U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement

TILLMAN, ESAU

DETENTION AND DEPORTATION OFFICER

DOB: JAN 01 1994

PAYGRADE: GL-9

CURRENT ASSIGNMENT: CLASSIFIED

In 2011, at age 17, Jacob Tillman legally changed his name to Esau Tillman. The reported motivation for the name change was to distance himself from the fame forced upon him by his father's work. The paperwork was filed in Tucson, Arizona. The judge rubber-stamped the change. Notifications went out to update the record of Jacob Tillman at the Social Security Administration, the Selective Service System, and Arizona's Motor Vehicle Services Division. The name change was not provided to Duke University when they accepted Esau Tillman for the fall 2012 semester. The school's correspondence with the Department of Justice as part of his security investigation mentions the student's Social Security number and other data as if they always belonged under the name Esau. College transcripts being effectively as far back as anyone would look for his future employment, Jacob essentially rewrote himself as Esau, permanently.

Tillman took advantage of both Tuition Assistance after disowning his father and the military-friendly university's lax attitude towards active-duty servicemen. He enlisted simultaneously with his university enrollment and was assigned to 1st Combined Arms Battalion, 63rd Armor Regiment (1-63 AR), 2nd Armored Brigade Combat Team, 1st Infantry Division. The unit rotated in Camp Lemonnier, Djibouti at the time as part of EARF in April 2013. His scores at the time were trash, an ASVAB of 31/100 and CO of 87/140, barely qualifying him for 11B. He completed the 9-month rotation which saw combat, returning December 2013. His correspondence with Jarnigan is uninterrupted in this time period. He remained in the same brigade during the post-deployment stage at Fort Riley, Kansas. October 2014 saw the establishment of CJTF-OIR for the upcoming Operation Inherent Resolve. Tillman was reassigned to 3rd Brigade Combat Team, 82nd Airborne Division (3/82 ABN) during its preparation stage. In January 2015 he deployed to Iraq for training and security missions. Due to the nature of the operation, he didn't go over the wire to hunt heads this time, at least according to unclassified information. The brigade returned to Fort Bragg in October 2015, and in February 2016 Tillman earned his honorable discharge with a 100% VA disability rating alongside his degree.

Tillman immediately applied to the United States Marshals Service. His high level of VA disability, two deployments, combat veterancy, spotless record and bachelors in criminal justice put him front of the line. By August 2016, he graduated training and entered his probationary period at U.S. Marshals Service District of Maryland. His career progression is relatively straightforward, and lists the acquisition of Spanish speaking skills at roughly 2023, although exactly when he started learning it is unknown.

In 2025, Esau Tillman filed a tax return reporting his residence as El Paso, Texas, and his employer as ICE, Enforcement and Removal Operations, Detention Management Division. Tillman dropped everything including the promise of just a few more months until a Senior Deputy Marshal position and ran towards the ICE's doorstep the moment Trump 2 administration took office. The ICE couldn't possibly accept him faster at the time, with his premium track record, security clearance and Spanish. He holds dual job titles of immigration officer and facilities contract coordinator. Tillman has worked at the same location since August 2025, roughly coinciding with as soon as getting out of the 16-week BIETP retraining period. Beginning in April 2025, he reported 1099-MISC freelance employment income from Laugherty Youth Facilities Force, also in El Paso. Also in 2025, a W-9 form requesting his Social Security Number for tax purposes was sent from the offices of the Frank Harvey Water Reclamation Plant, north of El Paso. ICE appears to be funneling Tillman's pay through the El Paso Service and Processing Center for work at an unlisted detention facility at the water plant. The organizational structures of the dozens of hidden ICE facilities are classified, and this discovery technically does not present as evidence of an ICE facility existing within the water reclamation plant, despite all the fingers pointing at it.

Further information regarding Tillman's employment at ICE is classified.
