDO Esau Tillman: He is the child of the force beyond.

SDDO Esau Tillman: Things simply happen or don't for him…

SDDO Esau Tillman: What is about to happen is, if this coin lands a 2, he is shooting you in the eyeball and sending you to the other side instantly.

SDDO Esau Tillman: Do you feel lucky?

A huge woman (Velasquez): No.

Hunger: 2

A huge woman (Velasquez): Condition Changes Departed Partial Cover Casualty

Hunger: Velasquez sags on the floor immediately.

Hunger: She didn't even realize what just happened.

A large man (Cruz): "What the FUCK do we even do-?!?!"

SDDO Esau Tillman: Condition Changes Focusing Partial Cover

SDDO Esau Tillman: "YOU'RE HERE!"

SDDO Esau Tillman: "I KNOW! THAT!"

A huge man (Jones): "Man, it doesn't even matter at this point. I think the discrete particle that's been attached to us has gotten us converged at this location for a reason."

A huge man (Jones): "You can run, Cruz," George tosses his shotgun to the side.

Hunger: Jones.

A large man (Cruz): "No I can't, you should know that. I gotta see this through."

Hunger: Roll Alertness, unmodified.

A huge man (Jones): A huge man (Jones) rolls Success -> 27

Hunger: You hear a heavy vehicle coming to a halt in the front entrance.

Hunger: You are most certainly safer in the Private Side than if you did try and escape the way you came.

A huge man (Jones): "Actually, just stay," George has already dropped his gun. "CONRADIN! I COME IN! NO GUN!"

Hunger: Cruz didn't do anything. What does he do?

A large man (Cruz): I darent move.

Hunger: George, now you.

A large man (Cruz): I'm aiming forward, though.

A huge man (Jones): I'm just walking in, no gun. If he shoots me he shoots me, what can I do? The particle is moving in a different way now.

SDDO Esau Tillman: He stares at you and hesitates for a second.

SDDO Esau Tillman: 2

A huge man (Jones): He spreads his arms.

SDDO Esau Tillman: He shoots you through the tip of the right finger precisely.

Hunger: It burns but it's nothing lethal.

A huge man (Jones): He grabs his hand swiftly in pain, but holds back from screaming.

SDDO Esau Tillman: "YOU ARE. NOT GETTING AWAY. WITHOUT BLOOD."

SDDO Esau Tillman: His words are simple and deliberate. He takes long pauses between listening and speaking, visibly performing a process of translation you can't imagine.

Hunger: Act again.

Hunger: Actually, roll Alertness.

A huge man (Jones): George just spreads his arms again and walks towards him with no killing intent.

A huge man (Jones): A huge man (Jones) rolls Failure -> 97

Hunger: They were so covered in filth and quiet that you did not even notice they are there.

Hunger: The Chutes are much like the Floor of the Public Side, only smaller and missing amenities like sinks and toilets. Loudspeakers play classical music at all hours, strictly instrumental. It's loud enough to drown out speech.

Hunger: Tiny, chain-link cages are centered around drains. Industrial-sized pill bottles sit on a food cart out of reach of the fences. Each cage holds a single child, none over the age of four. There are six of them, skimmed from America's thousands of legal abductions over the years.

Hunger: They are of mixed gender and heritage, selected solely on the criteria of vulnerability. Each is malnourished, developmentally delayed, mute, and suffering from a variety of wounds and skin infections. They spend their time staring in deadened horror at nothing.

Hunger: Waste smears the concrete floors and the chain link of the cages. Children crawl on open wounds that cover their torn knees. If they wear clothes, they are rags. Most wrap themselves in the foil blankets. They are fed infrequently and given small portions. If the children were dogs, their treatment would still be unforgivable.

Hunger: Their expressions change as they look at you in a mix of rapt awe and terror.

Hunger: You know exactly what they are.

A huge man (Jones): George takes off his mask and tosses it to the side as he walks forward still with his arms extended.

SDDO Esau Tillman: "DON'T DO IT. I AM NOT YOUR FRIEND."

A large man (Cruz): I'm moving up behind, seeing if I can get up to the exit at least

Special Agent HK: You would be sprinting into a squad of ICE SRT officers.

Special Agent HK: Continue?

A large man (Cruz): Maybe not.

A large man (Cruz): Screw it, I don't know where else I COULD be going.

Hunger: The inside. After you close the door behind you.

A large man (Cruz): And what, wait for everyone else to descend upon me?

Hunger: I mean the Private Side.

A large man (Cruz): I'm following Jones out.

George E. Jones: Jones is not going out man.

Hunger: Tillman looks at you for a moment before he recognizes you. He knows you both.

Hunger: Jones; with all due respect to your pleasantries you were too late for the children.

Hunger: You might disagree on how to end things, specifically regarding the fate of the children. This is natural. You were meant to disagree, placed at odds from birth so your clash might serve the inscrutable plan of a force from beyond. This is why you have access to guns. They help navigate such impasses.

George E. Jones: It doesn't matter at this point.

SA Kendall Duncan: "Till. I got you buddy. Just hang in there."

Hunger: The PSA system roars to life.

SDDO Esau Tillman: He is sweating, trying to understand why you haven't just put a bullet in his brain already.

SDDO Esau Tillman: He's going to shoot Cruz in the toes.

SDDO Esau Tillman: 1

SDDO Esau Tillman: Goes wide.

George E. Jones: George is still walking forward arms wide.

Hunger: Jones, he is the source of the gingerbread smell.

Hunger: This is not going to end amically. It never does.

A large man (Cruz): I'm taking aim at Tillman. I fear I've only got one shot at this.

Hunger: You do not necessarily have to aim at him.

Hunger: You have the innate feeling that however you pull the trigger the bullets will strike his abdomen and incapacitate him.

A large man (Cruz): Then there's no time to be waiting then. I'm firing, only a single shot.

George E. Jones: Is George not in the way?

SDDO Esau Tillman: No need for anything complicated. His stomach bursts where it connects to the upper intestine.

SDDO Esau Tillman: Condition Changes Serious Bleeding

SDDO Esau Tillman: Active Conditions Serious Bleeding

SDDO Esau Tillman: Dead? Not quite.

George E. Jones: George's arms flop to his side. "It's been a real game of cat and mouse, huh?" he says as he turns towards Cruz.

SDDO Esau Tillman: "You are God. His extension. Appendage."

SDDO Esau Tillman: "The sixth one."

SDDO Esau Tillman: He points at Velasquez.

SDDO Esau Tillman: "I didn't. Know her. Name."

SDDO Esau Tillman: "This. All of this. Just so I could know."

SDDO Esau Tillman: He smiles.

George E. Jones: "It's Velasquez."

SDDO Esau Tillman: "I've… succeeded."

SDDO Esau Tillman: "Velasquez…"

SDDO Esau Tillman: "Last one taken from me before. Language."

SDDO Esau Tillman: "Before that, it was so… Clear."

SDDO Esau Tillman: "Like water."

SDDO Esau Tillman: "Like blood. Fresh."

SDDO Esau Tillman: "I forgive you. All of this. Everything."

SDDO Esau Tillman: "Together we have served. The only god that. Exists. Deserves being served."

George E. Jones: "Me too, buddy, me too," George sits down next to Tillman.

SDDO Esau Tillman: He smiles at you as he bleeds out.

George E. Jones: He puts his hand on Tillman's shoulder as he passes.

SDDO Esau Tillman: "Your God. Our God. My God. She is served well."

Hunger: Cruz. What is going to happen to the kids?

A large man (Cruz): I don't know. We can't just let them out, can we?

Hunger: You are completely free in choosing your own fate.

Hunger: I'll let you think it over.

SDDO Esau Tillman: Active Conditions Serious Bleeding

SDDO Esau Tillman: "It's been a real. Game of. Cat and mouse."

George E. Jones: George squeezes the kid's hand.

SDDO Esau Tillman: Blood leaks through his mouth as his eyes go blank.

SDDO Esau Tillman: Condition Changes Departed Serious Bleeding Casualty

Hunger: He's finished.

Hunger: The kids are not.

George E. Jones: He looks up at Cruz: "The large hadron collider costs billions of dollars and we couldn't figure not one thing about this shit, man."

Hunger: The designers of Private Side's tortures learned a lot of lessons from the CIA's bumbling in Iraq. Much of the sadism seems focused on stress positions and neglect rather than active violence. It also seems intermittent and irregular, geared to cause the mind maximum trauma and stress response. The pills suggest the facilitator is pumping the children full of antibiotics to fight off opportunistic disease, not unlike factory farm animals. The goal seems to draw out the victims' pain indefinitely, though it's not clear what anyone could want a pre-verbal child to confess to.

Hunger: But you already know the answer.

Hunger: You are too fucking late. Possible weeks, months late. You've seen this back at Cornucopia House. The complete stillness of the tortured children. None speaking or saying a word. Animal grunts and fear is their only language. They have become the Quiet Children. You're too late.

George E. Jones: "Do as your conscience tells you, it doesn't matter, I'm done." He leans back on the wall.

Hunger: Cruz. The gate controls are over to this side.

Hunger: Before that…

Hunger: All that we understand of life serves the force from beyond. All of existence is locked within the cage of its consumption. Everyone and everything is trapped; the Teeth are cursed to see the chains and locks of fate. You might perceive the madness of service as a relief. Succumbing to the hunt promises a warm simple embrace of savagery and atavism. Quieting the madness of choice, of anxiety. But even those who continue to struggle cannot hope to "win." You may even be forced to embrace the Nameless God. You could guess that whether trapped in a cage or miraculously let go, you will fight someone elses war until the end of your days.

Hunger: You could pretend the choice you make here matters. Philosophically, people have worked in this space before. They just didn't know the fatalism arose from a force harvesting life from an entire universe of death. An insignificant oversight in the grand scheme of existential dread. Camus said something about suicide being the only choice that matters. Was he right?

Hunger: Considering what you've seen, you may be reconsidering the impossible request made by Agent Clove. You may have come to fancy yourself finally willing doing what is necessary to protect humanity from the thing beyond for another thousand years, to slaughter innocents who had the misfortune to come to the attention of Bast. If you agree to do this, no one is walking away from the decision. The act forfeits humanity. The Teeth become everything Delta Green purports to fight against. Anyone participating in infanticide at Surplus agrees to die in justified revenge, shameful suicide, or madness worse than death. Should you choose this path, you only have a few moments left to say goodbye. Then the unspeakable begins. This is the end.

Mariam Helena Khoury: "Well."

Mariam Helena Khoury: "You know what to do. You always did."

A large man (Cruz): I walked into this building not expecting to come out the other end. If I go through with this, what I must, I don't think I'd bring myself to to walk out at all.

Hunger: Are you pulling the trigger?

A large man (Cruz): …Yes.

George E. Jones: I'm just sitting there until I go to foreverjail or get shot immediately by the rednecks they call ICE agents.

George E. Jones: You're sitting there and things begin happening.

George E. Jones: No point in doing anything more.

George E. Jones: These levers.

George E. Jones: You can see them now.

George E. Jones: Condition Changes Insane

Hunger: The angstrom length determinators of casualty.

Hunger: It's always been in front of you. You were just too stupid to see.

Hunger: Who needs expensive machinery when you could reach out and just flick it?

SA Kendall Duncan: "HOLY SHIT!"

SA Kendall Duncan: "HOW MANY ROENTGENS?"

Hunger: You hear him in front of the door.

A large man (Cruz): I'm not staying here any longer- I CAN'T stay here any longer. After staring for a moment longer, in as much disbelief as grief, I turn the gun on myself.

A large man (Cruz): That is no longer a decision you are allowed to make.

A large man (Cruz): Condition Changes Insane

A large man (Cruz): You rush over and punch the door controls.

Hunger: "BREACH BREACH BREACH!"

Hunger: You hear a muffled explosion behind you but the steel core door doesn't give.

George E. Jones: Active Conditions Insane

George E. Jones: Jones.

George E. Jones: You're not rotting but transfigurating into something entirely else. You don't notice or care to notice but Tillman's body is rapidly withering in your presence too.

George E. Jones: Condition Changes Departed Insane Casualty

George E. Jones: I turn into cat food now. Goodbye world.

A large man (Cruz): Active Conditions Insane

Hunger: The doors lift up. You grab the keycard from Prower's dead body and boot it.

A large man (Cruz): You punch it closed on the way out for some time.

SA Kendall Duncan: "AR— WHAT THE FUCK IS- HAPPENING TO—"

A large man (Cruz): You hear mute sounds of pain behind the door.

A large man (Cruz): You take one last look at it before trying to disappear to the night.

Hunger: Someone is there to disagree. Someone 800 meters away.

A Federal Agent?: It's long range for him. He is already dialed.

A Federal Agent?: A Federal Agent? rolls CRITICAL SUCCESS! -> 55

A Federal Agent?: A Federal Agent? rolls Failure -> 82 (10 Damage)

Hunger: A spike of pain shoots through your body for a split second, and only then you hear a distant, thin crack. Suddenly you find yourself on the floor, unable to feel anything, facing up. You don't want to look down.

Hunger: Fear departs from your body as it acknowledges that this is the last of what it has left to see on this earth. Your mind goes back to childhood memories you didn't even know you still had, quickly reeling all the way to present time in search of a way out.

Hunger: You give up as you fail to find a solution. You forget as to why you are here in the first place, laying down on the cold hard ground.

Hunger: The stars are all visible before you. You're captivated before the heavens. So numerous, so bright…

Hunger: They are serving a purpose much greater than their size and glory. The purpose inherent to everything that hasn't been cursed by language, no matter their significance.

Hunger: You are done serving.
